IT HAS been such a good world that I'd be sorry ever to leave it, if there wasn't another one, as much better than this, as this one is better than the chaos out of which it was born. No; I don't just "believe" this; I know it. That's one of the few things I do know—positively, absolutely, certainly, and I didn't have to wait for Sir Oliver Lodge to tell me about it, either. I knew that when I was a boy, just as well as Sir Oliver knows it now, and for the same reasons, and with the same proofs. As the sun sinks lower and the skies grow darken in the deepening twilight, the star of Faith shines more brightly and Hope sings more clearly and sweetly. Every evening, when the sun goes down, I can see that land of Eternal Morning. I know it is there, not because I have seen it, but because I do see it. The Shadowless Land, "where we shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; where there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; where God shall dwell with men, and they shall be His people, and He shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

GERMANY ON WESTERN WAR FRONT

VON HINDENBURG IS SWEEPING FORWARD

Germans in Advance on Riga Capture Bridgehead at Friedrichstadt But 40 Miles Away.

Today's War News Given in Summary.

German troops fighting toward the Russian port of Riga have won a notable victory in the capture of the bridgehead at Friedrichstadt, on the river Dvina, about 40 miles from Riga, German army headquarters announced today. Petrograd yesterday admitted that the Russians had withdrawn across the Dvina at a point near Linden, after a stubborn battle. In taking the Friedrichstadt position the Germans captured more than 3,300 prisoners including 37 officers.

All the forts of Grodno are now in possession of the Germans and the Russians are retreating eastward. They left six heavy guns to the Germans while 2,700 of their men were taken prisoner.

Intense activity of the artillery continues to be reported from the fighting front in France. Paris alludes to the latest engagements as of particular violence. Military observers abroad incline to the belief that the persistent bombardment of German positions presages an offensive move by the entente allies in the west.

Petrograd, in its latest statement, admits a retirement of the Russians to the north bank of he Dvina in the sector where the desperate struggle to protect Riga and the road to Petrograd is in progress. North of the Vilna where the German lines have apparently made little progress of late, the Russians claim to have taken offensive and to have gained ground against the Germans, with the capture of more than a dozen machine guns and 3000 prisoners.

The Balkan problem still is in an unsolved state and there are no signs that the situation will definitely shape itself within the next few days.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—The German army engaged in the battle for possession of the Russian port of Riga has won another important victory. Army headquarters announced today the capture by storm of the bridgehead at Friedrichstadt on the Dvina about 40 miles below Riga. The Germans captured 37 officers and 3,325 men.

"Western theater of war: The situation on the western front is unchanged.

"Eastern theater of war: Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: The bridgehead at Friedrichstadt was stormed yesterday. Thirty-seven officers and 3,325 men were taken prisoners. Five machine guns were also captured.

"On both sides of Vilna the enemy has repeated his vain attacks. Besides losing a large number in killed and wounded he left 800 prisoners in our hands.

"In and around Grodno fighting still continues. During the night, however, the Russians, after suffering defeat everywhere, retreated in an easterly direction. The fortress and all the forts are in our possession. The retreating enemy is being pursued. Six heavy guns and 2,700 prisoners remained in our hands.

"To the south of Grodno, also, the enemy has evacuated positions on the Niemen.

"Between the confluence of the Swistocz and the region northeast of the forest of Bielowiezh, the army of Gen. von Gallwitz is attacking. Up to the present time 800 prisoners have been taken.

"Army group of General Field Marshal Prince Leopold of Bavaria: The fighting in the passages through the marshy district north and northeast of Grodno continues:

Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: The enemy is still holding the bridgehead near Brzea-Kartuska. Further south in the region of Dropiczyn, 60 kilometers (37 miles) west of Pinsk, the enemy has been repulsed."

TURN TO DIPLOMACY.

Situation in Near East Claiming London's Attention.

London, Sept. 4.—In the absence of marked changes on any of the battle fronts the English public has again turned its attention to the diplomatic situation in the near east and to rumors of tentative efforts in the direction of peace negotiations. It is announced officially at Nish that the final draft of Serbia's answer to the note of the entente is ready and will be presented shortly. It is presumed here that the reply on the whole will be favorable in regard to concessions to Bulgaria, although little hope is entertained that

NEW YORK CLINGS TO DEATH PENALTY

Constitutional Convention Refuses to Abolish Electric Chair.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 4.—New York's constitutional convention which convened April 7, suspended all rules today and prepared to finish drawing its proposals so that they may be submitted to the revision committee late tonight or early tomorrow. At the close of today's session a recess will be taken until Thursday when the delegates will return to pass formally proposed amendments as revised by the committee. Final adjournment probably will be taken next Friday or Saturday.

In its closing hours today the constitutional convention refused to abolish the death penalty and voted to raise the salary of the governor of New York from $10,000 to $20,000 a year, effective January 1, 1917. The proposal to permit juries in first degree murder cases to decide whether convicted persons should be electrocuted or sentenced to life imprisonment was beaten by a decisive aye and nay vote.

Joseph A. Swartz Dies Very Suddenly From Attack of Indigestion.

an attack of acute indigestion which he suffered at 8 o'clock Friday evening shortly after he had partaken of a hearty supper. Death came at the age of 52 years and comes as a shock to his relatives and scores of friends.

Born in Phillipsburg, Pa., June 12, 1863, he moved to Bellevue when he was a young man and took employment with the Nickel Plate road. Eighteen years ago he moved to this city and had resided here ever since. He had piloted engines over the road from this city for many years and was widely acquainted.

Recently Mr. Swartz had a run out of Fort Wayne on train No. 6 at 2:30 o'clock in the morning and returned on No. 3 at 4:40 in the afternoon. He expected to take No. 6 out this morning and his son George had been called to take the second section of No. 6 to Cleveland.

He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and of the Nickel Plate division No. 537, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Besides the widow he is survived by two sons, George and Arthur, both engineers; one daughter, Mrs. L. E. Merriman, of New York; one brother and sister, who reside in Altoona, Pa.

FIRST LOCAL CASE UNDER THE NEW LAW

Laborer at Rolling Mills Gets Advantage of the Compensation Act.

The first accident reported in Fort Wayne since the new workmen's compensation law passed by the last legislature went into effect Wednesday, occurred on Friday when Peter Yoruk, a foreigner employed at the Rolling mills, suffered an accident in which the end of his right thumb was cut off. The amount of compensation Yoruk will receive is determined by the new law.

Yoruk was not seriously hurt. Immediately after the accident he was hurried to St. Joseph's hospital, where his injury was dressed. He remained at the hospital over night and was removed to his home Saturday morning. The accident occurred while Yoruk was assisting in cutting some scrap iron. Insurance in the case was issued by the C. B. Fitch agency.

HOUSE RANSACKED; NOTHING MISSING

When the family of Herbert Gilmore, 915 Garden street, arose for the day, Saturday morning, they found things very much topsy turvy and every material evidence that the house had been entered luring the night and ransacked by thieves. Nothing was missing, so far as could be determined, but the marauders had made a search that was conducted in perfect good faith. The thieves went into the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore, scattered things about and dragged Mr. Gilmore's trousers from the chair on which the garment had been placed almost to the door, but nothing was taken from them. The rooms down stairs were also thoroughly ransacked. Entrance was gained through a diningroom window, from the sill of which a sewing bag was removed to make way to climb in and was found on the ground outside. A small sack containing a small sum in change belonging to one of the children was also found outside the window.

CARRANZA SOLDIERS FIRE ON AMERICANS

Cavalry is Rushing to the Scene of New Outrage by Mexicans.

Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 4.—Forty Carranza soldiers today fired across the Rio Grande on an American ranchman named Drew at Cavazos, four miles west of Old Hidalgo, Texas. This report was received at Fort Brown at 11 o'clock today from Captain MacCoy, commanding United States cavalry at Mission, Texas.

They also fired on a party of Texas rangers near the same place. All available cavalry is being rushed to the scene. Today's firing occurred at the same place where a party of Mexicans crossed the Rio Grande and looted several stores.

J. Z. Garza, Carranza consul in this city, told Col. R. L. Bullard, commanding the border patrol here, this morning, that the firing on an American aeroplane near here yesterday, was the work of enemies of Gen. Carranza, who sought to bring about trouble between the United States and Carranza. Garza said he had requested Gen. Carranza to place a strong patrol on the Mexican side to stop border raids. Soldiers and armed citizens today continued the search for Mexican bandits operating north of Brownsville.

The posse found two bombs left by the Mexicans. They were filled with bolts and other scrap iron.

Pope's Peace Effort Center of Interest

Washington, Sept. 4.—Efforts of Pope Benedict to bring about peace in Europe continued an absorbing subject of discussion today in official and diplomatic circles here. Press dispatches from Rome quoting the pope as expressing the belief that the United States is now in a position to address both groups of belligerents in the matter of peace, with the probability of inducing them to take the preliminary steps which would lead to negotiations for the cessation of the war, attracted considerable attention here. The pontiff also expressed gratification at the cordiality of the interview between President Wilson and Cardinal Gibbons on Thursday, when the latter delivered a message to the president from the pope regarding peace.

The pope's statement confirms reports in Catholic circles here that he was hopeful that the United States might make an effort to get the belligerent nations to sign an agreement to enter a peace conference. The belief was expressed that the financial conditions of the belligerents would expedite peace overtures before another winter campaign.

then to the headquarters at Turner hall, 616 Superior street. The delegation will arrive over the Nickel Plate railroad.

The parade will march south on Calhoun street to Wayne, west on Wayne to Harrison and then north on Harrison to the Turner hall on Superior street.

The first delegation to arrive came from Evansville about 10 o'clock Saturday morning and before evening over 500 visitors from all parts of the state are expected. The Michigan City and the Laporte delegations were also among the early arrivals.

Keller Coming Tonight.

Joseph Keller, president of the Indiana German-American Alliance, with his staff of forty officers, are expected late Saturday afternoon from Indianapolis.

The morning and afternoon were devoted to receiving the delegates and guests, while Saturday evening an entertainment will be given at the headquarters in Turner hall, 616 West Superior street, consisting of a song recital by the singing societies, Concordia, Saxonia and Kreis Stolzenau.

Business Session Sunday.

The first business session will be held at 9 o'clock Sunday morning at the Commercial club. At this meeting President Keller will deliver his annual address. Mayor William J. Hosey and the chairman of the reception committee will also deliver addresses of welcome.

The program Sunday afternoon consists of a volksfest at Germania park concert by the Citizens' band, song recital by the singing societies and athletic contests. A meeting will be held in the evening at the headquarters.

Garden Festival Monday.

A business session will be held Monday morning at the Commercial club from 9 to 12 o'clock and in the afternoon an automobile sight-seeing trip will be made about the city, followed by a garden festival at the headquarters on Superior street. The convention will close Monday evening with a "Kommers" at the Turner hall. Prof. Henry Meyer will act as toastmaster.

The merchants of the city have profusely decorated their places of business for the convention. For weeks committees appointed by the various German societies of the city have planned for the meeting and the prospects are favorable that the convention will be the most largely attended in the history of the alliance. It is probable that the next convention will be held in Indianapolis, although a number of other cities will ask for it.

Serbia will grant her late enemy all the territory demanded in Macedonia.

Advices from Sofia indicate that unless the whole of Macedonia is conceded there is little chance of re-establishment of the Balkan league. It is pointed out in official circles at the Bulgarian capital that compliance with the program of the entente allies means actual participation in the war, while agreement to the request of the central powers implies merely friendly neutrality, expressed in permitting the shipment through Bulgaria of arms and other war supplies for the Turks.

Although it has been established rather definitely that London has no part in the initiation of informal peace discussions, it is plain that official circles are interested keenly in the news of activity in this direction. There are straws in the wind which indicate that what are designated as "proper peace overtures" on the part of Germany would meet with consideration. However, the general public, not so well informed as is the government, probably would regard such overtures as premature.

While diplomats are seeking to enlarge the sphere of the war, and while talk of peace is in the air the great struggle continues along all the fronts without interruption. The Russians are fighting desperately along the Dvina, protecting the shortest road to Petrograd. They are developing a counter offensive before Vilna, which evidently is designed to threaten Field Marshal von Hindenburg's right flank.

French artillery is pounding the German trenches along the western front.

Allies Have Not Broken Through German Lines at Arras.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—"Rumors that the French and British have succeeded in breaking through the German lines at Arras are absolutely untrue," says the Overseas News agency. "To the contrary, the German position in the west are more secure and favorable than was the case severad months ago. It is evident that rumors of this nature are being spread by agents of Germany's enemies in an attempt to influence public sentiment."

TURKISH EFFORT FAILS.

Petrograd, Sept. 4.—The following statement was issued today by army headquarters: "On the Caucasus front in the coast region a Turkish attempt to dislodge our vanguard failed and the Turks were put to flight by our hand grenades.

locked up pending a hearing in the district court at Warren on Sept. 16. Healis, the chauffeur of Dr. Mohr's car on the night of the murder, was the spokesman for the trio but Brown and Spellman signified their assent to all that he said.

"Tell the people," Healis said, "that we are absolutely innocent and that we believe Mrs. Mohr knew nothing of this crime. We have never signed a confession and anything so said to the Providence police was said in a joking way or in a spirit of anger.

Had Been Threatened.

"Dr. Mohr to my knowledge, had been threatened by several prominent Rhode Island people. I found a letter in his car from a man living on Elmwood avenue in which he threatened the doctor and said that if he did not cease his attentions to his wife he would fill him full of bullets."

Healis declared that the doctor's automobile was followed on the night of the shooting and it was his theory that Dr. Mohr was shot by some man who jumped out of a car, fired at both the physician and Miss Burger then wrecked the machine on a cross road. At this point Brown broke in and said: "I see that the Providence police say that Healis saw Mrs. Mohr in Providence on Monday. That's a joke, for Healis was in Newport all day Monday and Monday night." Brown denied that he ever had written or signed a confession.

Healis Resumes Story.

Healis, resuming his story said: "When I started the machine in the barns Tuesday night it acted funny. On the way down, the lights kept going out and the motor worked badly. I noticed a car following but I tried to speed up the machine to shake off the one behind but the engine went back on me and finally stalled. The other car came up behind us and slowed down and then went on. Just beyond where we stopped is a cross road. A few minutes after the car passed the shooting began and I believe that the man jumped out of the car when it slowed down, did the shooting, and then cut across to the car on the cross roads."

When Healis ended his story Brown told of his experiences at the Providence police station. They dragged me up and down the room by the arm and kept shaking me," he said, "while one of the inspectors kept repeating 'you know you did it.' I replied, 'well, if you say so I suppose it is so. You seem to know everything.' I never signed anything."

Police Inspector W. F. O'Neil when told of the negroes denial of the alleged confession, said: "They did make a confession in the presence of Mrs. Mohr. Brown said he shot Dr. Mohr, Spellman said he shot Miss Burger, and Healis signed a statement that he stopped the car on a bunch of grass as directed."

KIL-SO-QUAH DIES AT 105

Fawn) Johnson, wee with the aged princess when she died.

Kil-So-Quah, believed at the time of her death to be the oldest human being in Indiana, was the last of the royal line of the once great and powerful Miami nation, that until the power of the savages was broken by Gen. "Mad Anthony" Wayne's victorious campaign in 1794, had ruled in the great northwestern empire of which this region is the center.

Kil-So-Quah was the granddaughter of Little Turtle, the great Miami chieftain, who from the village of Kekionga, now Fort Wayne, ruled the great nation. Her life had spanned the period from the beginning of the last century well into the first quarter of the present, and she was witness of the transformation of the country from the domain of savagery to the rich and luxurious civilized abode of the white race. She had always dwelt in the land of her forefathers.

Kil-So-Quah was the honored guest of the Fort Wayne fair a few years ago and was easily the most observed of all the attractions on the day of her visit. Her presence here will be recalled by all who saw her.

Languishing Poet of Love Led His Nation Into War

D'Annunzio's Activities to Get Italy to Join Allies Has Caused Austria to Put Price on His Head.

A poet—a languishing poet of love—who has led a nation into war!

That is Gabrielle D'Annunzio, upon whose head Austria has placed a price of $4,000, because by his inflammatory speeches he roused the Italians to a frenzy of patriotism which resulted in the government's declaration of war some months ago.

It is the first time in this war that a price has been put upon the head of an officer—for D'Annunzio, although 52 and a poet, has gone into the war as a lieutenant in the army.

Now called Italy's "unofficial poet laureate," he has been commissioned to write a history of the war for the Italian government and so that he might be properly inspired he has insisted upon going into the fighting itself—to lie in the trenches with the men his oratory sent to war.

His request to be allowed to go with Italy's fleet of battleships as a common sailor was refused.

D'Annunzio preferred the navy to the army because he knew the sea as a boy and loves it. He was born in 1864 in Pescara, the little fortified fishing town, which stands at the Adriatic extremity of the Valerian Way. His mother was the Duchessa Maria Gallese di Roma.

After graduating from the college of Prato in Tuscany he attended the University of Rome.

As early as 1880 he began publishing verse which met with much success in Rome. Encouraged, he went to Paris, where he studied the style of various masters. Returning to Italy his opinions expressed in verse began to have some political significance and in 1889 he was elected a member of the Italian chamber.

The next year he wrote "La Gioconda," one of his works best known in this country. His other equally well known work—a five-act tragedy—Francesca di Rimini, he wrote in 1902.

A man of reflection—a student—he lived at that time in a world of books. But he worked hard and turned out much verse, and many novels and plays. His most celebrated novel, "Il Trionfo della Morte," he published in 1894.

D'Annunzio first tried his hand as a war orator just prior to Italy's war with the Turks for possession of Tripoli in 1911. His drama, "The Ship," was used to rouse the Italians by recounting the glories of Italy's greatest naval period.

Four thousand dollars for his head! That is what Austria offers for the head of the poet, Gabrielle D'Annunzio, whose speeches led to Italy's entering the war.

After the Tripoli campaign ended with Italy in possession of new territory, D'Annunzio was changed—he was still a poet, but more a patriot. He expressed old Roman pride and Garibaldian love of liberty and with certain political signs of the times he could not agree.

He then went to Paris to live—a sort of "self exile." But when France entered the war against Germany D'Annunzio's patriotic enthusiasm could not be stifled and when Italy began to be stirred by rumors of war he hurried back and was greeted at Genoa by a howling mob of admirers who carried him to his hotel on their shoulders.

His address to the students of the University of Genoa and of other colleges before the Garibaldi monument spread like wildfire through the country.

Speech after speech followed and he was acclaimed by the whole country and received by the king. When war was declared he telegraphed to a friend in Paris:

"The battle is won. I have just harrangued a feverish crowd from the capital. The tocsin has sounded and the cries are arising towards the world's most beautiful sky. I am drunk with joy. You are going to see an Italian miracle after the French miracle."

Italy's act in joining the allies, said an admirer, was a triumph for the poet—and raised his calling above thinker, scientist and statesman.

To keep up the patriotic fever of his people D'Annunzio, since the war began, has done all sorts of stunts, in addition to his patriotic writings. He has soared above the army in the field in an aeroplane and to arouse the sailors recently took a submarine trip.

In 1914 he startled his admirers by going into the movies with his great historical play, "Cabiria," the production of which cost $125,000.

STRICT ADHERENCE TO PEACE PROGRAM

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Strict adherence to the purposes expressed in its motto, "For peace and the freedom of the seas," probably will be the program of the national convention of the Friends of Peace, which opens here tomorrow.

This was the gist of a statement issued today by Chancellor J. J. Tobias, of the Chicago law school, chairman of the local executive committee, prior to going into conference with John Brieben Walker, national chairman, to map out final plans for the meeting.

Mr. Tobias said the friends of peace was not a pro-German organization. Wm. J. Bryan, it is announced, will be one of the speakers.

THE DEATHS.

COREY.

Carlton Vaughn Corey, aged twenty-one years, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Corey, of 137 East DeWald street, died late Friday afternoon at the Lutheran hospital following an illness due to typhoid fever. The young man went to Lake Wawasee for an outing and two weeks after his return he was taken sick.

The young man was a graduate of the Fort Wayne High and Manual Training school, finishing his work with the class of 1912 and was a student at Purdue university. He would have graduated this year from the electrical engineering course of that school. He was prominent in social circles and his death will be grieved by many who knew him. The father of the deceased is executive engineer for S. F. Bowser and company.

Besides the parents he is survived by three brothers and one sister: Ralph L. of Worcester, Mass., Walter C., of Westboro, Mass., Lorin A. and Dorothy E Corey, both of Fort Wayne. The young man had resided in Fort Wayne since 1909 movisg here with his family from New Bedford, Mass., where he was born, December 25, 1893.

Funeral services Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence. Interment at Lindenwood.

HARTMANN.

Mrs. Catherine Hartmann, widow of Henry Hartmann, died late Friday afternoon at the family home, 2323 John street, at the age of 81 years. Death followed an illness of thirteen months and was due to infirmities of old age. Her condition had been regarded as critical for some time.

Born in Germany, February 9, 1834, she came to America when a small girl and shortly after her marriage moved to Adams township, of this county. EVIDENCE FINISHED IN BIG TRIAL HERE

Pratt-Bash Case Goes Over Three Weeks for Argument of Counsel.

The taking of testimony was completed before Special Judge Abe Simmons, of Bluffton, Friday afternoon, in the superior court here in the case of the Pratt Engineering & Machine company, of Atlanta Ga., vs. the Bash Fertilizing & Chemical company, of Fort Wayne, and the hearing was then continued to September 23 for argument of counsel, of which each party to the case has a notable battery. The suit is for $30,000 for work done on the Bash Fertilizer company's plant near this city. The defendant company presented a cross-complaint demanding about $60,000. The trial began early in the summer and continued with intermissions until this time.

Two Failures Enough.

In complaining to the superior court for a divorce from Walter Frederick Klingenberger, to whom she was married May 14, 1913, Beulah Klingenberger says they had trouble and separated once before, but agreed to try it again and were reunited, stepping in double harness for a matter of two years, when his conduct became such as she could not endure and she wants the court to cut the legal bonds that bind her to him. She says Walter failed to provide, subjected her to physical violence, associated with other women and drank to excess. Frank M. Hogan is her attorney.

Notes of the Courts.

On appeal from the court of Justice M. J. Tancey, the suit of W. R. Davis vs. Lewis C. Bobilya, has been certified to the superior court. The demand is for $100 on contract made in the settlement for a dissolution of partnership.

The suit of Edward C. Fairfield vs. Jesse Peck has been dismissed from the superior court.

The suit of E. Gilmartin & Sons vs. Herman W. Tapp has been dismissed from the superior court.

In the superior court R. W. Eyster has brought suit against Eiza McKown to collect $75 on account. A. W. Parry represents the plaintiff.

Clara Cook has brought suit in the superior court against Charles E. Cook for divorce, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment and no support for the past two years. They were married May 30, 1898, and separated August 1, 1913. Frank M. Hogan is her attorney.

Louis H. Dunten has made application to the bar and Judge Yaple has appointed Attorneys E. G. Hoffman, W. N. Ballou and Guy Colerick a committee to examine the applicant.

WORKING ON TAYLOR ROAD.

Sub-Contractor Ireland, for the Erie Stone company, and the committee of protesting property owners have come to an understanding concerning the manner of building the Taylor street road west of the city, and the engineer has set the grade stakes and work is now proceeding after having been held up for some days by the threat of an injunction.

PAULDING COUNTY TO BUILD.

At a conference of the Allen county board of commissioners with the Paulding (Ohio) board of commissioners at Antwerp, Thursday, it was agreed that the construction of three small bridges on the state line along Scipio township, this county, should be constructed under the auspices of the Paulding county board. Allen county will pay half of the cost. The Paulding county board will receive bids for the work at Paulding, Ohio, at 10 o'clock in the morning, September 18. The total cost of the three bridges will be about $1,200.

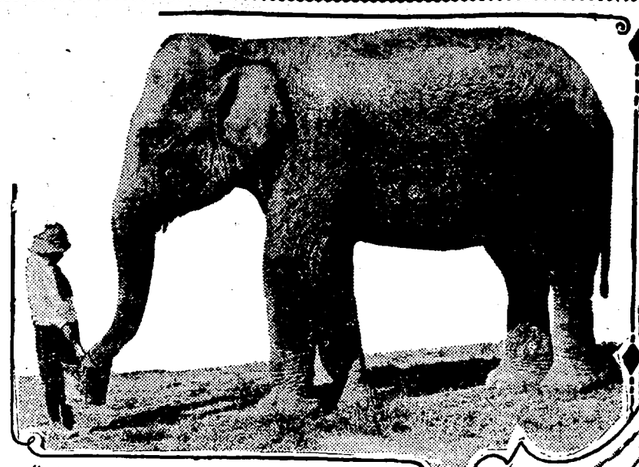
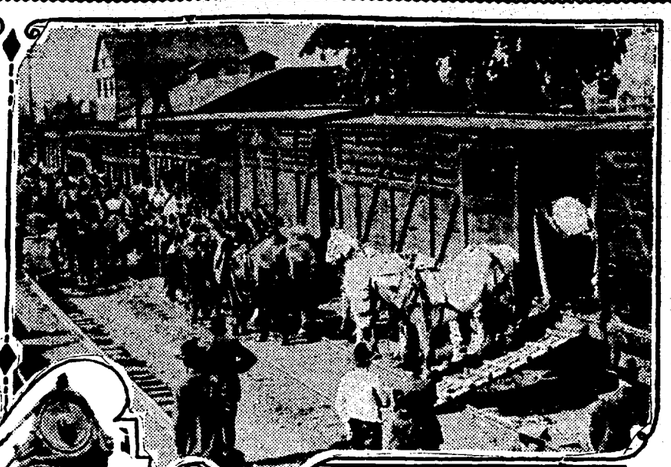
CARL HAGENBECK-WALLACE CIRCUS TO REACH FORT WAYNE ON THREE SPECIAL TRAINS EARLY SUNDAY MORNING FOR LABOR DAY PERFORMANCES.



"Earning his way"



Unloading Horses -Hagenbeck Wallace Circus.

Stake driver

The red wagons come tomorrow!

Three special trains will arrive in Fort Wayne early Sunday over the Wabash railroad. Aboard will be the paraphernalia and equipment of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus which is scheduled for two performances on White's show grounds Monday, Labor day.

The circus specials will arrive thirty minutes apart, according to the schedule given out yesterday morning by railroad officials.

Fort Wayne will probably entertain the largest crowds in many years on Monday. All railroads entering the city have made arrangements for the running of excursion trains and the officials have made preparations for handling a large increase of passengers. Visitors will come in many ways, according to reports. Some will come aboard automobiles, others in carriages, and others will ride horseback, while not a few will walk. But they will get here just the same.

Agents who have been in the city the past week have made their final preparations. As quickly as the circus specials arrive they will be packed in the railroad yards and the work of unloading will begin. There promises to be no halts or perplexing delays. Everything around a big show is done with system. Each man has a special task to perform, and is held directly responsible for it. He performs the same task day after day and in time becomes wonderfully proficient.

The first wagon to be unloaded will be the enormous kitchen van. It contains sixteen feet of steel cooking space and upon it is prepared all the meals for the circus followers. While the space is necessarily small, yet it is compact.

It requires twenty-two separate tents to properly house the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace shows. There is the cook house tent, stables, four of them; blacksmith tent, harness tent, side show tent, the menagerie tent, which houses several hundred rare and costly animals and the big arena tent which comfortably seats many thousand spectators. This mammoth tented palace is the largest arena pavillion ever constructed. It required eighty-five men three months to complete the task. It is valued at a small fortune alone.

Probably one of the most interesting little tents is the "top," which houses the barber shop. Here may be seen the regulation barber pole of red, white and blue. On the inside the circus tonsorialist wields his razor. Time is a valuable asset to the showmen and they are ever ready to resort to time savers. It often happens that they cannot find time to run down town to get their daily shave, and hence the little barber shop.

The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, when it is pitched on the show grounds in Fort Wayne Sunday morning, will form a little city all in itself. There is a lawyer, a dentist, a doctor, two veterinary surgeons, a minister of the gospel, the Rev. Cadesmas Pope, D. D., half a dozen blacksmiths and harnessmakers, besides a whole corps of bookkeepers and stenographers.

One of the most interesting features apart a big circus is the erection of the monster tents. It is the custom with all other circuses to use eight or ten men to drive the big stakes into the ground. With the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus there is a pile driver on wheels which does the work of forty men. Another time saver may be found over in the cook house. It is a little machine which cuts bread as fast as a man can operate a crank and insert the loaves. The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus is the only tented aggregation in the world which carries a soda pop factory on wheels. Spectators who go to the big show have no need of going thirsty as the soda water distillery daily manufactures 200 gallons of the beverage.

The first part of the program Monday will be the monster two-mile-long street parade which will leave the show grounds at 10 o'clock. The principal downtown streets will be passed through. There will be scores of cages and dens containing wild animals, half a hundred elaborately carved and decorated tableau wagons and floats. Some will represent empires of the orient with their respective rulers. There will be eight bands in the line of march and two enormous steam calliopes, that apparatus which the gentlemen of color call the steam fiddle.

The doors to the afternoon show will be opened at 1 o'clock. One hour will be allotted to the students of nature to study the rare and costly wild animals. They are all from Carl Hagenbeck's animal farm at Hamburg, Germany. Several of the specimens are the only ones in captivity. Preceding the performance by thirty minutes a concert will be given by Capt. R. C. Jack's band of forty-two soloists.

Several hundred noted circus artists will take part in the big show's program. Among a few of the features will be Herr von Ritter, a daredevil, who slides on his head down a silver wire from the highest point in the arena; the Ward troupe of six aerialists from the Royal circus, Amsterdam, Holland; the Eugene troupe of nine male acrobats; the Cottrell-Powell family of riders brought to this country from France; Oscar Lowande, the noted equestrian, who until this season only appeared in England and the continent. Lowande is one of the only two riders in the world who turns a somersault from the back of one running horse to another; the Julian family of riders and scores of other noted circus troupes.

Doors to the night show are open at 7 p. m. The performance begins an hour later. One admission ticket will carry the bearer all the way through the big show. Reserved and admission tickets will be on sale circus day at the downtown agency, D. and N. Pharmacy, 624 Calhoun street, where tickets may be procured at the same prices as charged on the show grounds.

Leaving White's field, the circus grounds at 10 o'clock Monday morning the Hagenbeck-Wallace parade will pass over the following route: Washington to Barr street, to Holman, to Calhoun, south on Calhoun to Columbia, to Barr, to Washington street and the show grounds.

State of Indiana Girl

Beautiful Gladys Kleber who will represent the State of Indiana Girl at Robison park on Veterans' Day, Monday, Sept. 6th. She will wear a diadem of white and gold and will ride in a chariot of white and golden yellow. She will carry the State of Indiana flag and will be accompanied by Uncle Sam as sponsor and protector. NEARLY HALF MILLION WORDS IN ENGLISH

Our Language Borrows Profusely and Vocabulary Multiplies Rapidly.

"The English vocabulary has grown to great size," says Professor Clark S. Northup, of Cornell university, one of the editors of The New Universities Dictionary now being distributed by this paper exclusively to its readers; "The number of words found in Old English literature does not exceed thirty thousand; recent dictionaries have listed more than four hundred thousand, mostly of foreign origin. Yet most writers use mainly English words.

"Shakespeare used ninety per cent of English words; the English Bible contains ninety-four per cent; Milton eighty-one per cent; Addison eighty-two per cent; Tennyson eighty-eight per cent. Most of our shortest and simplest words are of native origin.

"If any language comes into close contact with another, there is likelihood of word-borrowing. English is one of the most cosmopolitan of languages. From the French it began to borrow even before the Norma neonquest; after that, as intercourse with France increased, it borrowed heavily from the Norman and Parisian French. Many Spanish and Italian words have come in as a result of commercial activity."

Floods of coupons continue pouring in for The New Universities Dictionary. The distributing clerks are kept busy. The publishers have been ordered to keep a big supply bound and ready for emergency calls. It looks as though the raid on the supply would soon make a replenishment necessary. Such a rush was not expected but this paper is greatly pleased to see readers taking such enthusiastic advantage of its educational offer.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Mark 13:1-13.

1 And as he went out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him, Master, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!

2 And Jesus answering said unto him, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 Asd as he sat upon the mount of Olives over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately,

4 Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

5 And Jesus answering them began to say, Take heed lest any man deceive you:

6 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

7 And when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be; but the end shall not be yet.

8 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles: these are the beginnings of sorrows.

9 But take heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to councils; and in the synagogues ye shall be beaten: and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them.

10 And the gospel must first be published among all nations.

11 But when they shall lead you, and deliver you up, take no thought beforehand what ye shall speak, neither do ye premeditate: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, but the Holy Ghost.

12 Now the brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the son; and the children rise up against their parents, and shall cause them to be put to death.

13 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that shall endure unto the end, the ame shall be saved.

Nothing for the Ultimate Consumer.

Amid all this frenzied discussion over the prevailing depression in foreign moneys and foreign exchange rates, the ultimate consumer probably has no occasion to indulge in any expectation of sharing the benefits accruing to importers and others whose business is in direct touch with the foreign money markets. The man who buys his goods over the counter isn't going to share in the melon-cutting. The importers hasten to assure us that in many instances immense profits that would have accrued to themselves have been entirely offset by advances in prices on the other side of the Atlantic, and by the stiff trans-Atlantic freight rates now demanded, and the insurance rate which shippers are forced to pay.

Because of the low exchange rates, it has been possible for American importers to pay their bills ahead at discounts varying from 5 to 7 per cent. on goods bought in England to as much as 26 per cent. on goods purchased in Italy. A great many importers, it was said, had seized this opportunity. Although the value of the French franc was depressed 15 to 18 per cent., it was said, importers of French goods would benefit but little by the rate. The French manufacturers foresaw the situation and forestalled it in a great many cases by raising the prices of their commodities to a point where the depression in francs was exactly offset.

In the case of fancy groceries, cheese, macaroni, grapes, olive oil and similar products, imported largely from Italy, there is said to be a marked increase of profit by reason of the slump in foreign money, but the importers are declining to share it with the retailer, contending that but for the flurry an actual advance would have been necessary. The consumer who has been building up hopes of cheaper goods as a result of the depression in foreign money is clearly doomed to acute disappointment.

Dr. Thomas H. Norton, of the department of commerce, has announced the discovery of a process by which dye-stuff material can be manufactured from crude American products, and there will be the profound hope that it will prove practical. For many years America has depended almost entirely upon foreign lands—Germany in particular—for its dye materials, and the war conditions have tremendously crippled hosiery-making and kindred American industries which use vast quantities of dye material. It will be a happy result if American skill and American ingenuity can rise to the present emergency and place American manufacturers in a position where they will be independent of conditions abroad which strike a serious blow at industry in this country.

Some $340,000 worth of the $540,000 issue of bonds at Indianapolis to provide for flood prevention were purchased by private individuals in small amounts, and in order to close the matter up quickly the remaining bonds have just been sold in a lump to one of the financial concerns of the city. The experiment of offering bonds to the general public "over the counter" doubtless entails a lot of additional work for those having the sale in charge, but the opportunity to purchase these public securities is one which should not be denied the small investor. Once he understands that the securities are available in denominations which he can handle, the small investor is going to prove an important element in the floating of city, county and other governmental bond issues.

Police procedure against saloon men who sell liquor to men already in an intoxicated condition is another move in the right direction. These sales are as clearly violation of the liquor laws as is any other form of transgression of the statutes, but so seldom has the law been invoked that it has long amounted to practically a dead letter. The man with too much aboard already has seldom had difficulty in finding somebody willing to sell him still more, a fact which has always constituted an important count in the indictment against the liquor business. We trust the police will not content themselves with merely isolated cases in dealing with this particular evil. The crusade should be very general and very definite.

Jim Watson positively declines to be either muzzled or sidetracked at this stage of the proceedings. "I will be nominated and I will be elected," Mr. Watson is quoted as declaring in connection with his announcement that, rain or shine, he will be a candidate for the United States senate from Indiana on the republican ticket next year. Mr. Watson's pronouncement has a strangely familiar ring. He said something of almost identically the same sort in connection with the race for the governorship against Tom Marshall a few short years agone

SUFFRAGETS GOING WEST FOR BIG MEETING SOON.

Mrs. O.H.P.Belmont

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, of New York, as general chairman of the great Women Voters' convention, which is to convene in San Francisco September 14, is a figure of interest to thousands of women at present.

Managing her own great wealth, minutely superintending not only her Madison Square home in New York, but also her summer homes at Great Neck and Marble House at Newport, Mrs. Belmont still finds time to be the moving spirit of the Political Equality Association of New York, of which she is president, and to serve actively on the executive committee of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, as well as to throw herself into personal work for women that is essentially human and helpful and separate from so-called philanthropic activity.

Few have forgotten Mrs. Belmont's spirited campaign for equal pay for men and women in her own organization. As personal and human is her work for girls in the night courts of New York.

Harriet M. Johnston-Wood

Miss Alice Paul, the fiery young leader of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, whose National Convention of Women Voters is about to assemble in San Francisco, has been called "the reincarnation of Susan B. Anthony," so single-minded and indomitable has she been in carrying on the abandoned work which the suffrage pioneer laid down.

Miss Paul's brief career is as austere and single in purpose as that of any of the old leaders. A Quaker girl—from one of the oldest and most distinguished of the New Jersey Quakers—this slight gray-eyed girl seemed in the early days the student type. She graduated from Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania, took a course in the New York School of Philanthropy, and but for a period of study in London might never have been drawn into the young-suffrage movement of this country.

Alice Paul

"Don't wait until leap year," says Mrs. Harriette M. Johnston-Wood. "Every woman should have the right to be the father of her own children. There is nothing unwomanly about proposing to a man. Plenty of women who have done it will tell you that."

Mrs. Johnston-Wood is one of the most brilliant women lawyers of this country and who in her New York practice has her husband for law partner.

Mrs. Johnston-Wood goes to San Francisco to hear the preliminary talks that will lead up to the National Woman Voters' Convention of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage. "Naturally, after practicing law ten years, writing and working in competition with men I am a suffragist, and want suffrage to come as quickly as possible.

COMMUNITY CIVICS.

(Indiana Daily Times.)

Because many children do not enter high school, but must go from the grades to citizenship, it is very properly urged that civics be taught in the elementary grades of the public school. To supply the need of the child in the grades we are offered "community civics" which has come to be recognized the country over as the Indianapolis idea.

On this line the bureau of education of the department of the interior has put out a bulletin. In "community civics" emphasis is laid on the local community because it is the one with which the child-citizen must have most intimate relations. It is easy for the child to enter into active co-operation with his home community. It is under his observation, direct, and he comes in contact with its affairs. It is a part of full citizenship to understand what is going on; what processes are working in his own community. With this understanding the child-citizen more easily may arrive at a conception of the national community.

The good citizen habitually conducts himself with proper regard for the welfare of his own community, of the community in which he is a member, and is active and informed and intelligent in his co-operation with his fellow members, always with the community well-being in mind. This, in effect, is the definition of a good citizen as included in the bulletin of the bureau of education.

The new idea in civics teaching is based on the theory that the child should come to know the elements of community welfare for which government exists, as well as the mere machinery of that government. The manipulation of social machinery is detail, and the social ends for which the machinery exists is the important thing. Responsibility and right action ought to be instilled in the child-citizen through civics instruction. Otherwise it is sounding and meaningless.

DIGNITY AND AGE.

(Columbus Dispatch.)

The worst thing about age is that it seems to call for dignity. At least dignity has been fixed to age in such a manner that where one wears gray at the top and has not dignity, he is more or less repulsive to those with whom he comes in contact.

Age is not by nature dignified; dignity is an artificial accomplishment, forced upon the race through so-called amenities. Age would like to romp and play on the ground like youth; age would kick up its heels and yell and whistle if it were not for dignity. So when a fellow is old enough to realize that he is expected to be dignified, and young enough to want to be a colt forever, it is pretty hard to get along and keep the face straight.

Not that one should not be serious at times. Indeed, one should be serious most of the time. People talk about always wearing a smile; it is wrong. The fellow who is eternally smiling, who is always light of speech and thought—he is quite as much of a bore as the fellow who is too serious. There is a happy medium, a smile when a smile is in order, a serious mien when seriousness is the order of the moment. But there is no time when age can unbend its dignity, save at the expense of seeming foolish to the audience. So age goes about its way in pain, anxious to break over the traces to frivolity once more, to play at childish games, to make mud pies once more, to be as natural as in youth. But such course of conduct is denied to age, and suffering ensues in many cases.

Most of the grading was done between Ottawa and Fort Wayne by the American Midland company.

OPENING DAY JUST AS "BIG" AS ANY

Everything to Be Complete at Outset of the Ft. Wayne Fair.

Ouening day will be as big as any other day at Fort Wayne's big fair for the afternoon of September 14 is to find every exhibit in place, every concession and attraction tent pitched and the splendid free attractions in full swing. The first afternoon will be given over to Fort Wayne drivers, with two special class races billed for the settlement for all time to come of the disputes among the various horse owners as to the speeds of their respective animals. The classification will be left to the Fort Wayne Amateur Driving club, as this is so ticklish a job that the Fair management wants to remain neutral, adopting nothing more belligerent than a watchful waiting policy. The chief interest in this day's racing card centers in Ebony King, the beautiful son of Atlantic King and the last of the famous Centlivre string. The horse now is owned by Charles Geary, having been bought by him from Charles L. Centlivre several weeks ago. Ebony King has a track mark of 2:10, but stepped a mile in Columbus, O., one time at 2:00½. He was withdrawn from the track and pensioned by Mr. Centlivre several years ago when the string that included the two Frank Bogash horses and scores of other famous animals was broken up by sales.

All hope of securing Art Smith for a day's engagement at the Fair is not abandoned yet, as the management has received a wire from the birdboy saying that he is dickering for dates in Detroit in the week of September 14-19 and if he secures this booking will endeavor to arrange for one day in Fort Wayne. P. T. Strieder was one of Smith's warmest champions during the parlous days when the boy was struggling for recognition as a flyer, and Smith has not forgotten the aid the local man gave him in securing bookings in this section of the country. There is a personal element in Smith's expressed desire to return for the fair, a feeling of friendship and gratitude that may result in the famous aviator's making the date if he can do it without too great a sacrifice. The earning days of an aviator are numbered each year and of course Smith is out to earn his merited reward as rapidly as possible, but the lad's system bubbles over with sentiment and this may sway his better judgment.

To mark the opening of the public schools and in response to the call issued by the National Reform Association of Pittsburg, Pa., the clergymen of Fort Wayne will on Sunday, September 12, preach special sermons and utter special prayers for the good will of God towards the public schools. RETREAT OF 1812 IS AGAIN ENACTED

Burning Houses and Crops Make Scene of Terrifying Devastation Behind Czar's Troops.

Geneva, Switzerland, Wednesday, Sept. 1, Via Paris.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—The Lausanne Gazette publishes a letter from an Austrian officer fighting on the eastern front in which he says:

"The Russian retreat is a masterpiece of terrifying, systematic devastation, which recalls the retreat of 1812. There is an immense sea of flames behind the retiring Russian armies, caused by the burning houses and crops. General Mischenko is followed by well organized detachments of Cossacks, whose duty it is to burn everything behind the army. They accomplish their task implicably.

"When the army tried to enter Krytow, on pursuit of the Russians, every street was aflame. They were unable to pass through this burning furnace and lost many precious hours in going around the town by indirect roads across fields.

"When the Austro-Hungarians arrived at Vladimir-Volynskyi they found the town burning and the town of Verba was blazing. Every village on the Volynskyi was in flames. The Austro-Hungarian troops had no shelter for days.

"The roads are indescribably cut up and obstructed. Convoys arrived a day and a half late. It would take fifty soldiers to draw one cart out of the mud hole. Thousands of men worked upon repairs on the railway from Sokol to Vladimir Volynskyi and if the road had not been repaired in time we would have met with disaster."

"In the environs of Vauquers we exploded several mines which seriously damaged the works of the enemy.

LIMA MAN'S BODY IDENTIFIED ON F-4

Honolulu, Sept. 4.—Ten more bodies were found yesterday in the hull of the United States submarine F-4. They were crowded together in the engine room, when a hole was cut through the steel plates to effect an entrance. One body was identified as that of Ivan L. Mahan, machinist's mate, of Lima, O.

Members of the naval board of inquiry declined to discuss the question of whether the finding of so many bodies in the compartment indicated the nature of the accident which caused the vessel to sink in Honolulu bay, March 25, with 22 officers and men on board. It was suggested by some of those working on the submarine that an explosion elsewhere in the vessel caused the men to seek refuge in the engine room. So far 13 bodies have been taken from the hold of the submarine.

HARMAR SCHOOL NOT READY FOR OCCUPANCY

The new Harmar school building which has been in the course of construction this entire summer, will not be ready for occupancy according to a notification given out by Superintendent of City Schools Justin N. Study. On account of the wet weather the cement floors did not dry as quickly as was anticipated and this in turn delayed the laying of the ship linoleum which will be used as a flooring.

As a result the pupils of the Harmar school district will have to attend school at the old high school building as they did the latter part of last year's term. It may be only two or three weeks however, until teachers and scholars can move into the new place permanently.

THE BUGLE CALL

The bugle call is sounding.
Hark! Veterans, brave and true!
It's calling all the warriors
Who wore the coats of blue.
Who suffered many hardships,
Just for their country's sake;
Who fought and bled in battle
With many a pain and ache.

The bugle call you hear now
Is not the call, "to war!"
But a call of gladsome welcome
To comrades near and far.
It's calling them together
For a glad and happy day,
For a word of cheer and greeting
To help them on their way.

They'll meet again together,
Not on the battlefield,
Where fierce and bloody conflict
Their lives they could not shield.
But in happy glad reunion,
As they greet each valiant son.
The place of this joyous meeting
Is out at Robison.

So come and help these dear ones
When they meet on Labor day;
Give them a hearty welcome;
Some have not long to stay.
For some are old and feeble.
Their curtain of life may fall
Before another reunion.
So greet them one and all.

POLICE AND FIREMEN NOT CITY EMPLOYES

State Board Holds Them to Be Not Under the New Compensation Law.

The industrial commission of Indiana, having charge of the enforcement of the employes' compensation law that went into effect the first of this month, has solved a problem with which City Attorney Guy Colerick and the board of public safety were wrestling, and have done it with a ruling to the effect that members of the police and fire departments in municipalities are not employes but officers and therefore not within the operation of the employes' compensation law.

City Attorney Colerick has addressed a letter to the pension boards of the police department and the fire department, giving the gist of the ruling by the state industrial commission and explaining that under this ruling policemen or firemen sustaining injury can have no compensation under the new law, but must look to the pension funds of their respective departments for compensation just as has been done in such cases since those funds were established.

The board of safety had taken no steps to provide itself with protection of compensatory insurance, looking for a way either to escape the operation of the new law or to abolish the pension funds, because it did not want to be charged twice with liabilities for the same injuries. City Attorney Colerick took up the matter with the state industrial commission and has received the ruling here detailed. It would have cost the board of safety about $12,000 a year in premiums to carry compensation insurance covering the police and fire departments.

OSAGE SUBWAY BIDS GO OVER.

Board of Works Will Make No Decision Until Tuesday.

The board of works, feeling the need of more time to work out the advantages of the two bids submitted Thursday night for construction of the city's portion of the Osage street track elevation work at the Nickel Plate and Lake Shore railroads, has taken another postponement and will not award a contract until Tuesday morning. The matter had been put over from Thursday night until Saturday morning. The board hopes to be able to award a contract on one of these bids so that work may be got under way this fall. Bids were submitted by the Moellering Construction company and the Brooks Construction company. Both were in detail and time is required to work out their figures to a comparison.

Spectacled Athletes

(BY BROWN HOLMES.)

Athletes who wear spectacles in action are few, but some do play their favorite games behind windows and rank among the top-notchers.

The rarest case is that of Lee Meadows, of the St. Louis Nationals. He is the only player in the major leagues who wears specs. He's one of the best young pitchers in the majors.

Watson Washburn, coupled with R. Norris Williams in one of the star tennis teams of the country, wears big, shell-rimmed "specs" as he pounces cat-like from one part of the court to the other. Karl Behr, the New Yorker who recently trimmed Maurice McLoughlin, also wears glasses while playing.

W. E. Phillips, of Chicago, one of the star trapshooters, wears two pairs of specs, one pair to remedy a defect in sight and a pair of colored glasses to shade his eyes from the sun. Phillips won the grand American handicap in 1912.

Dr. Elmer, of Wayne, Pa., two-time archery champion, and Walter J. Travis, for many years a leading golfer, are in the "specs" class.

OUIMET PREPARES TO GIVE UP GULF CROWN

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—Francis Ouimet, champion, removed his crown this afternoon and prepared to hand it to John G. Anderson, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., or Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, sole survivors of the national amateur golf championship tournament which began at the Country club a week ago. East and west were lined up against each other in the final round of 36 holes for the cherished title.

Eastern experts picked Anderson to win, primarily because of his steadiness and consistent performances throughout the tournament. Westerners advanced the claim that Gardner, when playing at top speed—such as he showed when he toppled D. E. Sawyer with ease Thursday—could give Anderson a margin of one hole in 36 and still win. They admitted, however, that the possibilities of Gardner's game cover a much larger range than those of Anderson.

If Gardner should win today it will be the second time he has captured the honor.

PETE DESERVES HIS WREATH OF LAURELS

Bootblack Yearned for Higher Things—Now He's a Pug.

Pete Gugletta, an Italian boy, whose ambition a few years ago was to own a bootblack stand of his own in New Orleans, where he lived, is now bantamweight scrapper of note and the lad against whom Kid Williams will likely have to defend his title in a short time.

Gugletta was shining shoes in the barber shop of a New Orleans hotel when he got the idea of having a stand of his own. But he needed money with which to buy a stand. He decided to try the ring game.

For a starter he was matched with Eddie Coulon, who was also starting out, and the purse amounted to $5, winner take all. They boxed a draw, and did so well they were rematched. This time Gugletta won.

Then he placed himself under the managerial wing of Red Walsh, who had been handling boxers for some time. The first thing Walsh did was to change the lad's name from Pete Gugletta to Kid Herman, and as Kid Herman he has made quite a record, holding his own with all the scrappers of his class.

Herman did so well as a boxer he gave up his ambition to own a shine stand. His new ambition is to be bantamweight champion. If he wins his next bout with Nate Jackson, of Oklahoma, he will meet the winner of the Kid Williams-Kewpie Ertle fight.

NEW CATCHER COUNTED ON TO FILL SHOES OF MEYERS

WENDELL

Chief Meyers, for several years one of the leading catchers and hitters of the major leagues, is about to be let out by the Giants, who are in the process of reconstruction, and the catcher being groomed to take his place is Jim Wendell. McGraw has had the new man on the bench a good deal to give him a chance to study the McGraw style of play, but is now using him as an alternate with Red Dooin.

SIMPLY A CASE OF FRENZIED FINANCE

(BY JACK MURPHY.)

The moneyed men of baseball have set up a squak that resounds from the Golden Gate to the Polo Grounds. They point the accusing finger in the general direction of the deer peepul, and say "Yeuse is to blame. Youise has lost interest and we has lost money."

They talk of baseball war and European war and weather and the movies in their frenzied efforts to explain the loss of interest in the professional game. But they don't get to the root of the thing.

They, the men with the money, are to blame. True, they are spending money, and they are working furiously to win games. But they are on the wrong track. They don't understand that bought pennants are far less interesting than pennants won.

In the good old days the scout scampered and scooted from sand lot to bush, and picked up the wonders of the hour. It was a case of baseball brains when a new player turned up to help a team climb. But those days are past. The fountain pen and check book succeed the scout, and the wealthiest teams buy whom they want from the weaker ones. It becomes a race of dollars and cents rather than of shrewd baseball judgment.

Take as an example. Early last winter Comiskey figured that Eddie Collins was worth fifty thousand dollars to his team. Connie Mack needed the fifty thousand. Eddie shifted teams. That was the start. Now look over the following list of big ball players who have been bought and sold in this new game of finance, since the last world's series, and then see whether there is a good reason the interest is dropping. Here they are:

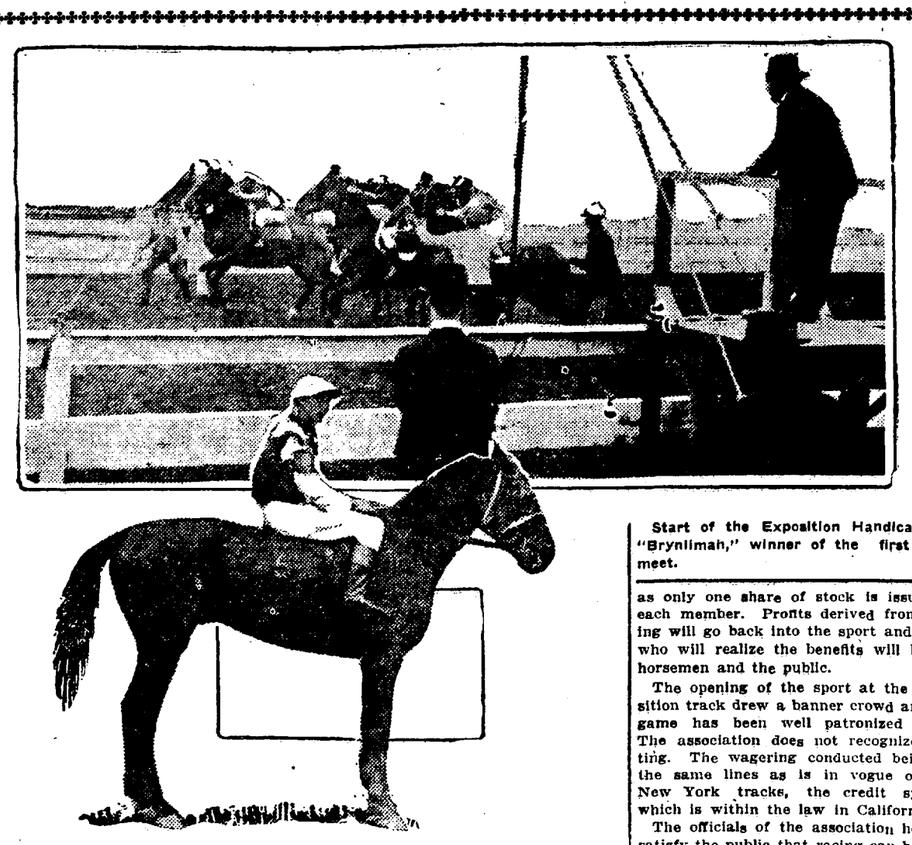
RACING STARTS AGAIN IN CALIFORNIA.



Start of the Exposition Handicap and "Brynlimah," winner of the first day's meet.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 4.—The comeback of racing in California is the most startling surprise the sport-loving folks of this community have experienced in many a day. The sport of kings is here again and every indication points to a revival of the game.

Racing of thoroughbreds in California has been dead in California for more than four years. Laws against betting and bookmakers caused the men who were running the game at that time to deem it unwise to race without the betting feature. In February, 1911, the gates of the Emeryville track were closed.

A bill to allow pari-mutual beeting on racing came before the public at an election more than two years ago, but was defeated.

The chance to hold a race meeting came as a result of the Panama-Pacific International exposition, coming to San Francisco. The officials of the great exposition gave sports and athletics a prominent place on the varied programme arranged. The suggestion of a racing meeting between thoroughbreds was taken up, but to conduct a meeting of this kind it would require men who were familiar with the sport. The matter was approached to several influential men who are interested in racing and the thoroughbred industry and they saw the opportunity to wedge in.

The Golden Gate Thoroughbred Breeders' association was organized and in short time there were fifty of California's most influential citizens. The members of this organization composed men from every prominent walk of life and they associated themselves with practical horsemen who had gained reputations in the past for their honest methods of racing horses.

Charles W. Clark, the California millionaire and sportsman, was elected president and James C. Nealon, a veteran Californian, was named secretary.

There is no chance of any financial gain for any of the members of the association, as only one share of stock is issued to each member. Profits derived from racing will go back into the sport and those who will realize the benefits will be the horsemen and the public.

The opening of the sport at the exposition track drew a banner crowd and the game has been well patronized since. The association does not recognize betting. The wagering conducted being on the same lines as is in vogue on the New York tracks, the credit system, which is within the law in California.

The officials of the association hope to satisfy the public that racing can be conducted on clean lines, and they will endeavor to prove to the citizens of this country that the Golden Gate Thoroughbred Breeders' association is promoting racing for the purpose of improving the breeding industry of the state, as well as affording some good healthy outdoor amusement.

The body hopes to promoting racing next spring and the tentative plans call for a thirty days' meeting in this section and the officials are also hopeful of holding a meeting of the same duration in Los Angeles, making it worth while for the eastern horsemen to ship their charges to the coast. With Denver, Reno and California in the racing field the west would be a good racing field during the fall and winter.

The members of the breeders' association eventually hope to have a bill passed at the legislature which will permit pari-mutual form of betting that has made racing so popular in Kentucky and other places and also to have a racing commission appointed.

MLLE VADIA'S CORPS DE BALLET IN SEASON'S OPENING BILL AT THE NEW PALACE NEXT WEEK.

AT KEITH PALACE

KEITH VAUDEVILLE MONDAY.

New Palace to Open for the Winter Season Labor Day.

With a bill of brilliant new novelties and array of vaudeville attractions new to the minutest detail to Fort Wayne audiences, the New Palace, on Labor day afternoon, will make its 1915-1916 debut to Fort Wayne's vaudeville loving population. This second season of the New Palace's history will be marked by an even broader and grander policy than in the first year. Among the unusual surprises on the initial bill are Mlle. Mayron Vadie and her ravishingly beautiful corps de ballet, who are being presented by Hans S. Linne in a group of lyric classic dances. This act is reputed to be one of the most handsomely staged in vaudeville with an exquisite wardrobe accurate to the smallest detail for the several interpretive dances the young graces indulge themselves in. A comedy sketch with a swing and a go to it is the laugh evoker, "Suspicious of Hubby," in which Joseph Hart, late of the team of Hallen and Hart, is presenting Miss Eva Taylor and company. The sketch was written by Lawrence Grattan, who is appearing in support of Miss Taylor. "The King of Ireland" is the monaker given James B. Donavan, the versatile mick with the unfailing supply of Irish witticisms. Mr. Donavan, supported by Miss Marie Lee, will present his latest composite of fun, song and dance entitled, "Doing Well, Thank You." Fresh from the New York Palace the Derkin dog and monkey pantomime, "Dogville on a Busy Day," will interest and amuse Fort Wayne just as it did New York. Moore, Gardner and Rose, a trio of mellow voiced young men, with a fund of new gags and jests; Young and Cummings, the brilliant dancing and singing entertainers; the Brightons in a novelty rag picking act and the Keith pictorial review will complete this opening bill.

The seat reservations for the entire season now are being made at the New Palace box office.

WHAT HAPPENED TO MARY.

Delightful Comedy to Be Presented by Temple Players.

Opening Monday afternoon, the Temple Theater Stock Players will present the fascinating little comedy, "What Happened to Mary," an appealing little play, built from the famous "Mary" stories written by Owen Davis for serial publication in a big periodical several years ago. It is an old fashioned love story dealing with a series of incidents in the life of an orphan girl who was left on a lonely island in Chesapeake bay by some men who thus thought to rob her of her patrimony. The girl's yearnings for a broader life than that afforded by the island and her refusal longer to live with her miserly old uncle and soporific aunt goes to New York where a series of adventures that finally bring her back home discouraged ensue. Just what did not happen to Mary through Providence has happened to scores of other unsophisticated girls ignorant of city life. The characters in the little comedy drama are human, strikingly so, and the motive is healthily untainted. Mr. Maurice Jenkins is back from his vacation and will appear in "What Happened to Mary" as Captain Joggifer, the old sea dog who gave Mary the rudiments of a crude education. It is the captain that aids Mary to escape from the island and get to New York.

The Temple Players will tonight present the drama of truth, Cosmo Hamilton's striking presentment of a strange social condition that has grown up among us entitled "The Blindness of Virtue."

AT THT EMPRESS

The regular season of the Empress theater next week with a dashing musical frivolity, "The Winning Widow With Her Winning Widows" as the opening number. With its winning and competent cast of characters it promises to be one of the best burlesque attractions ever seen in this city. The chorus is composed of a troupe of ladies whose beauty was the first characteristics that was considered before being chosen by the management.

The management was extremely careful in selecting every member of the company and the leading fun maker, the Winning Widows, and the oriental dancer were chosen from a score of people who were considered the cream productions of the buresque stage.

Princes Ionia, the oriental dancer, who will present a new and original dance, is considered one of the best of her kind on the road today and has danced before many notables of the world. The perfect development of every muscle in her body is considered as marvelous by many authorities. She has gained a national reputation in a few short seasons.

Nothing more can be said of the music of this show than that it is composed of some of the newest and most catchy airs of the day, being long remembered after the troupe moves away.

As in former years the matinee begins at 2:30 and evening show at 8:15. Popular prices prevail.

BEATRICE DAKIN, "THE WINNING WIDOW"

Miss Dakin is "The Winning Wido w" in the burlesque of that name, which opens the regular Empress season next week.

Labor Day at Robison Park

Sion S. Bass and Lawton Wayne Posts, the Ladies of the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps will be the special guests of Robison Park on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6th. There will be a grand parade of Veterans and their auxiliary organizations. The line-up, two abreast, will begin at 3:30 p. m. in front of the pavilion. Every veteran and every member of the Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. will carry an American flag. Headed by the Elks' band, the beloved national heroes will march to the theater, where the exercises will be held. Every old soldier in Allen county is especially invited on Veterans' Day, Monday, Sept. 6th, as this is the golden anniversary of peace within the union. The parade last year was a wonderful spectacle. The sight of two hundred and fifty old soldiers, each one carrying a flag and bowed down with the weight of years, brought cheers and tears from thousands of spectators. The flag never meant more than when carried by these old heroes of ours and we never fully realized before how much we loved the men of the sixties. Manager Williams has personally invited every old soldier of whom he has knowledge. Should any veteran have been omitted let him send his name and address to Manager Williams, Robison Park, at once.

often lies in the brassiere. Hundreds of thousands of women wear the Bien-Jolie Brassiere for the reason that they regard it as necessary as a corset. It supports the bust and back and gives the figure the youthful outline fashion decrees.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

At Orpheum Today in "Marrying Money." Robert Warwick, Monday.

Clara Kimball Young demonstrates her thorough eligibility to play roles of a widely divergent nature when she creates the delightful leading role in "Marrying Money," a captivating five-part comedy-drama of smart society life seen on the screen at the Orpheum theater today. Miss Young has the assistance of a wonderful cast, including the good-looking young film star, Chester Barnett, at present the most popular juvenile lead in pictures.

"Marrying Money" tells with alternate touches of high humor and intense drama of Mrs. Niles, a wealthy society dowager who wishes to marry her daughter, Mildred (Clara Kimball Young) to a psuedo-count, under the impression that the foreigner is the scion of a wealthy family. But the daughter inadvenently marries a young American boy. The mercenary mamma is on the verge of having the marriage annuled when she learns that the Yankee is due to fall heir to a large sum of Woodrow Wilson dollars, so she discreetly offers the parental blessing.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"ROMANCE OF ELAINE" ENDS.

Final Chapter at Jefferson With Mutual Masterpiece and Keystone Comedy.

The "I Told You So's" will have their inning today, for the final episode of the mazing serial-drama, "The Romance of Elaine" terminates in a blaze of glory and the avaricious followers of the fortunes of the blond-tressed Elaine will know ere eventide who the mysterious Mr. X is, where Craig Kennedy is, and the identity of the man who leads the fair heroine to the altar.

The additional film features of the day manifest themselves as a four-part Mutual Masterpiece, "The Girl From His Town," starring beautiful Marguerite Fischer and C. Elliott Griffen. This clever screen romance is adapted from a story which appeared recently in one of the big national magazines, written by Marie Van Vorst.

The last number is the usual double part Keystone comedy, starring a group of the inimitable Keystones. These comedies have made a distinctive name for themselves all over the world as the most highly developed types of a slapjack humor, and the fact that they are included in the programs of all the first class theaters is an indication of their superior worth.

MISSHAPED TOE FIXES IDENTITY

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—By a misshaped toe and a birthmark on her body, Mrs. G. E. Kostadt had established today her identity as Anna Mooney, who was kidnaped from her parents in this city thirty-one years ago, when she was five years old, kept by Chinese for several years and rescued by police from a trunk in which she was hidden.

After her rescue from the Chinese, Anna was adopted by a Portuguese family. Her foster-mother died when she was 14 years old and four years later Anna married Kostadt. James Mooney, her father, and others offered rewards aggregating $2,000 at the time of the child's disappearance. Mooney and his wife died several years ago, but four sisters and a brother are here to welcome their long-lost sister.

ADMIT CASE AGAINST WOMAN IS WEAK ONE

Confessions of the Negroes Alone Will Not Convict Mrs. Mohr.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 4.—The representatives of the prosecution and defense in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr, accused by three negroes of having hired them to murder her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, bent their energies today in seeking to strengthen their respective sides. The officials of the town of Barrington and the county of Bristol, in whose jurisdiction Dr. Mohr was shot, admitted today that so far their case against the woman was a weak one. They pointed out that something more than the confessions of the negroes was necessary for a conviction, for confessions tending to incriminate other persons have no standing in the courts of Rhode Island.

Barrington police officers were searching for two men, who it was understood, had heard a conversation between two motorcyclists on the night of the shooting. Two of the negroes who have admitted their complicity in the physician's death, rode to the scene of the crime on motorcycles. Arthur Cushing, attorney for Mrs. Mohr, continued his quest for a will of the doctor, previous searches having failed to produce anything accept a document which, Mr. Cushing stated, could not be probated. It is understood that in this document Dr. Mohr sought to deprive his wife of all interest in his estate.

Charles M. Mohr, of New York, one of two children of Dr. Mohr by a former marriage, said today he did not think there would be any disagreement in the Mohr family over the disposition of the estate in the absence of a will. He said he and his step-mother had virtually agreed upon a division of the property, which he estimated to be worth $400,000. He expected to receive $80,000 and his sister, Mrs. Ernest Marr, of Baltimore, a like amount. The rest of the estate, he said, would probably go to Mrs. Mohr and her two children.

OPEN A LONG FIGHT ON MARION SALOONS

Drys Expect Contest to Be Carried Up to the Supreme Court.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 4.—The "drys" filed a remonstrance yesterday afternoon to bar saloons from Center township, outside of the city of Marion. The township recently voted "wet" by 398. Marion is "dry." The remonstrance carries 2,872 names, 2,549 being necessary if the whole township is entitled to remonstrance. The applications for saloon licenses and the remonstrance will come before the county commissioners Tuesday or Wednesday.

A long legal fight is predicted, which will end in the supreme court. The "drys" contend that although only a portion of Center township voted, the township as a whole must remonstrate, because the Proctor law expressly provides that the Moore remonstrance law and the Nicholson law are neither repleted, modified nor amended. The township includes parts of the city of Marion. The "wets" assert the right to remonstrate belongs only to voters in the election. If the signers living in Marion are excluded the remonstrance is not sufficient. The "wets" declare the "drys" do not expect the remonstrance to stand, but hope to use it as a basis for a legal fight to delay the opening of the saloons within the two years. Center township includes the National Military home.

CHARLES M'CULLOCH.

Charles McCulloch, president of the Hamilton National bank, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary Friday, and was the recipient of a beautiful gold-headed cane, presented to him by employes of the bank. On the cane was inscribed the following words: "1840-1915, to Charles McCulloch, from the employes of the Hamilton National bank."

Mr. McCulloch is one of the oldest bankers in the state. His father, Hugh McCulloch, was the first comptroller of the currency of the United States, which was during the administration of President Lincoln.

KAYSER CASE UP TO U. S. AUTHORITIES

Coroner at Gary Unable to Determine Slayers of German Pastor.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 4.—Further investigation into the murder of Rev. Edmund Kayser may be left entirely to the federal authorities, according to Coroner F. W. Smith, who today completed his examination of witnesses with the rehearing of Mrs. August Schultz, who, with her husband, was the first to discover the pastor's body by the roadside. Coroner Smith has come to the conclusion that the persons who wrote the threatening letters to the pastor are connected with the murder.

"It's no wup to the federal authorities to discover the slayers," said the coroner. "They have means at their disposal by which they can trace the writers of the threatening missives that would be useless for me to attempt single handed. I think when the writer is located more than half the battle is won in locating the murderers."

Chief of Police Pontus Heintz has not given up the search. He declared he had clews which might prove fruitful.

Federal authorities are still working in Gary with much secrecy. It was learned today that threatening letters had been received by private citizens who are lending their assistance in locating the murderers of the Rev. Mr. Kayser.

NORTH AMERICAN BUILDING

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 4.—Today's short market session was more or less perfunctory with dealings at low ebb. The turnover in the first hour barely exceeded 50,000 shares, with Colorado fuel the chief feature at a gain of 1¾ to 47¼. Coal shares and trunk lines were taken up later, Norfolk & Western, Western Maryland, C. & O., and Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke, together with other of that class scoring irregular advances. Real leaders like U. S. Steel, Union Pacific and Reading were compatatively dormant, though making general improvement. War shares were variable, moderate gains predominating. The closing was strong. Bonds were irregular.

The lightest trading of the week attended today's operations with few changes of importance. Leading railways were completely neglected. War shares moved sluggishly with one point gains each for Bethlehem Steel at 285, Crucible Steel at 83 and Goodrich at 62 with a decline of as much for Lackawanna Steel at 68½. U. S. Steel, American Car and Colorado Fuel rose minor fractions while similar declines for Pressed Steel Car and American Can. London's market for Americans was extremely dull.

For Indiana, Ohio and Lower Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

An area of low pressure covers the country from the Canadian northwest southward to Arizona, another low area lies to the south of Florida. In the interior districts to the east of the Rockies the pressure is high, with the crest to the north of the lake region. This distribution of pressure has given local showers in the central and northern Rocky mountain region, east gulf and south Atlantic states, and generally fair weather elsewhere.

Generally seasonal temperatures prevail this morning.

P. M'DONOUGH,

Veterans' Day at Robison Park

Labor Day at Robison Park will be Veterans' Day. The veterans of the civil war, the Woman's Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. will be the special guests. These heroes of ours will march as in the days of old. Their weapons will not be those of war, however, but the flag for which they fought and bled. It will be an inspiring sight to see these Boys in Blue marching again. It will awaken our patriotism. It will cause our hearts to swell with pride. It will enlarge our appreciation of the wonderful heritage they have bestowed upon us. The veterans are our heroes. They fought for us. They sacrificed for us. They willingly gave up all that life holds most dear that Old Glory might live and continue to wave over an united people. They are growing old. Soon they shall have passed on into the Great Beyond. Labor Day shall be their day at Robison Park. We will stand with uncovered heads as they pass by. We will lift up our voices and cheer that they may know how much we appreciate them.

"They are camping near the sunset;
the shadows are growing long.
Just a step across the river, be brave—
my boys—be strong.
Each day the muffled drum and the silent funeral tread
Reminds us that a comrade is numbered with the dead."

"We'll wrap the flag around you boys,
a nation's love and pride,
Will memorize your sterling worth that
time nor death can hide.
In the city of the dead, we'll strew rare
flowers in May,
A nation's love will follow you when
Uncle Sam is old and gray."

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

SURPRISE FOR GRANDCHILDREN.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Glick gave a very pleasant surprise, Thursday evening, on their two eldest granddaughters, Imojene Robinette and Reba Fairchilds, of Ohio. The affair was in honor of Imojene's sixteenth birthday and Reba's twelfth birthday. The evening was spent in playing games on the lawn by the younger guests, while the older ones had their share of fun in the house. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Glick, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Zent and children, Howard and Margaret; Mr. and Mrs. Harve Robinett and Gusta, Ford Pauline and Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Grant Copper; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Glick and Hollis, Carl, Delmar and Eloise; Mrs. Willie Berry and son, Everette; Mr. and Mrs. Will Preisler and daughter, Emma; Joseph Putman; Goldie Zeller; Andrew Hatfield; Ellen Hatfield; Loren and Elva Cowan; Russell Taylor; Luella Berry; Imojene Robinette; Bessie and Esther Pequinot; Harry, Hattie and Irene Taylor; Florence and Ralph Shisfeckle; Guy and Paul Putman; Melvin and Irene, Lloyd and Russell Ferrel; Doris Butler; Winnie Jeffries; Paul Hayes; Lucile, George and Albert Flaugh; Paul Druely, Reba and Donald Fairchilds and Gertrude Robinette.

WEDDING CAUSED SURPRISE.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 4.—Causing general surprise Friday, came the announcement that Miss Louise Hobrock, daughter of Mrs. Sophia Hobrock, and Mr. Herman Oetting, of Allen county, were married Thursday evening. The bride has been for several years one of the popular and capable clerks of the Boston store and worked at the store yesterday without giving a hint to her friends of the nearness of her wedding. A very few, not more than four persons, however, including the couple, who were the attendants at the wedding, were informed in advance of the happy event. Mr. Oetting accompanied by his sister, Miss Lena Oetting, and Paul Trier, of Fort Wayne, came from his home and were joined here by Miss Hobrock and Miss Lettie Lang, who is the most intimate friend of the bride in this city, and the party went to Rev. Arthur Hintz, by whom the ceremony was performed.

INSANE MAN AT HOME.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4.—Silas Herald, who escaped from Longcliff asylum a few days ago, bobbed up at the home of his brother, Cleveland Herald, which is also the home of his mother, in Noble county, on Wednesday of this week. It is probable that the fellow walked a considerable portion or all of the way. Sheriff Egolf was notified by relatives in Noble county of his arrival, Friday morning, and they asked that Silas should be permitted to stay with them as he seemed to be better. They reported that he was out mowing weeds with a scythe Friday morning and they would keep him if the authorities would permit. Sheriff Egolf informed them that he had no authority to make a ruling in such a case, and he immediately wrote to the Logansport authorities and asked them what they desired to do.

MONROE LADY IS DEAD.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 4.—After an illness of several months, that began with a stroke of paralysis, Mrs. Margaret L. Lobenstein, wife of L. F. Lobenstein, a well known resident of Monroe, passed away this morning at the family home. Mrs. Lobenstein, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Martin, was born in Ashland county, O., November 8, 1850. She was married to L. F. Lobenstein on December 4, 1871, and for 12 years the family had resided at Monroe. Mrs. Lobenstein is survived by the husband, four sons and one daughter. The sons are Lawrence L. Lobenstein, of Fort Wayne; Ephriam W. Lobenstein, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Atho Lobenstein, of Monroe, and Walter Lobenstein of Fort Wayne. The daughter is Miss Bertha Hendricks, of Monroe.

WAS WOODBURN MURDER SUSPECT

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 4.—That there's food in whisky Mike Sullivan, ordinary tramp, firmly believes. Last night at 6 o'clock Sullivan was placed under arrest by Chief of Police Philip Baker and Desk Sergeant John Diffenbaugh as he was lying along the traction line near Brebaugh's island west of Huntington. They found Mike asleep with an almost empty whisky jug serving as a pillow. On the way to the station the sunny Irishman related part of his stormy life history to the police. He declared that when Marshal Columbus Croy was murdered in Woodburn several years ago he was picked up as the first suspect, but that his alibi, showing that he was 500 miles away when the crime was committeed, served to obtain his release. He declared he had not had a bite to eat since Monday noon, but the whisky served to take the place of food with him.

COLUMBIA CITY LADS ARRESTED.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4.—William E. Pence, Quay Rollins and Cecil E. Mowery, all of this city, were arrested in Warsaw for train riding. The young men boarded the train at Fort Wayne and soon after the fireman and the engineer became aware of their presence. As a consequence they sent word on ahead to Warsaw and when the train pulled in there the police were on the scene ready to give chase to the boys. They were riding on the bumpers and when the train stopped the police made a dash for the boys, but they eluded them and started to run. They were captured, however, after having ran several blocks. Lieut. Strausser, of the Pennsylvania detective force, was on the scene and was determined to push the case.

BAD GRAIN ON THE MARKET.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4.—John Brumbaugh, weighmaster at the Pennsylvania elevator, says wheat is coming in in all sorts of conditions, but the worst is that which was threshed during the rainy weather and thrown into bins and allowed to lay there without stirring. As a result it is musty, and while the berries are large and plump, the musty condition ruins it for flour and it can only be used for feed. Most of the wheat that has been threshed since the dry spell set in is in pretty good condition. Wheat and oats are both coming to market pretty freely now.

PIERCETON MAN SEEKS DIVORCE.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 4.—Because he strenuously objected to his wife taking trips to other cities with other men, Raymond Ryan, pool room keeper at Pierceton, has filed suit in the circuit court for a divorce from Isabelle Ryan. As a complaint Ryan stated that his wife insisted in associating with Emma Apoll and her brother, Henry, after he had objected. Ryan claims that his wife, in company with these two persons, made numerous trips to towns in Indiana and Michigan and that he has entreated her to remain at home with him and her two children, Dorothy and Eugene.

DATE OF REUNION CHANGED.

Montpelier, Ind., Sept. 4.—President W. W. Adams has announced that the plans for the soldiers' county reunion have been changed somewhat from the ones made by the committee in its recent meeting and that the date has been changed from September 9 to September 15.

At that time it was decided to hold the reunion on September 9. However, it has been found since that the state fair will be in session at that time and perhaps the attendance would be decreased. Also the Thirty-fourth Indiana is planning to hold a reunion on the 9th and a number would want to attend from this county.

BIG FIRE LOSS NEAR WOODBURN.

Woodburn, Ind., Sept. 4.—C. W. Bainbridge, who is a progressive farmer living three miles east of Woodburn, sustained a heavy loss by fire, when his large barn burned. Nine head of thoroughbred horses perished in the flames, forty tons of hay, a new silo which had only been completed a few weeks, together with many tools and other valuables. It is said that $10,000 will not cover the loss to Mr. Bainbridge. Spontaneous combustion was the cause of the fire, the explosion being heard a great distance away. Two thousand dollars insurance was carried on the barn.

LAGRANGE MAN PASSES ON.

Lagrange, Ind., Sept. 4.—Jacob Spearow passed away Friday at his home on Grant street. He was born October 15, 1841, in Tuscarawas county, Ohio. He was married to Mercelia Smith August 25, 1867, at Orland. To this union were born two children, Mrs. Hattie Spearow Cole, of Petoskey, Michigan, surviving. Forty-two years ago he united with the United Brethren church and remained a member of that church as long as it was an organization in Lagrange, then he united with the Presbyterian church.

ANSWERS AD; GETS HUSBAND.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 4.—Residents in the region of Mahon are given credit for the statement that Mrs. Mary McKinsey, of that vicinity, has gone west to Oakland, Cal., where she will meet and marry a man with whom she has been corresponding through the medium of a matrimonial agency. It is reported that Mrs. McKinsey left for Oakland on last Monday. She is a widow and leaves several children by a former marriage in this state.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ARM BROKEN BY AUTO'S KICK.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 4.—Morris Hoover, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoover, of one mile south of the city on the Warren road, broke his right arm near the wrist when the engine of an automobile that he was cranking back-fired. The wrist bones were both broken, the boy sustaining a Colles fracture.

ANNEXATION PLAN KILLED.

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 4.—The Garrett annexation case heard before Judge Bratton early in the present term came to an end Friday when a decision against the city of Garrett was handed down. Under the law their can be no appeal from this judgment. The decision which prevents the annexation of the territory north of Garrett means that Garrett will not be allowed another saloon. If the decision had been favorable to the city the population would have been increased to a number that would allow another thirst parlor. This case aroused considerable interest in Garrett.

WOMAN GETS HER CHILDREN.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 4.—Mrs. Charles Wolverton, of this city, was allowed to keep her two small children after the board of children's guardians had concluded to take them away from her. The woman, it is alleged, has been neglecting the children, but when the members of the board went to her home to get the youngsters, she pleaded so hard and stated that they were soon going to Pikesville, O., to join her husband, that she was allowed to keep the children.

THE BANNER YIELD OF OATS.

North Manchester, Ind., Sept. 4.—John Myers, residing four and one-half miles east of North Manchester, claims the banner oats yield of the season. Mr. Myers yesterday threshed 1,024 bushels of oats from an eleven-acre field, an average of ninety-three bushels to the acre. Mr. Myers said he endeavored to obtain 100 bushels to the acre. The oats was all cut before the steady downpour of rain started that proved so detrimental to the oats crop.

GIRL BREAKS ARM SECOND TIME.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 4.—When Bernice Michaels, 7 years old, daughter of Henry Michaels, of east of the Greenwood church, fell down and broke her right arm yesterday, it was the second fracture within nine weeks. About two months ago the little girl fell from a pole and fractured her right arm. The injury had scarcely healed when she fell down while running and suffered another broken bone.

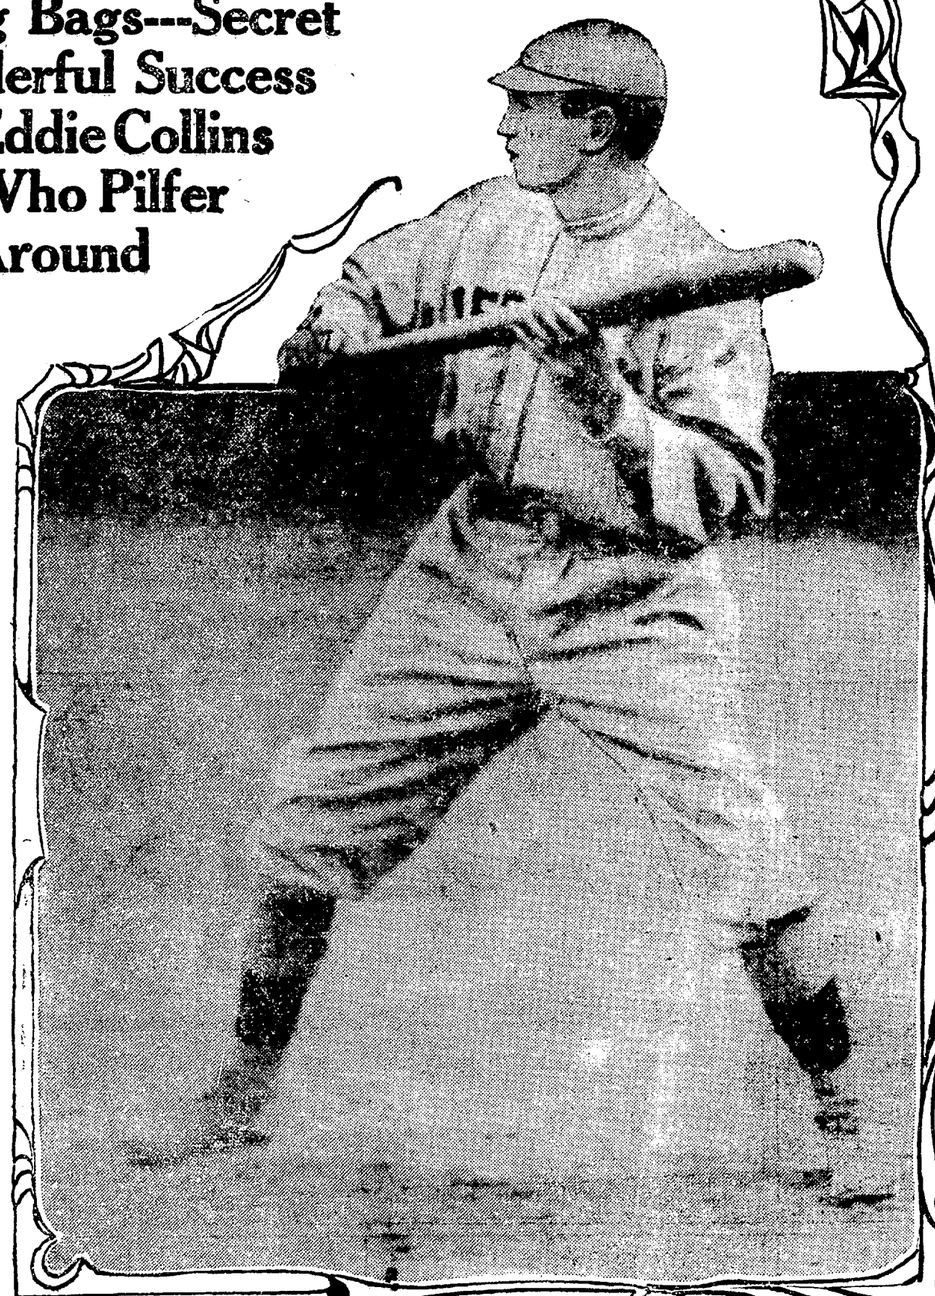
Winged Mercury On The Base Lines

Many Baseball Games Are Won by Stars Whose Specialty Is Stealing Bags---Secret of the Wonderful Success of Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and Others Who Pilfer Their Way Around the Sacks

BOB BESCHER



TRIS SPEAKER

At the rate he has been running it is considered likely Tyrus Cobb will steal 100 bases this season, thereby smashing all modern records.—News Item.

To steal a base, aye there's the thing, in a tight game where one run is needed to tie the score or to win.

How many men can do it with any degree of consistency?

Given an adept catcher and a pitcher who holds his man to the bag and you can count on the fingers of your two hands the men in the major leagues who have better than a 50 per cent of stealing a base when such a baseball commodity may mean victory.

Base stealing is one of the finest of baseball arts and one that is most over-looked by the baseball public.

That public sees a pitcher whirl and throw the ball to the initial sack time and again with a man occupying that sack in a tight game during the latter innings. It becomes bored by the process.

"Oh, pitch the ball," howls vox populi.

Yet in this very throw to first base the pitcher is curtailing the lead of the base runner, or holding him to the bag, so if he steals his catcher may have a better chance of throwing the runner out.

The reader must understand that it is not until a base runner has reached second base that he is considered in "scoring position."

A single will not score a man from first. It takes a long single to so much as move the base runner to third. But from second a base runner going with the pitch easily can score upon a single, and it is for that reason that the pitcher, the catcher, the second baseman and the short-stop fight bitterly in a close game to keep a base runner from pilfering the keystone sack.

SOME BASE STEALERS.

With a stolen base apt to win the game there are no more dangerous base runners than Ty Cobb of Detroit, Eddie Collins of the White Sox, Tris Speaker of the Red Sox, George Burns of the Giants and Fritzie Maisel of the New York Yankees.

There are other great base runners, too, including Milan of Washington, Bescher of St. Louis and others who have stood out in the base running statistics.

But in the above-named men may be found all the qualities necessary to base stealing success and the different styles of the men is an interesting thing to study.

Cobb's cat-like lead, his wonderful "break" as the pitcher's arm moves and the tremendous vitality of his hooked slide—which he executes in three styles—perhaps make him the most vicious of base runners.

It is the ninth inning and the score is tied. There are two out and Cobb has reached first while Samuel Crawford, most wonderful of sluggers, lazily swings his bat in the box.

It is a mortal certainty Cobb is going to steal second. The opposing pitcher and catcher stiffen. Cobb leads generously off first and, turning, the pitcher snaps the ball to the first baseman.

But he doesn't catch Cobb!

The Georgia Peach has hooked back to first and is upon his feet smiling as the first baseman returns the ball to the pitcher. Again he leads and again the pitcher snaps the ball to first. But Cobb is back again and safely.

MAISEL

STICKING TO FIRST.

The pitcher really has little or no hope of catching Cobb off the base, but it is his intention to make this mercurial base runner stick as close to first as possible that when he does start the catcher will have a better chance to throw him out at second.

Twice the pitcher pitches to Crawford, each time hurriedly. Each is a ball known as a "pitch out." Were Cobb to steal on these pitches the catcher would have an equal chance of throwing him out. But Cobb doesn't. He is too crafty

SAM CRAWFORD

The third ball the pitcher must get over and Cobb knows it. The twirler hugs the ball to his chest and with scant wind-up again hurls the ball plate-ward. With the slightest, almost imperceptible movement toward the batter, Cobb breaks for second like a flash.

The catcher has the ball and now it is a race between man and throw.

The catcher's throw spins forcefully and low toward second where the short-stop waits ready to catch it. Cobb is going like the wind and with a twisting slide of his body he hooks the bag with the toe of his left boot—which is farthest from the shortstop—and the infielder catching the ball makes a futile stab at the Peach.

Cobb has stolen second and now a single from Crawford's bat will win this very much desired game of baseball. For the sake of our narrative let us assume Crawford hits over second on a line for a single. Cobb scores "standing up" as ball writers say, meaning without effort.

The ball game is won!

Victory made possible by one stolen base!

IT IS SPEED —AFOOT.

Speed afoot is necessary to base running prowess and while all great base runners are fast men not all fast men are great base runners.

Shotton of the St. Louis Browns, Strunk of the Philadelphia Athletics and Robertson of the New York Giants are three of the fastest men in the world going to first base—faster than any great base runner the writer can think of—and yet no one of these three is more than a mediocre base runner.

The reason? They lack wholly that intuitive power which gives to the good base runner the "break." In short, instead of breaking toward second base with the pitch, as Cobb, Collins, Burns, et al., do, they break toward the bag after the pitch has been started and thus lose that valuable fraction of a second, which means the difference between 25 and 50 stolen bases a season.

None is cleverer than Eddie Collins in breaking for a bag. Collins is the most naively deceiving base runner in the big show today. Whereas most base runners take as long a lead as they can get Collins hangs near first base, thus befooling the pitcher into the idea that he (Collins) is not going to steal. Hence the pitcher takes longer in his unwarranted sense of security in making his pitch. As he begins the pitch Collins breaks like a flash for second and the longer time the pitcher has taken in his delivery gives Collins a bigger advantage than as though he took a long lead and were being "held on" by the pitcher.

OTHER PILFERERS.

Burns of New York is a fast man and a tricky slider. Tris Speaker of the Red Sox is no winged Mercury, but his wonderful "break" and his illusive slides rank him among the elite of base running.

Speaker evolved a new slide last season in which he slid completely past the bag behind it. Then turning on his side he clutched the bag from the nether side with his hand. This was new. The second baseman or shortstop with the ball at the bag ahead of Speaker more often than not found no one to touch. Speaker had slid behind the bag. As they lunged at him across the sack he grasped the far corner of the bag with his hand and was safe.

Milan of Washington and Maisel of the Yanks have had the distinction of leading the American league in base running. Each is a consummate base thief. They have speed, but more important by far they get the "breaks."

Base stealing is a beautiful art if it is unappreciated by many.

Ordinarily a base runner will lead his league if he steals 70 cushions a season which is less than one to two games. Cobb had stolen 62 bases by the first of August.

First Patient Leaves Fort Recovery Camp Entirely Cured of Tuberculosis

Fort Recovery camp, less than six months old, has discharged its first patient, cured. Miss Grace Aurand, who a year ago developed tuberculosis, this week left the institution thoroughly well and strong, with no trace of the disease, and in better physical condition than 95 per cent. of the women and girls one meets each day.

Pure air, rest, wholesome food—that's the whole story. There was no electric treatment, no thought holding, no medly of medicines. The simple life and rest did the work.

About a year ago Miss Aurand developed tuberculosis. Instead of taking to her bed and calling upon the saints and the patent medicine advertisers for help, she buckled down to the task of saving herself from the disease.

The Anti-Tuberculosis league came to her assistance, and within a very short time she was at the Rockville sanitarium. She remained at this, the state hospital, until the completion of the first group of little cottages at Fort Recovery camp, Allen county's new sanitarium, and then was brought here.

When she came here she still coughed, she still ran a temperature. But she settled down at her new home and lived the quiet life her attendants prescribed, and she rapidly gained in health and strength. Her temperature became normal and she lost even the slightest trace of a cough. Then regular tests were made to find symptoms of the disease and there were none. But rather than discharge her before they were positive that she was cured, the attendants kept her at the hospital till all danger of immediate re-occurrence was past and this week she was discharged cured.

A Model Patient.

That a patient who lives according to the rules of the camp, who does her utmost to help the attendants in their work of saving her, has a much better opportunity than does the patient who, is constantly discovering flaws, is proven in this case. Miss Aurand was a model patient. It was her constant cheerfulness and her willingness to abide by the camp regulations that had a great deal to do with her rapid and complete recovery.

Other Patients Recovering.

Of the dozen or so patients confined in the camp there are several who within a short time will be able to leave, fully cured. Some of them have gone to the hospital when they were in fairly well advanced stages of the disease, and the good nursing and good care taken of them has done so much that they are showing almost daily improvement. At least two of the occupants of the little cottages who a few months ago ran high temperatures and coughed constantly, now have normal temperatures at most times and have coughed little or none. It is hoped that at least several of them will be able to leave before the first of the year, and there are others who, should they continue to improve as rapidly as they are doing now, will be able to return to their homes before spring.

The methods employed at the camp are simplicity itself. Late rising and early bedgoing, and rest—rest—rest—that is the cure. The patients live naturally and are allowed to perform no work, are not allowed any physical exercise.

Each afternoon from 1 to 3 every member of the Fort Recovery barracks takes to his or her bed and most of them have trained themselves to sleep these two hours. Those who are able to sleep twelve hours a day are recovering the most rapidly, and it is an established fact that sleep is one of the fundamental principles in the successful treatment of tuberculosis.

Concerning Mother Dukeman.

The quartermaster at Fort Recovery is Mother Dukeman. She is the main gazabo in the house, and it is up to her to keep it in the order a hospital camp should be kept in. And what's more, she does it. A Herculean task is hers, that of caring rof the inner man and inner woman three times a day, and the constant care of the farm house that serves as an administration building for the camp. She's just about as important a portion of Fort Recovery as the roof, and they could get along without one as easily as the other.

Mrs. Dukeman has been the housekeeper at the camp since the beginning, and has proved herself a blessing at the place. She has had previous experience in this line of work, and knows well what's to be done and how to do it. But as a mother to the youngsters she shines even brighter than her pots and kettles in the kitchen. A real mother is Mother Dukeman, with a heart as big as she is, and she sings to Baby Joe when it's his bedtime and she greets the weary wanderer on a hot afternoon with a hospitality that doesn't often grow north of Mason and Dixon's line.

The Camp Buildings.

Fort Recovery is located eight miles north of the city on the Huntertown road, or rather on a side road a quarter of a mile off the main highway. At the top of a little rise with a big barn behind and little old apple trees scattered over the lawn, the converted farm house that is an administration building is the center of the grouping of "shacks." It is a weather-beaten old house of the vintage of a quarter-century ago. But the interior is finished and furnished in modern hospital fashion.

With the little money they had the county commissioners and the Anti-Tuberculosis society have done real wonders here. Modern plumbing, everything that is necessary to make the camp wholly sanitary, is there. Electric lights are coming very quickly, and before winter closes down nothing more could be wished than is had in the camp house. That is, nothing more could be wished from so meager an expenditure.

The dozen little cottages scattered over the lawn are far too few to accommodate the scores of sufferers who are clambering for admission to the hospital. But those that are there are well built and well furnished, and squat in the sunlight in several rows. Each cottage is occupied, and as rapidly as new ones can be built there is a waiting list of new patients to move in.

Expert in Charge.

In charge of the work is Miss Lorna Duhm, a young woman who has made a study of the disease from its every angle, and who is an expert in this line of work. A trained nurse for a number of years before she went into tuberculosis work as a specialty, she is decidedly well qualified for the position she fills.

Miss Irene Byron, field secretary and visiting nurse for the local Anti-Tuberculosis league, visits the camp at appointed times and assists in the work there. Dr. E. A. Crull, of the Tuberculosis league, and a score of other Fort Wayne physicians, are regular visitors at the camp, and hardly a day passes but what one doctor or another will drop in to see the patients and to look after the camp.

But, returning to the case of Miss Aurand, the first cure. She is typical of cases of tuberculosis, which can be cured and are cured in camps similar to Fort Recovery all over the country. Care and rest and air and good food—these are the cures for tuberculosis, the only cures. The case of Miss Aurand is not peculiar, it is merely a local example of what can be done by the proper application of correct methods.

Fort Wayne now can accommodate about a dozen tubercular patients at its new hospital. It should have an institution to shelter several hundred. Every moment the erection of the new hospital is postponed, counts a moment wasted in the saving of lives. The community should appreciate this fact, and business men and professional men, the citizen body as a whole should get behind the movement for a new, a larger hospital, and push the work to completion. No more worthy cause ever has come before the citizens of Fort Wayne, and with the movement well under way it behooves the thinking people of the community to get together and boost for a new building—a Fort Recovery that is large enough to accommodate all the sufferers from the disease. It's up to the people to save the lives that are theirs to save. Come on, let's get busy.

FACING DEFEAT, BUT APPRECIATES HONOR

Third Regiment Given a Place of Distinction at Indianapolis.

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 4.—"It is not often that an army is informed a week in advance of predestined defeat and the exact manner of its accomplishment," said Col. A. L. Kihlman, commanding the Third regiment of Indiana militia, today, "but such is the experience of the Third regiment, Indiana national guard, and Battery A, of Indianapolis, which have been designated by officers of the army to occupy the entrenched position in the great war spectacle at Indianapolis on Monday and meet the attack of the most complete and varied fighting force ever assembled in America, a force at least three times the numerical strength and having even more of a preponderance of strength by reason of the modern implements of warfare which they will include.

"Arrayed against this one lone regiment of infantry and one lone battery of artillery will be two regiments of infantry, Second and provisional regiments, two batteries of artillery (B, of Purdue university, and C, of the city of Lafayette), seven troops of cavalry, including Troop B, Fifth United States cavalry, troops of Ohio cavalry from Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland and Toledo, and the Black Horse troop from Culver military academy, a squadron of aeroplanes for scouting and dropping bombs, a squadron of armored cars, built by the Pathfinder Motor Car company, and armed with Gatling guns, a motorcycle corps, a company of bicycle scouts and an engineer battalion from Culver military academy who will construct bridges to cross streams, demolish villages as the attack advances and operate trench mortars and land mines to be fired by electricity.

"It is safe to say that even the large maneuvers of the regular army have never seen so complete a force as will attack the Third regiment next Monday, but its officers and men are cheerful and have not even made their wills.

"The schedule prepared by officers of the army provides for the opening of the battle by a scouting expedition of the aeroplane squadron to discover the exact position of the defending force. This will be followed by an artillery duel between eight modern field guns of the attacking force and the four guns with the Third regiment.

The infantry of the attack will then advance until its skirmishers meet the outposts of the defenders and the entire line of the attack will move forward until the line of wire entanglements is passed and the first line of treaches is reached, the defenders falling back to their second line of trenches.

"The defenders, from their second line of trenches, will make a counter-attack with fixed bayonets, but will be overwhelmed by a flank attack of the seven troops of cavalry and the Pathfinder armored cars.

"The spectacle will conclude with the Star Spangled Banner played by 'The Great White Band,' a monster organization of 200 musicians from southern Indiana cities and the three regimental bands of twenty-eight men each, a most fitting finale to the most spectacular war production ever attempted in America.

"In the production of this spectacle will be used 336,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 30,000 rounds of Gatling gun ammunition, 300 rounds of artillery ammunition and 500 rounds of giant powder for the land mines and bridge and village destruction.

"Meanwhile the 'Third regiment' is serene, accepting as a compliment its selection to meet such a varied and overwhelming force and accepts its assignment gracefully.

REMEMBERED W. M. WARDROP.

Western Division Employes Make Two Nice Presents.

When W. M. Wardrop, former superintendent of the Western division of the Pennsylvania, reached the committee room in the Baker street passenger station at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, in response to a message, he found a half-hundred of the employes of the line awaiting his coming to present him with tokens of love and esteem. One present was a magnificent pair of gold mounted field glasses and the other was an artistically executed sheep skin memorial, 18x20 inches, and encased in a handsome frame. M. O. Ginty, conductor on the Pennsylvania Broadway limited, was the spokesman for the men who presented the gifts. This memorial had a picture of the new station, with Master Ed Wardrop, the little son of the superintendent, in uniform representing the stationmaster. The gifts were from the Western division employes and the sheepskin memorial bore the following signatures of men who represented different departments: Stationmaster Ed Brownsburger; Passenger Conductors M. O. Ginty, Joseph P. Morgan and John E. Walsh; Station Agents W. W. Crooks, of Lima, and J. H. Loomes, of Warsaw; Passenger Engineer Clarence E. Misner and Passenger Brakeman H. M. Covert. Mr. Wardrop was completely surprised, but he managed to express his thanks and appreciation of the tokens of esteem. He will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by the division officials at the Hotel Anthony tonight. Mr. Wardrop arrived from New Castle on train No. 25 this morning and spent the early part of the day at the railway offices with his former associates.

THIRTY YEARS OLD.

S. F. Bowser & Company Has Anniversary September 5.

Thirty years ago Sunday, September 5, S. F. Bowser sold an oil pump outfit to J. D. Gumpper, who then conducted a grocery business at the corner of Calhoun and Brackenridge streets. That was the first Bowser oil tank and pump outfit disposed of by the inventor and maker and that date has since been considered the birthday of the big concern, whose factory products are now found in every civilized country in the world. In commemoration of the birth of S. F. Bowser & Company, the printing department has gotten out an anniversary issue of the Bowser Boomer, which would be a credit to any publishing house. The second page contains a portrait of S. F. Bowser and a brief sketch of his life. Other pages have illustrations of the plant and interior views of the factory; pictures of the officers, a picture of the first self-measuring oil tank, made in 1885, and also a picture of the last measuring outfit now so generally used. The latter pages of the Boomer are devoted to an account of the annual birthday outing at Winona, given by Mr. Bowser to his employes, with many illustrations of the scenes on the grounds and the people who took part in them. The Bowser Boomer is edited by George A. Townsend.

HAD TO DIVIDE THE TRAIN.

Nickel Plate Splits No. 1 at This Point.

Because of heavy travel and additional cars, No. 1, on the Nickel Plate, was an hour late when it pulled into the Fort Wayne station. At this point the train was "split," that portion carrying passengers for Chicago and points west of that city, being sent out ahead with instructions to make no stops to pick up or set off passengers. The second section is handling the local business between Fort Wayne and Chicago. All passenger trains out of Chicago tonight and tomorrow will have extra equipment on account of Sunday travel. No. 6, the eastbound night train, will carry two extra coaches filled with German Alliance people from Hammond, who are coming here to attend the meetings, and also two extra coaches loaded with Italian reservists en route to Italy to take a hand in the war. On Nos. 4 and 6 tonight there will be assistant conductors to help handle the passengers.

F. W. HENSCHEN DEAD.

Wabash Traveling Auditor Succumbs to Paralysis.

The news of the death at St. Louis yesterday of F. W. Henschen, traveling auditor of the Wabash, was a shock to the men at the depot and offices in Fort Wayne, where the deceased was so well known. Two weeks ago Mr. Henschen was stricken with paralysis in the passenger station at St. Louis, where he had gone to take a train for Fort Wayne. He never regained consciousness, it is said, and the attending physician could offer no hope from the start, and death came yesterday afternoon. Mr. Henschen was about fifty years old and unmarried. He had been connected with the auditing department of the Wabash many years.

REDUCING CREW LISTS.

G. R. & I. Takes Two Crews Out of Service.

The dropping out of service of the Pond Lily next Tuesday and the falling off of freight traffic is the cause for a reduction of the crew list on the G. R. & I. Two freight crews, Engineer W. H. Barnes aand C. G. Grout have been reduced from freight engineers to passenger firemen and the following freight firemen have been furloughed: F. J. Murphy, J. F. Aherns, W. F. Wemple, J. M. CAR REPAIRMEN BUSY.

Demand for Grain Cars Keeps Them on the Hustle.

It is keeping the car repairmen at the east car shops busy at present to overhaul the grain cars as rapidly as they are being sent through the shops. The instructions are to "rush grain car repairs" and as soon as one car is finished it is sent west to be ready to be loaded with grain. The movement eastward is not very heavy, however, but the prospects are good for a heavy movement next week and thereafter.

While en route to Fort Wayne on Nickel Plate train No. 3, yesterday afternoon, Martin Tinsman, representative of the G. E. Bursley company, left in the wash room of a passenger coach a wallet containing about $3,000 in cash and papers. He missed the wallet after he reached the store and at once concluded that he had left it on the train. He lost no time in getting in touch with the conductor and was soon informed that the purse had been found in the rack over the washstand. It was returned to Mr. Tinsman on train No. 4 last evening. Two thousand and eight hundred dollars worth of notes were in the purse, but $123.50 in cash, which had been there, was missing. Some one had robbed the purse of cash and laid it in the rack. Nickel Plate detectives are investigating the matter.

HANDLING VAUDEVILLE PEOPLE.

Occupying a special Pullman sleeper and employing a special baggage car, a party of twenty vaudeville artists will arrive in the city Monday morning at 10:40 o'clock over the Lake Shore from Grand Rapids, Mich. The performances comprise several acts on the New Palace's opening bill and the people are making the trip to Fort Wayne from Grand Rapids over the Lake Shore connecting with the local branch at Jackson, Mich. Thirty pieces of baggage are carried by these twenty people.

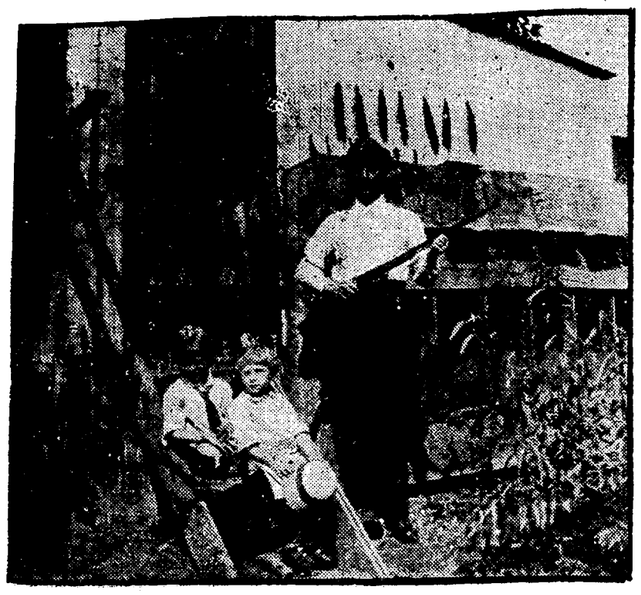
HARRY STARKE, HIS BOYS AND PROCEEDS OF DAY'S HUNT AT WANATAH.



Squirrels are more plentiful in northern Indiana at present than at any of the ten or twelve previous years and the hunters who go in search of them are usually successful. A few days ago Harry F. Starke and Edward Feaser, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, shot fifteen of these little animals, all fox squirrels, in a woods near Wanatah, Ind. The illustration represents Mr. Starke with his gun in hand, his two children, Walter and Paul Starke, and the dead squirrels hanging against the wall of the barn above the heads of the children. The scene is the back yard at Mr. Starke's home, 1223 Spy Run avenue, and the kodak picture of it was taken the morning following the hunting expedition.

REED'S COWS BRING HIM INTO TROUBLE

Neighbors Complain That He Violates Law and He Pays Fine.

James T. Reed, who has had frequent trouble with his neighbors in the region of State boulevard and Parnell avenue, was arraigned in the city court Saturday morning on an affidavit charging him with violating the city ordinances that relate to the pasturing of cows on the streets and commons. Half a dozen neighbors testified that Reed's cows were a nuisance and that it had been continued more or less for years. They also said that Reed was an ugly man and abused them with shocking language when they remonstrated with him. Lieut. Harry Grimme, of the police, swort that when officers had been sent out to notify Reed that he must cease his infractions of the ordinances Reed blandly told them that the city could "mind its own business" and he would attend to his. Reed took the stand and admitted most of the testimony of his neighbors, but said there would be no further trouble about his cows. Judge Kerr warned there had better not be, and assessed a fine of $5 and costs, which with witness fees set him back $20.

Wife Says He Drew a Gun.

Alonzo Basy, a colored man employed in a down town department store as elevator engineer, and residing at 1404 Hanna street, was in the city court on a peace warrant sworn out by his wife, Missouri Basy. Mrs. Basy said that Friday, following trouble of several days' duration, her husband thrust a pistol in her face and theatened her life. She says in her affidavit and she stated on the stand that she fears he will "kill and murder her." Basy made a considerable speech in his own defense, at the end of which he was put under bond of $200 to keep the peace.

Cambray Case Goes Over.

Pair of Birds Held by Fines.

George Doyle, alias McDonald, alias Funk, an ex-convict once sent up from here for burglary, and all-round crook, and his pal, Ben Goody, who were arrested one day last week after they had sold 100 assorted pocket knives to Ben Franklin, a Calhoun street dealer, for $5, were arraigned on loitering charges, found guilty and fined $25 and costs each. They went to jail. Detective Sergeants Walter Immel and Joseph Brennan testified to the circumstances of the arrest and to the conflicting stories told by the men. Doyle developed a shocking lapse of memory as to his whereabouts before coming to Fort Wayne. The police believe that the cutlery was stolen from a Wabash freight car some weeks ago and are investigating. The men said they purchased the plunder of a man in Muncie.

Other City Court Cases.

Michael Kelly, a drunk, who would not keep off the streets and was arrested by Officer Paul, drew eleven days.

Godfrey Gurick, an aged Swiss blacksmith from Berne, Ind., was picked up Friday night very drunk, and locked in a cell for safe-keeping. He had money enough left to get back home and was allowed to start.

Laura Jackson, a colored woman who figured some time ago as a witness in a celebrated neighborhood quarrel on the south side, was arraigned on a drunk charge, pleaded guilty and said she just didn't have a word to say. "Was drunk, joudge, your honore, and that's all there is to it." She drew $1 and costs.

Arthur McKenna, a drunk, and Fred Luce, a loiterer, who was picked up with him several days ago, were allowed to go. Their conduct and belongings aroused suspicion, but investigation by the police gave them a clearance. They asked for permission to look for work in Fort Wayne.

John Logan, claiming Chicago as his home, was charged with drunkenness and continued until next Tuesday to enable the police to investigate his possession of a silver cigarette case the man declared he had possessed for a year, but which is so new it shows no signs of use.

KNIVES ARE IDENTIFIED.

Twenty-one pocketknives, most of them of fine quality, were found Friday by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel in an empty boxcar on a Nickel Plate railway siding, near the Wayne oil tank works. At headquarters the cutlery was identified by H. E. Adams, a traveling salesman of 115 East Pontiac street, as part of the contents of his sample case stolen from the Nickel Plate depot August 17. The knives were wrapped in newspapers when found by Detective Immel.

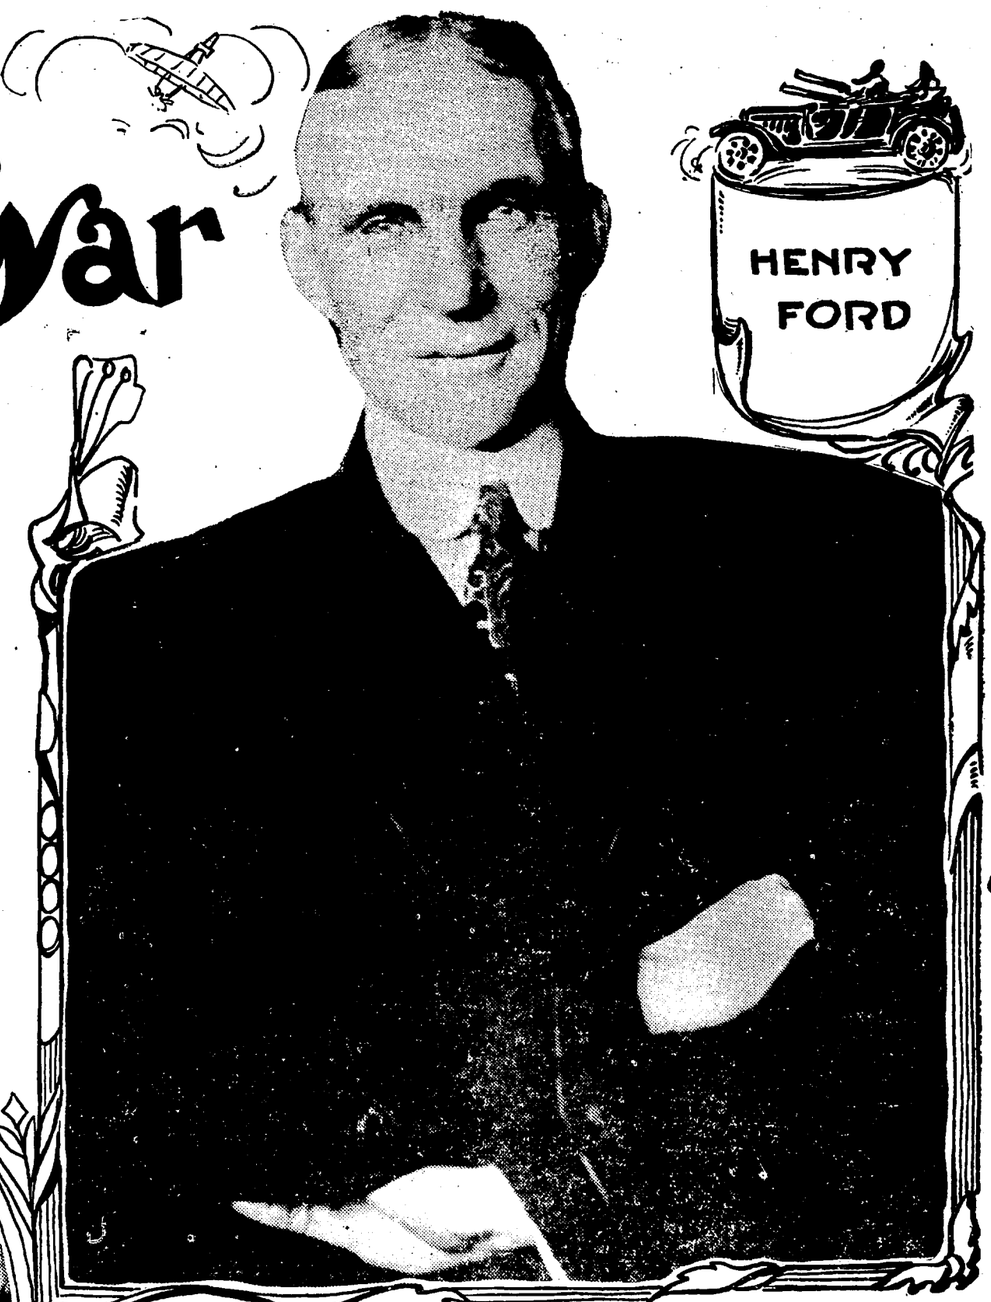
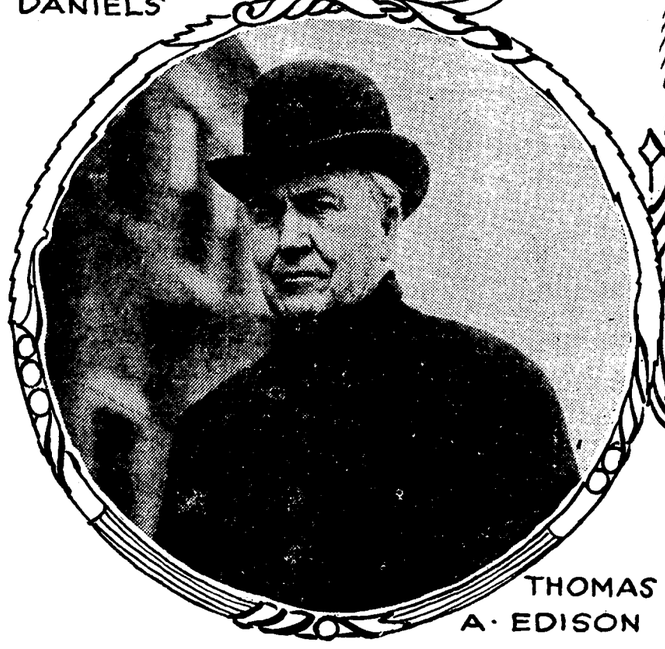
What Of Uncle Sam's Present War Preparedness?

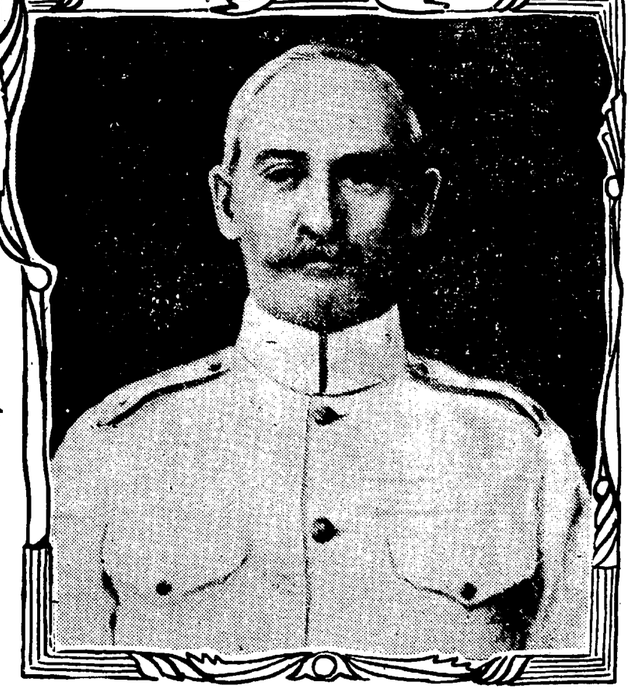
The Situation Is Not So Bad As Some Jingoes Would Have Us Think—When Our Military and Naval Efficiency Is Itemized It Is Found to Be Above the Average—Militia and Volunteers Form the Great Bulk of Our Available Armies



JOSEPHUS DANIELS



THOMAS A. EDISON



CAPT. WILLIAM S. BENSON

Is the United States prepared for defense?

When the battle summons comes will we be ready to answer it or would we find ourselves lacking in needed arms and ammunition, troops, coast and naval defense?

While jingoes through the country are howling that we are not prepared, the government at Washington is saying nothing, but President Wilson and his staff are confident that should the time come American daring and patriotism will drive back with the terrible blows dealt by our forefathers any foe that dares put his foot on the land of the free.

President Wilson believes that with the means we have at our command—be they meagre as some say they are, or be they nearly sufficient as the government is confident they are, the United States will march forth in the greatest body of fighters the world has ever known and by its very daring will drive back the invaders, even should they outnumber us five to one.

"The United States is not lacking in brave men," says Major-General Hugh L. Scott, "and with men with such patriotic feeling behind them as our troops would display, I would have no doubt as to the outcome of our defense. An army fighting through patriotic motives is ten times as good as one composed of soldiers who fight either through conscription or through other forms of compulsion.

FAITH IN VOLUNTEERS.

"When the United States army, with its aids, the state militia bodies, have to march forth to battle you will find them prepared to do or die. When the 'Star Spangled Banner' rings through the land as a call to arms you will find more volunteers than we could possibly use in years flocking to the colors," continued this veteran Indian fighter —a general who is part of the real backbone of the United States army.

That the United States is being slowly prepared for any conflict that may arise, is shown by present activities in Washington. The President plans a reserve army of 500,000 men beside our regular army. This will include the state militias and men who have seen service and now are on the retired list. The President quietly has called for plans of defense from Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of War Garrison. These plans now are being made in an extensive manner.

Here in Washington it is argued that with such great men as Wilson, Dewey, Scott, Fletcher and others at the head of our national defense, the United States is not going to allow itself to remain somnolent when danger threatens. It is said that those who howl unpreparedness do not know our actual resources or what secret preparations are being made.

The fact that the government permits our ammunition and other factories to manufacture war supplies at full capacity is taken as significant. These factories are employing thousands of men night and day. How simple would it be in an emergency to require the entire output of these factories for the United States army or navy. Here in the United States at present are being manufactured more cartridges, shrapnel and other shells than in remainder of the world combined. The United States has allowed a number of its ordnance officers to leave the service to assume positions with ammunition companies. Is this not significant, and does it not show that the nation has by this one act alone solved a great problem?

Edison, Orville Wright, Henry Ford and other inventors have been called to service by Secretary Josephus Daniels. The greatest inventors the world has known are now assembling to the possible defense of their country.

WOULD SPRING SURPRISE.

Edison has said that in case the United States were invaded he could invent something that would make warfare even more terrible than it is now. Edison is not a dreamer. He sees the need of a certain thing —say the defense of our land—and he closets himself alone until that thing is invented. With such men as Edison now called to the colors it cannot be doubted but that the United States will find itself prepared for any emerency.

But there are simpler heroes to which the jingoes and the alarmists of the country should be introduced —the men who would bear the actual brunt of resisting an invasion.

There is first Rear Admiral William S. Benson, a trained sea fighter, who would direct the orders of the navy. Of course, his plans would have to be sanctioned by Josephus Daniels and the War College, but this would be but a formality, for he knows more about sea fighting than any other man in the United States and the country may feel safe in the belief that Admiral Benson would do the right thing. He is a fighter and his real task is to find the enemy's fleet and sink it and he knows how to do it.

Back of Admiral Benson would be a number of old sea veterans, including Admiral George Dewey and all of them have seen service and know how to fight when the enemy's guns are roaring.

Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, who at Vera Cruz showed himself a competent naval officer and a real fighter, is in charge of the Atlantic fleet—the proudest arm of the navy and the one that may have to bear the brunt of the defense, should we be attacked by one of the European powers. All of our dreadnaughts—eight—are under his command, beside a complement of warships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines. And incidentally on these battleships are the world's greatest gunners. No foe could survive their deadly aim. Before any enemy warship could find the range these men could have directed a shell to a vital spot and would soon end the career of the foe's vessel.

It is in such things as these that Washington feels secure. What good are enemy battleships if American gunners can pick them off when they are a mile away and with a few well directed shots, send them to the bottom.

In the Pacific ocean we are defended by Admiral Thomas B. Howard. His fleet consisted only of armored cruisers and would be ineffectual against dreadnaughts. The United States feels, however, that it has a natural protection against invasion from the west.

IN THE PACIFIC.

It has yet another fleet—the Asiatic—which would deal a blow from the rear that would make an enemy tremble should it set out for purposes of invading our western coast. Beside the fleet on the Pacific the United States has eight submarines there and coast forts that are declared impregnable. Certainly, an enemy would find itself as hard put in attempting to invade our west coast as the allies are in attempting to storm the Dardanelles, those natural barriers that give Turkey its only defense from invasion from the west. Our coast defenses are entirely ample on the Atlantic coast also and were our great guns there given the proper range by an aeroplane they would be able to shell the enemy fleet before it came in view, experts say.

In army defense, Major General Hugh L. Scott, who puts down Indian uprisings by going personally to the beliggerents and compelling them to surrender without even a shot being fired, will have the entire say. He is a man who believes in the efficacy of our soldiers. He considers a good fighting American as equal to several of the foe. Scott holds the United States Army in the same regard he represents it to the ignorant Indians. He feels confident it can wipe an enemy from the face of the earth.

The army staff has three brigadier generals, four colonels, six lieutenant colonels, twelve majors and twelve captains, with General Scott at their head. He makes a decision and they sanction it. They might formulate plans at odds with his but he has the power to countermand them.

Captain A. W. Grant is in charge of our submarine service and with the inventions being perfected now in this line and with new boats being built, his branch of our defense would play an important part, for Inventor Lake now is perfecting submarines that will be better than those employed by Germany. Incidentally, he is the inventor of the type of boats now employed by the Imperial German government.

Brigadier General Albert L. Mills has charge of calling out and training the state militia for service as well as of recruiting and training raw troops. The National Guards of the various states have shown more activity, better training and discipline than ever before. Army officers have been sent to supervise their work and have pronounced a number of regiments actually fit for service at the front. The National Guard is felt to be one of the strongest supports of the United States army.

The task of supplying ammunition to the troops would be left to Brigadier General William Crozier. The United States has 634 field guns in the service and 226 being made. Crozier now is in charge of our own factory at Watertown, knows how to manage his men and will soon supply the army with needed guns.

Our United States engineers are considered the most efficient in the world. They are in charge of Brigadier Daniel C. Kingman, chief of engineers. They number 249 officers and are the pick of West Point. It would be their duty to design treaches, bridges, railroads, repairs, transportation of big guns and a hundred and one details that are of the greatest importance in moving an army into the field.

Major General James B. Aleshire is in charge of the quartermaster department. He supplies the soldiers with clothing and food and spends about $10,000,000 a year on groceries and meats. He has 30,000 horses in his care.

Nor must we forget Surgeon General William C. Gorgas, the conqueror of disease in the canal zone. A great deal depends on an army's health. Soldiers are liable to carelessness. The first bad water drunk causes typhoid and an epedemic of this disease may wipe out a whole corps of troops. Dr. Gorgas and his aids are right at the front, designing camps from a viewpoint of sanitation, seeing that the laws of sanitation are observed and fighting the first disease germ that manifests itself.

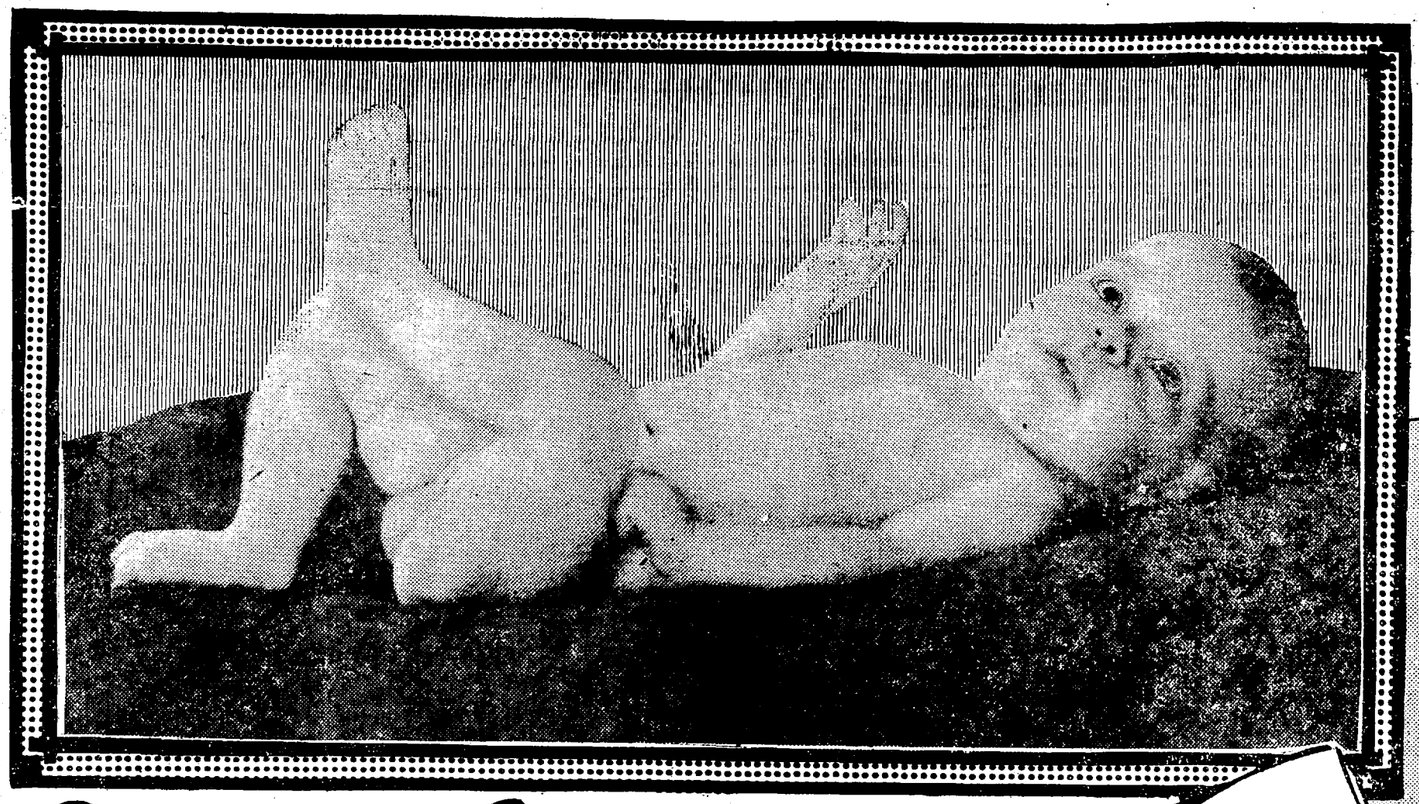
Two real defenders of the country that must not be forgotten are Major General Frederick Funston and Major General Leonard Wood.

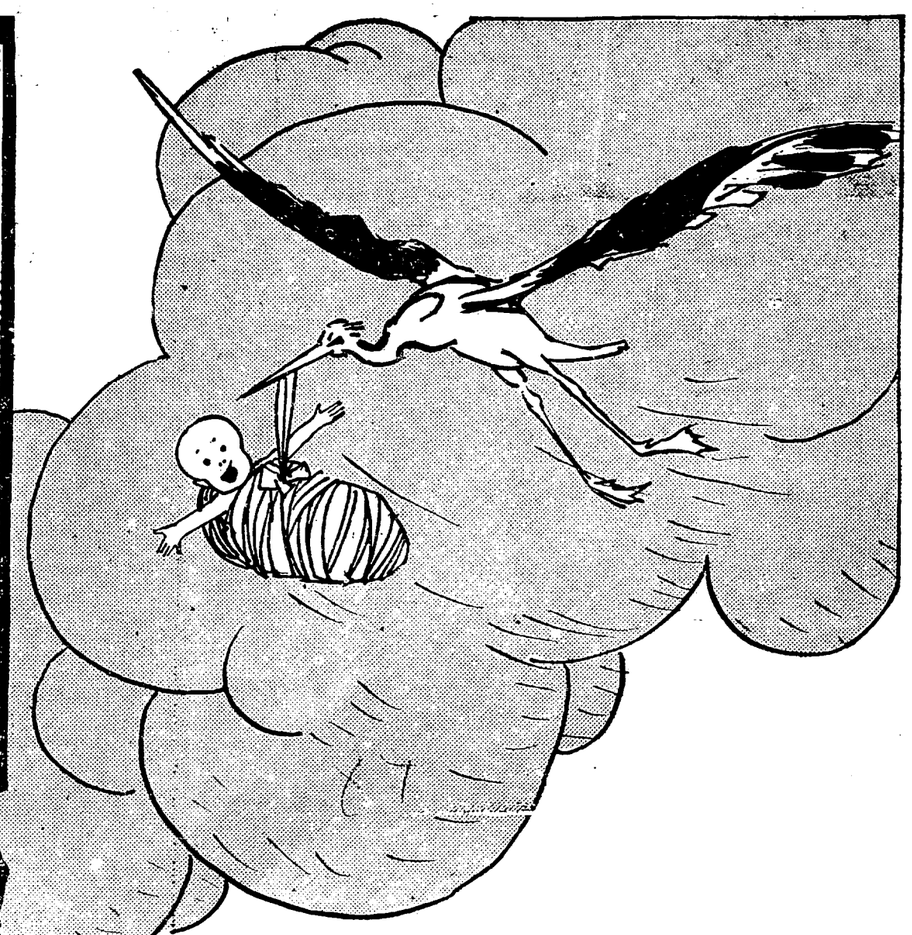
General Funston has 11.000 men under his command in the department of the South, including Texas, through which hostiles might seek to come from Mexico. He is a veteran and knows how to handle troops.

General Wood commands the eastern division and has but 6,600 men under his command, although he is training new troops daily.

So look at the array—Benson, Dewey, Fletcher, Howard, Cowles, Scott, Mills, Crozier, Aleshire, Gorgas, Funston and Wood.

Then ask: Is the United States prepared?





SETTING the ALARM CLOCK in STORKLAND

AN "ALARM CLOCK" WHICH SHORTENS TWILIGHT SLEEP.

The latest discovery in the art of being born is that you may choose your own birthday. In the Wesley Memorial Hospital of Chicago children have chosen their own birthdays for more than a year. A hundred children and more have taken advantage of the opportunity.

Any day within two weeks of the limit of time set by nature may be selected. The mother gets a card from the doctor telling her to be at the hospital on such and such a day within the two weeks' limit. She goes there at night.

In the morning the assistant of the head obstetrician, who is Dr. C. B. Reed, "starts the hands of the alarm clock." This he does with the aid of a Vorhees bag, an invention of Dr. Vorhees of Cornell University, who, like Dr. Reed, permits his patients' offspring to select their own birthdays.

At noon Dr. Reed comes, and within four hours at the most the baby arrives. The greatest advantage claimed for the process is that it is a saving of strength to both child and mother. Decreasing the hours of pain removes the strongest criticism against twilight sleep, which was that it prolonged suffering. Twilight sleep is always given to the mother of the child who chooses to select his own birthday.

Rock-a-bye baby on the stork's bill,
When you retired you set the alarm.
When the alarm clock calls you to rise,
To us you'll hasten, won't you, Bright Eyes?

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Mrs. Bumpus, and again, "Well, I never!"

The yellow telegraph slip the boy just brought fluttered gayly off her lap and down the walk, borne by vagrant breezes, while Mrs. Bumpus rocked violently back and forth in a wicker chair on the porch of the Bumpus summer cottage at Staylate Lake.

"Well, I never!"

What she meant was that she had never in her life heard of such a thing, of course, and probably you haven't, either.

Heard of what? you say—that a comfortable, cheery, happy as the day is long clubwoman of 49, going on 50, and mother of six, should have a grandson named John Bumpus, Jr., after his grandfather, and born on the 25th of July, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Wesley Hospital in Chicago.

Or that a fond grandmamma and grandpapa should be immediately notified of the arrival of said image of his grandfather in a telegram signed "Adele and Billy"?

I see I must begin at the beginning, which was Mrs. Bumpus long-distancing daughter-in-law Adele in the city on Friday, reminding her that she and son Billy were expected to spend the week end with the Bumpus elders at Staylate Lake.

"I can't come. I'm so sorry." Mrs. Bumpus made out Adele as saying. "The stork is coming on the 25th and the doctor—"

"What are you saying, Adele?" Mrs. Bumpus broke in. "The 31st, you mean— at the very earliest, you know. Come right along. Have no anxiety."

"I wish I could, mother," Adele's voice sounded a hundred miles away, "but, you see, doctor has a paper to read at the medical convention in Omaha next week, and from there he is going to the fair, and he would rather—"

What the doctor would rather do trailed off in a burr and a lot of clucks.

Mrs. Bumpus heard no more and dismissed what she had heard from her mind. "Such a rigmarole!" she said, and blamed bad telephone service. "Silly of Adele to get nervous about leaving home this far ahead. All brides are alike—poor dears. You can't tell them anything."

Well she knew how far the hopes of brides often are from the realizations of motherhood—how many an anxious day, week, even month must be thrown in as extra calculation before expected juniors put in appearance.

She laughed and went about her household duties. "Adele will know a thing or two about waiting before she gets through bringing a family into the world."

Of a sudden, and due to the arrival of the mischievous yellow slip which was that very moment flirting with a rosebush, Mrs. Bumpus, mother of six, found herself, experience of fifty years and all, in the backwash of human advance. She sat there in the late afternoon sunshine, recalling a succession of conversations, as like as beads upon a string, to which she had attached no importance at the time.

Now they made a chain of mysterious significance.

There was Jessie Davis. She got married a few weeks before Billy and Adele. Her baby came in June. Kate Alloway's baby was born in April. Mary Stover's Jackie was born in May.

These girls were Adele's chums, and every one of them had told Adele's mother-in-law not only approximately but precisely the date upon which their babies were to come. Now, as she thought back, she realized that every kiddie had arrived on schedule time.

"Well, I never!" declared Mrs. Bumpus.

Purpose and not chance had ruled the event.

There is a new science that might be called "Choose your own birthday."

It is practiced in Chicago in a certain hospital and in one hospital in New York and nowhere else in the wide world, that folks know of.

Kiddies have to be reasonable in picking their own birthdays, as in all things, to be sure. Suppose old Mr. Stork figures on making a small boy a valentine he can't go and decide to be a Christmas card.

By no means.

If he will sit down in Storkville with the almanac in his lap and run his finger along the dates within two weeks before the time old Mr. Stork says he just must clear out of Storkville he can go on a day of his own choosing. For this old world of wars, wage difficulties and welfare work he can pick any patron saint he wants within a two weeks' limit, to make him strong enough to stand the gaff of living.

For example, say he is due in February, at the 25th at the latest. He can come on the 22d, if he choose, a little George Washington. Or if his mind does not run to cherry trees and declarations of independence there is the 12th. He may take that and have the great emancipator for his model. We aim only to please.

Of course the new science does not depend on what Mrs. Jones thinks about little Johnnie's prospective natal day. Not a bit of it. Little Johnnie comes when Mr. Stork reports his measures are just right to fit him to face this cold world and put on his first little flannel undershirt and didy.

Old Mr. Stork always reports that little Johnnie is ready for shipment at least a week or two before the time set by the calendar of his fond mamma and papa. Then it is a mere matter of arranging the day and date when Mrs. Jones will find it convenient to call at Such and Such a hospital and meet Mr. Stork to receive a particularly precious bundle addressed to her.

It isn't the everyday arrangement in all families, as yet—this receiving a card like the dentist gives you, for an appointment, telling you to be at such and such a hospital on Monday, say, or if Wednesday will suit you better we'll call it Wednesday, and meet your new little son or daughter.

Oh, no. There are only two such hospitals in the United States at this moment which Mr. Stork makes on schedule time. As we have told you, one is in New York and one in Chicago.

Dr. Charles B. Reed, the head of Wesley Hospital, is intimately in touch with the doctor in New York who makes the stork stand around, roll over and jump through a hoop, because he uses the apparatus invented by him.

This New York doctor is James D. Vorhees. He is associate professor of—now, this is a great big name, though I might call it storkology—they call it obstetrics, at Cornell University, whose medical school is in New York City, and he hasn't met the stork except by appointment made by himself for over a year, and yet in that time he has received him 100 times.

Dr. Reed, who is one of Chicago's leading obstetricians, whose practice is among the wealthy, has systematized the stork to the extent of having him make his calls of afternoons.

For a year or more he has never had a night case or received the consignments of the stork except by such arrangements as one might make with dentists or dressmaker. In that time he has allowed a hundred or more babies to choose their own birthdays—within limits.

Asked to explain in his own way, Dr. Reed said: "Nature is careless about the conservation of the individual. All she cares about is the race. So long as plenty of babies keep coming she doesn't care if a mother here or there perishes or suffers more than is needful.

"In setting birthdays ourselves we help nature. Our process is not against nature, but with nature. It is not premature forced delivery, but delivery on schedule time. Every day's delay in the coming of a child that is ready to be born increases the sufferings of the mother. The child gains all the time in size.

"Aided by measurements given by Ahlfeld, a well-known German obstetrician, we determine exactly or as nearly as is needful, the time of maturity of the unborn child. We find that a child is ripe for birth any time within a week or two weeks before, delivery in the course of nature. Indeed, nature has been known to delay a week or two or three beyond the time delivery should have occurred.

"We start the hand of the clock, that is all. Nature does the rest.'

Another physician of note calls Dr. Reed's procedure at the Wesley Hospital "prudent prolepsis—a policy of intelligent action instead of watchful waiting."

After it has been determined that the case is one for such procedure and the approximate time has been set, a time and an hour is set when conditions are in the highest degree favorable, and things having been made ready with the care usual in surgical operations, the mother's natural pains are induced. The long tedious hours of the first stage of parturition are shortened materially.

"This is the important part of the Wesley Hospital method," he explains. "The advantage is that the mother is spared exhaustion and the baby is protected from strain. Twilight sleep is added as soon as possible and the sensation of pain abolished."

"What are the definite gains?" asks the medical profession in general, incredulous that helping nature actively in the matter of birthdays instead of passively is going to do good in the long run.

"Reduction of the total period of labor is the greatest gain. The baby is not endangered by prolonged labor," says Dr. Reed. "The fatigue of the mother is lessened, and therefore the danger of infection is diminished.

"Moreover, the case is under control at every minute. The patient is actively guided and protected instead of being left helpless in her martyrdom."

Setting birthdays by schedule came about in trying to correct one of the worst evils of twilight sleep, which is part of the Wesley Hospital procedure. That evil was the prolongation of labor. In studying to do away with this disadvantage of longer labor in twilight sleep this plan to shorten the first stage of labor was perfected.

By using the Ahlfeld system of measurments to determine the readiness of the child for birth, and aided by an appliance called the "Vorhees bag," which has long been used by the profession to induce labor pains in any stage of gestation when need arises, they reduce the sum total of hours spent in labor, first and second stages combined, to the time often spent in the older method in the first stage.

EDDYTORIAL.

Most everybody in Bingville who has a apple orchard is at present engaged in the prociss of making cider. In fackt, cider making is one of the chief industries of Bingville about this time every year, considering as the apple crop in this neck of woods this fall is very profuse, as we might say, cider promises to be very profuse also.

Anybody who has any sense knows that when cider is first made it's most generally sweet, but that if give the proper treatment it will in time become so hard, intoxicatin and inebriatin, so that it contains what is called considerable "kick." The people of this vicinity, including our best citizens, don't care nothin about cider until it gets hard, and it is this state of affairs which suggests the subject for this red hot eddytorial.

There is a few in this town who call themselves the "better element," who look upon hard cider as a curse to humanity, but they are sadly in the minority, and what they say don't appear to carry much weight. The Rev. Sam'l Moore, our beloved pastor, has in times past started several crusades against the manufacture and traffic of hard cider in this vicinity, but all his crusades kind of died in the shell as you might say.

In our eddytorial opinion, hard cider is all right so long as a person don't drink to excess. A glass of hard cider on a hot day in hayin' time won't hurt anybody, whereas six or seven glasses of hard cider on an empty stummick in hayin' time will make most any person act foolish and ridicklus. As long as you don't abuse hard cider it won't abuse you, but when a person tries to drink a whole barl of it at one settin' like Bill Hepburn, our artistic blacksmith, for instance, or Hank Dewberry, our most dilatory citizens, he don't get over it fer a week, and even has traces of a headake after that.

Most people in this town boasts and brags that they can take hard cider or let it alone. There is Deacon Bradbury, for instants—the deacon says he can take it or let it alone, but everybody knows that as long as he has a drop of cider in his cellar he never lets it alone for more than a few hours at a time, and this is not meant to be any reflecshion on the deacon, either, being as he is one of the staunchest pillers of the Bingville church.

We wish to call attenshion to a advertisement in another column of the Bugle where Side Petersby has started up his cider mill and is prepared to make cider in large or small quantities.

In conclushion we desire to state that while we try to be temperate in all things, hard cider has never done us any pertickler injury that we can reckoleckt, and if some of our deadbeat subscribers who owes us any where from $15 to $20 on back subscripshions desires to liquidate a porshion of their indebtedness we will cheerfully accept a barl or two of hard cider and give them credit for same.

LoKal Items

Things has begin to look like Fall onct more.

It looks as if this would be a earlier Fall than last Fall.

The seasons, however, is something over which we have little control, if any—they come and go in spite of us.

If you want a live, up-to-date newspaper, subscribe for the Bugle, and keep in touch with current events and the outside world but pay fer it in advance.

If we could collect all the bad debts owing to us from dead beat subscribers, we would be rich beyond the dreams of averice, and would woller in the lap of luxury as you might say.

Bad Eggs

We had occashion to purchase a dozen eggs at Hen Weathersby's store tother day and was considerable disgusted to find 9 out of 12 too aged and infirm for table use.

This is the worst dozen of eggs we ever bought offen Hen Weathersby—heretofore we never have found more than half of them bad. We desire to say that if Hen Weathersby thinks he can conduct an up-to-date business emporium by selling eggs wich when opened will drive you out of house and home, he is mistaken. We like fresh eggs as well as anybody, but no person with any sense would open any one of them nine bad eggs we got from Hen unless they was out somewhere in a ten-aker field.

Hank Out of Work

Hank Dewberry informs us that he never seen times so hard as they have been for him this summer. Hank says he aint had a job of work since last May, and that if any person in Bingville or vicinity desires any wood chopped for winter use, he would be glad to earn a dollar in order to keep his soul and body together as you might say.'

Them who knows Hank as well as we do knows that when hot weather comes and pershirashion begins, there aint no danger of him ever losin his eyesight lookin for work. If you want any wood chopped and aint in a hurry for it, see Hank.

Gid Changed His Mind

Gid Smalley called at this office as mad as a wet hen last week and desired to know why he didn't receive his Bugle the week before?

We told Gid that one reason why he didn't receive it was because it had been discontinued, owing to the fact that he ain't paid a cent on his subscripshion since he first subscribed 11 years ago. Gid got pretty hot when we told him this and told us we could swet for our money. We told Gid we had swet 11 years for it, night-swets and day-swets, and now that we proposed that he should do some swetting himself, being as we was going to put this matter in the hands of Amos Hillyer, our lawyer, and send him to jail if necessary.

Gid kind of cooled off when we said this and hauled out his wallet and paid us half of what he owed us like a gentleman, after which he invited ourself and wife to eat dinner with hisself and wife next Sunday, which we shall do with great pleasure.

If we thought this course would work as well with other people as it does with Gid, we would stop the papers of about half of our subscribers immejit.

Lige Went to Sleep

Lige Green went to sleep at church service last Sunday morning and snored so loud that Rev. Sam'l Moore, our beluvved pastor, had to holler at the top of his lungs to make hisself heard.

Finally, the Rev. Moore asked Deacon Bradbury if he would request him not to snore so loud, which the deacon done, and Lige got mad and clapped on his hat and left the church in disgust. Lige says unless he can worship at church according to the dictates of his own conscience, he will be doggoned if he don't take his name offen the church roll.

Cy Is Packing Apples

Cy Hoskins is packin apples in barls to send to the Co. Seat. The Little God Of Love Unites Childhood Paymates

JAMES B. FORGAN

Catherine Barker, $30,000,000 Heiress, Rejects European Nobles' Offers and Marries For Love—Her Example May Have Far-Reaching Effect Upon International Marriages Contracted For the Exchange Of Fortunes and Empty Titles

The recent marriage of Miss Catherine Barker, America's richest girl having a fortune of $30,000,000 and an income of several million a year, to Howard Spaulding, Jr., an American youth, reveals her as a real daughter of the U. S. A., and if her example be followed the surviving nobles of Europe, after the war is over, will have small chance in America.

When the girl inherited her wealth at 14, James B. Forgan, president of a Chicago bank, saw to it that she was raised with the greatest simplicity and taught that cardinal principal of the United States —"Be Democratic." He destroyed all love letters sent her by the fortune hunters of Europe who would exchange their moth-eaten titles for her wealth.

The youth she married, although of wealthy parents, went to work in an humble position in the great mills left her by her father and "made good."

It is believed that the foxy banker recognized the value of the youth and brought them together.

Any way the wedding was a democratic one, there wasn't a person present bearing a title, and the bride wore nothing in her simple costume that was not of the U. S. A.

The world is watching with great interest the honeymoon of America's greatest heiress and a democratic young American, and finding therein a hopeful sign that when the European war is over there will be no further exchange of American dollars for European titles, to any great evtent.

Students of fashionable society and plain sociology, contend that Catherine Barker's example will be followed. They also maintain that the nobles of Europe will have been killed off to such a degree that the survivors will be able easily to find all the women of fortune they could wish to choose from in their own countries.

True, the fortunes of these young women may be greatly reduced through the drain of war, but the landed estates they possess may still be an inducement, and a certain sense of patriotism may keep the surviving foreign hunters from invading the American field.

America's richest girl, worth a cool $30,000,000, and possessing an income of a million or two each year for her pin-money, became the bride of an American boy. And to further prove that romance is not dead, the American boy worked in the great factory of which the girl is the principal stockholder and from which she derives her income. When he left college he decided to start out for himself and work himself up in the world. So as he worked himself to the top in the business world so he worked his way into the affections of the girl and they were married on the last day of July.

NOT A CHAMBERS' NOVEL.

No, this is not the plot of a Robert Chambers' society novel. It is the story of the romance and wedding of Miss Catherine Barker, the riches single woman in the United States, and Howard Spaulding, Jr., at her summer cottage at Harbor Point, Mich. They now are on their honeymoon.

Miss Barker, now 19, became heir to $30,000,000 at the death of her father when she was but 14 years old. The news of her fortune was heralded practically through the world and as one might imagine love letters came from all climes and many of them bore the coat of arms of royalty with the cool offer of an exchange of a crown for real American dollars.

But just then came on the scene a man who in this great American romance really makes the facts in the case worthy of picture dramatization. The man is James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank of Chicago. Her father fortunately had appointed the banker guardian over her fortune until she should become of age.

Now James B. Forgan is essentially an American. He made his money by hard work, starting in at the bottom. So he despised any one whose only claim to existence was that his father or mother had left him a mortgaged estate and doubtful title abroad.

A BILL NYE IDEA.

As Bill Nye would express it: Banker Forgan thought no more of a king or queen than he did of an ace or a two spot. So when letters came pouring in for the girl with the $30,000,000 he did not think it necessary to have her annoyed with such missals or to even mention the matter to her. Burning love letters composed by some of the most aspiring and most indebted dukes, earls and princes of Europe were mailed but never reached the girl's hands.

Banker James B. Forgan saw to it that the girl never was annoyed by thoughts of love—especially that foreign love that burns like a candle on which fuel must be poured constantly, in this case the fuel being American dollars. He trained the girl to utter simplicity. He never mentioned her wealth to her. He treated her as if she were any other sweet American girl and constantly impressed on her that she was just the same as other girls.

He saw that she had all the clothing she desired, an auto and comfortable home—things to which she was accustomed before her father's death—but if she ever mentioned any luxury, the purchase of which would have given her the appearance of being above other American girls, he evidently dissuaded her from the idea.

No costly dinners, no champagne banquets, no elaborate balls was the rule he set down for the richest girl in America. She was given the best possible education, was encouraged in tennis and golf, all luxuries were kept from her. As a result Miss Barker, now Mrs. Spaulding, grew up with democratic simplicity. If other girls mentioned her wealth to her she showed her scorn by her silence. Never did she propose anything that might be too expensive for the other girls to bear their share. No one could call her a "snob" or say that her money had influenced her character for the banker had kept riches far from her thoughts by encouraging her in athletic and other sports and in picking for her the right companions.

HER SIMPLE TRAINING.

Nor was Miss Barker inclined to think of wealth or place herself above the other girls. In school she was a devoted scholar and always obedient to the rules of her teachers. Never did she introduce an innovation or plan a party that might be of unbearable expense to the other girls. If there was fudge to be made she was ready to contribute her mite to the purchase of the ingredients, but in her whole career at the finishing school she never was called upon to spend more than $5 at a time. Her dress was of the simplest and in accord with patterns, cost and material of that of the other girls. The subject of wealth always was avoided and by advice of the banker the teachers showed Miss Barker no more attention than the other girls and all in all she was taught that Democratic spirit that has made America's richest girl at the same time one of its most representative ones.

So when school was finished and she went forth into the whirl of society to make her debut, she was altogether one of the sweetest and most considerate daughters of Uncle Sam in the country despite her enormous wealth.

When the debut was made Banker Forgan saw to it that it was without too great ostentation and flashy expense.

Then came on the scene Howard Spaulding, Jr. He is the son of a wealthy jeweler and was studying at Yale at the time Miss Barker was in school. His father determined that the boy would be reared with the idea of making his own way in the world and Howard followed his father's train of thought exactly. He was one of the "bunch" in college and kept to his studies, spending no more money than other young men and in no way given the impression that a wealthy father in Chicago was paying his expenses.

HE GOES TO WORK.

When he was graduated he decided to make his own way in the world. He thereupon went to Michigan City, Ind., and went to work in a humble position at the Barker & Haskell car works, practically all of the stock in which firm is owned by Miss Barker.

Whether she met the young worker in the factory and their romance began there or whether they met in a social way has not been disclosed by her friends.

Certainly it is charming and altogether within the right of the romanticist that she met her future husband while he was engaged in factory work. How probable, indeed, would it be for the young lady to be touring the factory and see the handsome young man, his face besmeared with grease and his athletic figure hidden beneath overalls and jumper. She might have asked the foreman who he was and learned that he was a Yale graduate learning the business "from the bottom up."

Perhaps, however, it was Banker Forgan, the girl's guardian, who brought about the meeting for be it remembered that Banker Forgan was as much an admirer of American brain and brawn as he was a detester of royalty that would wed for gold. It is possible that his attention, while managing the girl's affairs, was attracted to this brave young man who struck out in the world for himself, preferring an humble job in a factory to being a burden upon his parents.

Whatever may be the romance of the two, it culminated in a simple ceremony at her cottage at Harbor Point, Mich.

A lack of ostentation was the chief feature at the wedding. Miss Barker's beautiful summer home at the Michigan society resort is known simply as "Cottage No. 12." The invitations were simply to this numbered cottage, Miss Barker having refrained from giving the place any name that might attract attention to it.

A PATRIOTIC GIRL.

The simplicity was carried out in the bride's gown. It was of white chiffon, embroidered in pearls and silver and was far less costly than those worn by many less wealthy than Miss Barker. The court train was of chiffon from the shoulders, bound in white satin, embroidered in pears, and with a deep edging of satin, heavily embroidered in pearls and silver with clusters of orange blossoms. The veil was of tulle, bound orange blossoms and finished with a small bow of silver in the back. Her only jewels were a strand of pearls and a diamond bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom.

Those at the wedding marked the simplicity yet the beauty and good taste of the bride's costume. No foreign jewels adorned this daughter of the U. S. A. No costly gems from Cleopatra's tomb, no silks from the far east were in evidence. Everything she wore was made right here at home and smacked of simplicity.

Thus was the richest girl in the United States married and thus as from the time of her inheritance at 14 did she prove that she is a real daughter of the U. S. A., for royalty didn't even have a look-in at her wedding and the foxy banker long ago cast in the waste-basket the letters of the fortune hunters of Europe. May her example be followed?

IT HAS been such a good world that I'd be sorry ever to leave it, if there wasn't another one, as much better than this, as this one is better than the chaos out of which it was born. No; I don't just "believe" this; I know it. That's one of the few things I do know—positively, absolutely, certainly, and I didn't have to wait for Sir Oliver Lodge to tell me about it, either. I knew that when I was a boy, just as well as Sir Oliver knows it now, and for the same reasons, and with the same proofs. As the sun sinks lower and the skies grow darken in the deepening twilight, the star of Faith shines more brightly and Hope sings more clearly and sweetly. Every evening, when the sun goes down, I can see that land of Eternal Morning. I know it is there, not because I have seen it, but because I do see it. The Shadowless Land, "where we shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; where there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; where God shall dwell with men, and they shall be His people, and He shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Germans in Advance on Riga Capture Bridgehead at Friedrichstadt But 40 Miles Away.

Today's War News Given in Summary.

German troops fighting toward the Russian port of Riga have won a notable victory in the capture of the bridgehead at Friedrichstadt, on the river Dvina, about 40 miles from Riga, German army headquarters announced today. Petrograd yesterday admitted that the Russians had withdrawn across the Dvina at a point near Linden, after a stubborn battle. In taking the Friedrichstadt position the Germans captured more than 3,300 prisoners including 37 officers.

All the forts of Grodno are now in possession of the Germans and the Russians are retreating eastward. They left six heavy guns to the Germans while 2,700 of their men were taken prisoner.

Intense activity of the artillery continues to be reported from the fighting front in France. Paris alludes to the latest engagements as of particular violence. Military observers abroad incline to the belief that the persistent bombardment of German positions presages an offensive move by the entente allies in the west.

Petrograd, in its latest statement, admits a retirement of the Russians to the north bank of he Dvina in the sector where the desperate struggle to protect Riga and the road to Petrograd is in progress. North of the Vilna where the German lines have apparently made little progress of late, the Russians claim to have taken offensive and to have gained ground against the Germans, with the capture of more than a dozen machine guns and 300 prisoners.

The Balkan problem still is in an unsolved state and there are no signs that the situation will definitely shape itself within the next few days.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—The German army engaged in the battle for possession of the Russian port of Riga has won another important victory. Army headquarters announced today the capture by storm of the bridgehead at Friedrichstadt on the Dvina about 40 miles below Riga. The Germans captured 37 officers and 3,325 men.

The text of today's official statement is as follows:

"Western theater of war: The situation on the western front is unchanged.

"Eastern theater of war: Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: The bridgehead at Friedrichstadt was stormed yesterday. Thirty-seven officers and 3,325 men were taken prisoners. Five machine guns were also captured.

"On both sides of Vilna the enemy has repeated his vain attacks. Besides losing a large number in killed and wounded he left 800 prisoners in our hands.

"In and around Grodno fighting still continues. During the night, however, the Russians, after suffering defeat everywhere, retreated in an easterly direction. The fortress and all the forts are in our possession. The retreating enemy is being pursued. Six heavy guns and 2,700 prisoners remained in our hands.

"To the south of Grodno, also, the enemy has evacuated positions on the Niemen.

"Between the confluence of the Swistocz and the region northeast of the forest of Bielovizch, the army of Gen. von Gallwitz is attacking. Up to the present time 800 prisoners have been taken.

"Army group of General Field Marshal Prince Leopold of Bavaria: The fighting in the passages through the marshy district north and northeast of Grodno continues:

"Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: The enemy is still holding the bridgehead near Brzea-Kartuska. Further south in the region of Dropiczyn, 60 kilometers (37 miles) west of Pinsk, the enemy has been repulsed."

TURN TO DIPLOMACY.

Situation in Near East Claiming London's Attention.

London, Sept. 4.—In the absence of marked changes on any of the battle fronts the English public has again turned its attention to the diplomatic situation in the near east and to rumors of tentative efforts in the direction of peace negotiations. It is announced officially at Nish that the final draft of Serbia's answer to the note of the entente is ready and will be presented shortly. It is presumed here that the reply on the whole will be favorable in regard to concessions to Bulgaria, although little hope is entertained that

NEW YORK CLINGS TO DEATH PENALTY

Constitutional Convention Refuses to Abolish Electric Chair.

Albany, N. Y., Sept.4.—New York's constitutional convention which convened April 7, suspended all rules today and prepared to finish drawing its proposals so that they may be submitted to the revision committee late tonight or early tomorrow. At the close of today's session a recess will be taken until Thursday when the delegates will return to pass formally proposed amendments as revised by the committee. Final adjournment probably will be taken next Friday or Saturday.

In its closing hours today the constitutional convention refused to abolish the death penalty and voted to raise the salary of the governor of New York from $10,000 to $20,000 a year, effective January 1, 1917. The proposal to permit juries in first degree murder cases to decide whether convicted persons should be electrocuted or sentenced to life imprisonment was beaten by a decisive aye and nay vote.

Joseph A. Swartz Dies Very Suddenly From Attack of Indigestion.

an attack of acute indigestion which he suffered at 8 o'clock Friday evening shortly after he had partaken of a hearty supper. Death came at the age of 52 years and comes as a shock to his relatives and scores of friends.

Born in Phillipsburg, Pa., June 12, 1863, he moved to Bellevue when he was a young man and took employment with the Nickel Plate road. Eighteen years ago he moved to this city and had resided here ever since. He had piloted engines over the road from this city for many years and was widely acquainted.

Recently Mr. Swartz had a run out of Fort Wayne on train No. 6 at 2:50 o'clock in the morning and returned on No. 3 at 4:40 in the afternoon. He expected to take No. 6 out this morning and his son George had been called to take the second section of No. 6 to Cleveland.

He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and of the Nickel Plate division No. 537, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Besides the widow he is survived by two sons, George and Arthur, both engineers; one daughter, Mrs. L. E. Merriman, of New York; one brother and sister, who reside in Altoona, Pa.

FIRST LOCAL CASE UNDER THE NEW LAW

Laborer at Rolling Mills Gets Advantage of the Compensation Act.

The first accident reported in Fort Wayne since the new workmen's compensation law passed by the last legislature went into effect Wednesday, occurred on Friday when Peter Yoruk, a foreigner employed at the Rolling mills, suffered an accident in which the end of his right thumb was cut off. The amount of compensation Yoruk will receive is determined by the new law.

Yoruk was not seriously hurt. Immediately after the accident he was hurried to St. Joseph's hospital, where his injury was dressed. He remained at the hospital over night and was removed to his home Saturday morning. The accident occurred while Yoruk was assisting in cutting some scrap iron. Insurance in the case was issued by the C. B. Fitch agency.

HOUSE RANSACKED; NOTHING MISSING

When the family of Herbert Gilmore, 915 Garden street, arose for the day, Saturday morning, they found things very much topsy turvy and every material evidence that the house had been entered during the night and ransacked by thieves. Nothing was missing, so far as could be determined, but the marauders had made a search that was conducted in perfect good faith. The thieves went into the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore, scattered things about and dragged Mr. Gilmore's trousers from the chair on which the garment had been placed almost to the door, but nothing was taken from them. The rooms down stairs were also thoroughly ransacked. Entrance was gained through a diningroom window, from the sill of which a sewing bag was removed to make way to climb in and was found on the ground outside. A small sack containing a small sum in change belonging to one of the children was also found outside the window.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Rear Admiral Caperton notified the navy department today that hedeclared martial law at Fort Au Prince and vicinity. Washington, Sept. 4.—Two hundred people, including many women and children, were killed in a train wreck several days ago, 200 miles east of Mexico City.

CARRANZA SOLDIERS FIRE ON AMERICANS

Cavalry is Rushing to the Scene of New Outrage by Mexicans.

Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 4.—Forty Carranza soldiers today fired across the Rio Grande on an American ranchman named Drew at Cavazos, four miles west of Old Hidalgo, Texas. This report was received at Fort Brown at 11 o'clock today from Captain MacCoy, commanding United States cavalry at Mission, Texas.

They also fired on a party of Texas rangers near the same place. All available cavalry is being rushed to the scene. Today's firing occurred at the same place where a party of Mexicans crossed the Rio Grande and looted several stores.

J. Z. Garza, Carranza consul in this city, told Col. R. L. Bullard, commanding the border patrol here, this morning, that the firing on an American aeroplane near here yesterday, was the work of enemies of Gen. Carranza, who sought to bring about trouble between the United States and Carranza. Garza said he had requested Gen. Carranza to place a strong patrol on the Mexican side to stop border raids. Soldiers and armed citizens today continued the search for Mexican bandits operating north of Brownsville.

The posse found two bombs left by the Mexicans. They were filled with bolts and other scrap iron.

LABOR DAY WILL BE FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Labor Day will be fittingly celebrated in Fort Wayne Monday. The town will be closed up tight and the sons and daughters of toil will be given one day of rest. Several celebrations are planned. Members of the Federation of Labor and their families will spend the day picnicking at Centlivre park.

Manager C. B. Williams has arranged for a celebration at Robison park, at which time Civil war veterans, members of the G. A. R. and woman's auxiliaries will be his special guests.

Many picnics will be held and for the day business in Fort Wayne will practically be suspended.

Pope's Peace Effort Center of Interest

Washington, Sept. 4.—Efforts of Pope Benedict to bring about peace in Europe continued an absorbing subject of discussion today in official and diplomatic circles here. Press dispatches from Rome quoting the pope as expressing the belief that the United States is now in a position to address both groups of belligerents in the matter of peace, with the probability of inducing them to take the preliminary steps which would lead to negotiations for the cessation of the war, attracted considerable attention here. The pontiff also expressed gratification at the cordiality of the interview between President Wilson and Cardinal Gibbons on Thursday, when the latter delivered a message to the president from the pope regarding peace.

The pope's statement confirms reports in Catholic circles here that he was hopeful that the United States might make an effort to get the belligerent nations to sign an agreement to enter a peace conference. The belief was expressed that the financial conditions of the belligerents would expedite peace overtures before another winter campaign.

then to the headquarters at Turner hall, 616 Superior street. The delegation will arrive over the Nickel Plate railroad.

The parade will march south on Calhoun street to Wayne, west on Wayne to Harrison and then north on Harrison to the Turner hall on Superior street.

The first delegation to arrive came from Evansville about 10 o'clock Saturday morning and before evening over 500 visitors from all parts of the state are expected. The Michigan City and the Laporte delegations were also among the early arrivals.

Keller Coming Tonight.

Joseph Keller, president of the Indiana German-American Alliance, with his staff of forty officers, are expected late Saturday afternoon from Indianapolis.

The morning and afternoon were devoted to receiving the delegates and guests, while Saturday evening an entertainment will be given at the headquarters in Turner hall, 616 West Superior street, consisting of a song recital by the singing societies, Concordia, Saxonia and Kreis Stolzenau.

Business Session Sunday.

The first business session will be held at 9 o'clock Sunday morning at the Commercial club. At this meeting President Keller will deliver his annual address. Mayor William J. Hosey and the chairman of the reception committee will also deliver addresses of welcome.

The program Sunday afternoon consists of a volksfest at Germania park concert by the Citizens' band, song recital by the singing societies and athletic contests. A meeting will be held in the evening at the headquarters.

Garden Festival Monday.

A business session will be held Monday morning at the Commercial club from 9 to 12 o'clock and in the afternoon an automobile sight-seeing trip will be made about the city, followed by a garden festival at the headquarters on Superior street. The convention will close Monday evening with a "Kommers" at the Turner hall. Prof. Henry Meyer will act as toastmaster.

The merchants of the city have profusely decorated their places of business for the convention. For weeks committees appointed by the various German societies of the city have planned for the meeting and the prospects are favorable that the convention will be the most largely attended in the history of the alliance. It is probable that the next convention will be held in Indianapolis, although a number of other cities will ask for it.

Serbia will grant her late enemy all the territory demanded in Macedonia.

Advices from Sofia indicate that unless the whole of Macedonia is conceded there is little chance of re-establishment of the Balkan league. It is pointed out in official circles at the Bulgarian capital that compliance with the program of the entente allies means actual participation in the war, while agreement to the request of the central powers implies merely friendly neutrality, expressed in permitting the shipment through Bulgaria of arms and other war supplies for the Turks.

Although it has been established rather definitely that London has no part in the initiation of informal peace discussions, it is plain that official circles are interested keenly in the news of activity in this direction. There are straws in the wind which indicate that what are designated as "proper peace overtures" on the part of Germany could meet with consideration. However, the general public, not so well informed as is the government, probably would regard such overtures as premature.

While diplomats are seeking to enlarge the sphere of the war, and while talk of peace is in the air the great struggle continues along all the fronts without interruption. The Russians are fighting desperately along the Dvina, protecting the shortest road to Petrograd. They are developing a counter offensive before Vilna, which evidently is designed to threaten Field Marshal von Hindenburg's right flank.

French artillery is pounding the German trenches along the western front.

Allies Have Not Broken Through German Lines at Arras.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—"Rumors that the French and British have succeeded in breaking through the German lines at Arras are absolutely untrue," says the Overseas News agency. "To the contrary, the German position in the west are more secure and favorable than was the case several months ago. It is evident that rumors of this nature are being spread by agents of Germany's enemies in an attempt to influence public sentiment."

TURKISH EFFORT FAILS.

Petrograd, Sept. 4.—The following statement was issued today by army headquarters: "On the Caucasus front in the coast region a Turkish attempt to dislodge our vanguard failed and the Turks were put to flight by our hand grenades.

"In the direction of Olti, our patrols routed the Turkish outpost positions in the regions of Lake Akhiseghel at the point of the bayonet and captured their trenches, killing two hundred and capturing war booty."

TURKS CLAIM VICTORIES.

Constantinople, Sept. 4.—Turkish victories in engagements are reported in an official statement given out here today. The communication follows: "On our right wing on Sept. 2, our artillery dispersed an enemy battalion which was being drilled. On our left wing in the region of Kerves there we silenced two hostile guns."

BULLETIN.

locked up pending a hearing in the district court at Warren on Sept. 16. Healis, the chauffeur of Dr. Mohr's car on the night of the murder, was the spokesman for the trio but Brown and Spellman signified their assent to all that he said.

"Tell the people," Healis said, "that we are absolutely innocent and that we believe Mrs. Mohr knew nothing of this crime. We have never signed a confession and anything so said to the Providence police was said in a joking way or in a spirit of anger.

Had Been Threatened.

"Dr. Mohr to my knowledge, had been threatened by several prominent Rhode Island people. I found a letter in his car from a man living on Elmwood avenue in which he threatened the doctor and said that if he did not cease his attentions to his wife he would fill him full of bullets."

Healis declared that the doctor's automobile was followed on the night of the shooting and it was his theory that Dr. Mohr was shot by some man who jumped out of a car, fired at both the physician and Miss Burger then wrecked the machine on a cross road. At this point Brown broke in and said: "I see that the Providence police say that Healis saw Mrs. Mohr in Providence on Monday. That's a joke, for Healis was in Newport all day Monday and Monday night." Brown denied that he ever had written or signed a confession.

Healis Resumes Story.

Healis, resuming his story said:

"When I started the machine in the barns Tuesday night it acted funny. On the way down, the lights kept going out and the motor worked badly. I noticed a car following but I tried to speed up the machine to shake off the one behind but the engine went back on me and finally stalled. The other car came up behind us and slowed down and then went on. Just beyond where we stopped is a cross road. A few minutes after the car passed the shooting began and I believe that the man jumped out of the car when it slowed down, did the shooting, and then cut across to the car on the cross roads."

When Healis ended his story Brown told of his experiences at the Providence police station. They dragged me up and down the room by the arm and kept shaking me," he said, "while one of the inspectors kept repeating 'you know you did it.' I replied, 'well, if you say so I suppose it is so. You seem to know everything.' I never signed anything."

Police Inspector W. F. O'Neil when told of the negroes denial of the alleged confession, said: "They did make a confession in the presence of Mrs. Mohr. Brown said he shot Dr. Mohr, Spellman said he shot Miss Burger, and Healis signed a statement that he stopped the car on a bunch of grass as directed."

Fawn Johnson, wee with the aged princess when she died.

Kil-So-Quah, believed at the time of her death to be the oldest human being in Indiana, was the last of the royal line of the once great and powerful Miami nation, that until the power of the savages was broken by Gen. "Mad Anthony" Wayne's victorious campaign in 1791, had ruled in the great northwestern empire of which this region is the center.

Kil-So-Quah was the granddaughter of Little Turtle, the great Miami chieftain, who from the village of Kekionga, now Fort Wayne, ruled the great nation. Her life had spanned the period from the beginning of the last century well into the first quarter of the present, and she was witness of the transformation of the country from the domain of savagery to the rich and luxurious civilized abode of the white race. She had always dwelt in the land of her forefathers.

Kil-So-Quah was the honored guest of the Fort Wayne fair a few years ago and was easily the most observed of all the attractions on the day of her visit. Her presence here will be recalled by all who saw her.

Languishing Poet of Love Led His Nation Into War

D'Annunzio's Activities to Get Italy to Join Allies Has Caused Austria to Put Price on His Head.

A poet—a languishing poet of love—who has led a nation into war!

That is Gabrielle D'Annunzio, upon whose head Austria has placed a price of $4,000, because by his inflammatory speeches he roused the Italians to a frenzy of patriotism which resulted in the government's declaration of war some months ago.

It is the first time in this war that a price has been put upon the head of an officer—for D'Annunzio, although 52 and a poet, has gone into the war as a lieutenant in the army.

Now called Italy's "unofficial poet laureate," he has been commissioned to write a history of the war for the Italian government and so that he might be properly inspired he has insisted upon going into the fighting itself—to lie in the trenches with the men his oratory sent to war.

His request to be allowed to go with Italy's fleet of battleships as a common sailor was refused.

D'Annunzio preferred the navy to the army because he knew the sea as a boy and loves it. He was born in 1864 in Pescara, the little fortified fishing town, which stands at the Adriatic extremity of the Valerian Way. His mother was the Duchessa Maria Gallese di Roma.

After graduating from the college of Prato in Tuscany he attended the University of Rome.

As early as 1880 he began publishing verse which met with much success in Rome. Encouraged, he went to Paris, where he studied the style of various masters. Returning to Italy his opinions expressed in verse began to have some political significance and in 1889 he was elected a member of the Italian chamber.

The next year he wrote "La Gioconda," one of his works best known in this country. His other equally well known work, a five-act tragedy Francesca di Rimini, he wrote in 1902.

A man of reflection a student he lived at that time in a world of books. But he worked hard and turned out much verse, and many novels and plays. His most celebrated novel, "Il Trionfo della Morte," he published in 1894.

D'Annunzio first tried his hand as a war orator just prior to Italy's war with the Turks for possession of Tripoli in 1911. His drama, "The Ship," was used to rouse the Italians by recounting the glories of Italy's greatest naval period.

After the Tripoli campaign ended with Italy in possession of new territory, D'Annunzio was changed—he was still a poet, but more a patriot. He expressed old Roman pride and Garibaldian love of liberty and with certain political signs of the times he could not agree.

He then went to Paris to live—a sort of "self exile." But when France entered the war against Germany D'Annunzio's patriotic enthusiasm could not be stilled and when Italy began to be stirred by rumors of war he hurried back and was greeted at Genoa by a howling mob of admirers who carried him to his hotel on their shoulders.

His address to the students of the University of Genoa and of other colleges before the Garibaldi monument spread like wildfire through the country.

Four thousand dollars for his head!' That is what Austria offers for the head of the poet, Gabrielle D'Annunzio, whose speeches led to Italy's entering the war.

Speech after speech followed and he was acclaimed by the whole country and received by the king. When war was declared he telegraphed to a friend in Paris:

"The battle is won. I have just harangued a feverish crowd from the capital. The tocsin has sounded and the cries are arising towards the world's most beautiful sky. I am drunk with joy. You are going to see an Italian miracle after the French miracle."

Italy's act in joining the allies, said an admirer, was a triumph for the poet and raised his calling above thinker, scientist and statesman.

To keep up the patriotic fever of his people D'Annunzio, since the war began, has done all sorts of stunts, in addition to his patriotic writings. He has soared above the army in the field in an aeroplane and to arouse the sailors recently took a submarine trip.

In 1914 he startled his admirers by going into the movies with his great historical play, "Cabiria," the production of which cost $125,000.

STRICT ADHERENCE TO PEACE PROGRAM

Chicago, Sept. 4. Strict adherence to the purposes expressed in its motto, "For peace and the freedom of the seas," probably will be the program of the national convention of the Friends of Peace, which opens here tomorrow.

This was the gist of a statement issued today by Chancellor J. J. Tobias, of the Chicago law school, chairman of the local executive committee, prior to going into conference with John Brisben Walker, national chairman, to map out final plans for the meeting.

Mr. Tobias said the friends of peace was not a pro-German organization. Wm. J. Bryan, it is announced, will be one of the speakers.

COREY.

Carlton Vaughn Corey, aged twenty-one years, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Corey, of 137 East DeWald street, died late Friday afternoon at the Lutheran hospital following an illness due to typhoid fever. The young man went to Lake Wawasee for an outing and two weeks after his return he was taken sick.

The young man was a graduate of the Fort Wayne High and Manual Training school, finishing his work with the class of 1912 and was a student at Purdue university. He would have graduated this year from the electrical engineering course of that school. He was prominent in social circles and his death will be grieved by many who knew him. The father of the deceased is executive engineer for S. F. Bowser and company.

Besides the parents he is survived by three brothers and one sister: Ralph L. of Worcester, Mass., Walter C., of Westboro, Mass., Lorin A. and Dorothy E. Corey, both of Fort Wayne. EVIDENCE FINISHED IN BIG TRIAL HERE

Pratt-Bash Case Goes Over Three Weeks for Argument of Counsel.

The taking of testimony was completed before Special Judge Abe Simmons, of Bluffton, Friday afternoon, in the superior court here in the case of the Pratt Engineering & Machine company, of Atlanta Ga., vs. the Bash Fertilizing & Chemical company, of Fort Wayne, and the hearing was then continued to September 23 for argument of counsel, of which each party to the case has a notable battery. The suit is for $50,000 for work done on the Bash Fertilizer company's plant near this city. The defendant company presented a cross-complaint demanding about $60,000. The trial began early in the summer and continued with intermissions until this time.

Two Failures Enough.

In complaining to the superior court for a divorce from Walter Frederick Klingenberger, to whom she was married May 14, 1913, Beulah Klingenberger says they had trouble and separated once before, but agreed to try it again and were reunited, stepping in double harness for a matter of two years, when his conduct became such as she could not endure and she wants the court to cut the legal bonds that bind her to him. She says Walter failed to provide, subjected her to physical violence, associated with other women and drank to excess. Frank M. Hogan is her attorney.

Notes of the Courts.

On appeal from the court of Justice M. J. Tancey, the suit of W. R. Davis vs. Lewis C. Bobilya, has been certified to the superior court. The demand is for $100 on contract made in the settlement for a dissolution of partnership.

The suit of Edward C. Fairfield vs. Jesse Peck has been dismissed from the superior court.

The suit of E. Gilmartin & Sons vs. Herman W. Tapp has been dismissed from the superior court.

In the superior court R. W. Eyster has brought suit against Elza McKown to collect $75 on account. A. W. Parry represents the plaintiff.

Clara Cook has brought suit in the superior court against Charles E. Cook for divorce, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment and no support for the past two years. They were married May 30, 1898, and separated August 1, 1913. Frank M. Hogan is her attorney.

Louis H. Dunten has made application to the superior court for admission to the bar and Judge Vaple has appointed Attorneys E. G. Hoffman, W. N. Ballou and Guy Colerick a committee to examine the applicant.

WORKING ON TAYLOR ROAD.

Sub-Contractor Ireland, for the Erie Stone company, and the committee of protesting property owners have come to an understanding concerning the manner of building the Taylor street road west of the city, and the engineer has set the grade stakes and work is now proceeding after having been held up for some days by the threat of an injunction.

PAULDING COUNTY TO BUILD.

At a conference of the Allen county board of commissioners with the Paulding (Ohio) board of commissioners at Antwerp, Thursday, it was agreed that the construction of three small bridges on the state line along Scipio township, this county, should be constructed under the auspices of the Paulding county board. Allen county will pay half of the cost. The Paulding county board will receive bids for the work at Paulding, Ohio, at 10 o'clock in the morning, September 18. The total cost of the three bridges will be about $1,200.

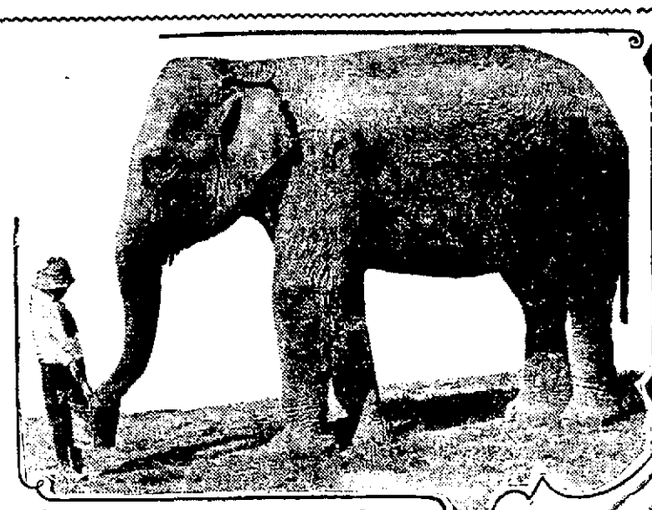
CARL HAGENBECK-WALLACE CIRCUS TO REACH FORT WAYNE ON THREE SPECIAL TRAINS EARLY SUNDAY MORNING FOR LABOR DAY PERFORMANCES.



"Earning his way"

Unloading Horses, Hagenbeck Wallace Circus.

The red wagons come tomorrow!

Three special trains will arrive in Fort Wayne early Sunday over the Wabash railroad. Aboard will be the paraphernalia and equipment of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus which is scheduled for two performances on White's show grounds Monday, Labor day.

The circus specials will arrive thirty minutes apart, according to the schedule given out yesterday morning by railroad officials.

Fort Wayne will probably entertain the largest crowds in many years on Monday. All railroads entering the city have made arrangements for the running of excursion trains and the officials have made preparations for handling a large increase of passengers. Visitors will come in many ways, according to reports. Some will come aboard automobiles, others in carriages, and others will ride horseback, while not a few will walk. But they will get here just the same.

Agents who have been in the city the past week have made their final preparations. As quickly as the circus specials arrive they will be packed in the railroad yards and the work of unloading will begin. There promises to be no halts or perplexing delays. Everything around a big show is done with system. Each man has a special task to perform, and is held directly responsible for it. He performs the same task day after day and in time becomes wonderfully proficient.

The first wagon to be unloaded will be the enormous kitchen van. It contains sixteen feet of steel cooking space and upon it is prepared all the meals for the circus followers. While the space is necessarily small, yet it is compact.

It requires twenty-two separate tents to properly house the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace shows. There is the cook house tent, stables, four of them; blacksmith tent, harness tent, side show tent, the menagerie tent, which houses several hundred rare and costly animals and the big arena tent which comfortably seats many thousand spectators. This mammoth tented palace is the largest arena pavillion ever constructed. It required eighty-five men three months to complete the task. It is valued at a small fortune alone.

Probably one of the most interesting little tents is the "top," which houses the barber shop. Here may be seen the regulation barber pole of red, white and blue. On the inside the circus tonsorialist wields his razor. Time is a valuable asset to the showmen and they are ever ready to resort to time savers. It often happens that they cannot find time to run down town to get their daily shave, and hence the little barber shop.

The Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, when it is pitched on the show grounds in Fort Wayne Sunday morning, will form a little city all in itself. There is a lawyer, a dentist, a doctor, two veterinary surgeons, a minister of the gospel, the Rev. Cadesmas Pope, D. D., half a dozen blacksmiths and harnessmakers, besides a whole corps of bookkeepers and stenographers.

One of the most interesting features apart a big circus is the erection of the monster tents. It is the custom with all other circuses to use eight or ten men to drive the big stakes into the ground. With the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus there is a pile driver on wheels which does the work of forty men. Another time saver may be found over in the cook house. It is a little machine which cuts bread as fast as a man can operate a crank and insert the loaves. The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus is the only tented aggregation in the world which carries a soda pop factory on wheels. Spectators who go to the big show have no need of going thirsty as the soda water distillery daily manufactures 200 gallons of the beverage.

The first part of the program Monday will be the monster two-mile-long street parade which will leave the show grounds at 10 o'clock. The principal downtown streets will be passed through. There will be scores of cages and dens containing wild animals, half a hundred elaborately carved and decorated tableau wagons and floats. Some will represent empires of the orient with their respective rulers. There will be eight bands in the line of march and two enormous steam calliopes, that apparatus which the gentlemen of color call the steam liddle.

The doors to the afternoon show will be opened at 1 o'clock. One hour will be allotted to the students of nature to study the rare and costly wild animals. They are all from Carl Hagenbeck's animal farm at Hamburg, Germany. Several of the specimens are the only ones in captivity. Preceding the performance by thirty minutes a concert will be given by Capt. R. C. Jack's band of forty-two soloists.

Several hundred noted circus artists will take part in the big show's program. Among a few of the features will be Herr von Ritter, a daredevil, who slides on his head down a silver wire from the highest point in the arena; the Ward troupe of six aerialists from the Royal circus, Amsterdam, Holland; the Eugene troupe of nine male acrobats; the Cottrell-Powell family of riders brought to this country from France; Oscar Lowande, the noted equestrian, who until this season only appeared in England and the continent. Lowande is one of the only two riders in the world who turns a somersault from the back of one running horse to another; the Julian family of riders and scores of other noted circus troupes.

Doors to the night show are open at 7 p. m. The performance begins an hour later. One admission ticket will carry the bearer all the way through the big show. Reserved and admission tickets will be on sale circus day at the downtown agency, D. and N. Pharmacy, 624 Calhoun street, where tickets may be procured at the same prices as charged on the show grounds.

Leaving White's field, the circus grounds at 10 o'clock Monday morning the Hagenbeck-Wallace parade will pass over the following route: Washington to Barr street, to Holman, to Calhoun, south on Calhoun to Columbia, to Barr, to Washington street and the show grounds.

State of Indiana Girl

Beautiful Gladys Kleber who will represent the State of Indiana Girl at Robison park on Veterans' Day, Monday, Sept. 6th. She will wear a diadem of white and gold and will ride in a chariot of white and golden yellow. She will carry the State of Indiana flag and will be accompanied by Uncle Sam as sponsor and protector. NEARLY HALF MILLION WORDS IN ENGLISH

Our Language Borrows Profusely and Vocabulary Multiplies Rapidly.

"The English vocabulary has grown to great size," says Professor Clark S. Northup, of Cornell university, one of the editors of The New Universities Dictionary now being distributed by this paper exclusively to its readers; "The number of words found in Old English literature does not exceed thirty thousand; recent dictionaries have listed more than four hundred thousand, mostly of foreign origin. Yet most writers use mainly English words.

"Shakespeare used ninety per cent of English words; the English Bible contains ninety-four per cent; Milton eighty-one per cent; Addison eighty-two per cent; Tennyson eighty eight per cent. Most of our shortest and simplest words are of native origin.

"If any language comes into close contact with another, there is likelihood of word-borrowing. English is one of the most cosmopolitan of languages. From the French it began to borrow even before the Norma neonquest; after that, as intercourse with France increased, it borrowed heavily from the Norman and Parisian French. Many Spanish and Italian words have come in as a result of commercial activity."

Floods of coupons continue pouring in for The New Universities Dictionary. The distributing clerks are kept busy. The publishers have been ordered to keep a big supply bound and ready for emergency calls. It looks as though the raid on the supply would soon make a replenishment necessary. Such a rush was not expected but this paper is greatly pleased to see readers taking such enthusiastic advantage of its educational offer.

1 And as he went out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him, Master, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!

2 And Jesus answering said unto him, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately,

4 Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

5 And Jesus answering them began to say, Take heed lest any man deceive you:

6 For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.

7 And when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be; but the end shall not be yet.

8 For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles: these are the beginnings of sorrows.

9 But take heed to yourselves: for they shall deliver you up to councils; and in the synagogues ye shall be beaten: and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them.

10 And the gospel must first be published among all nations.

11 But when they shall lead you, and deliver you up, take no thought beforehand what ye shall speak, neither do ye premeditate: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour that speak ye: for it is not ye that speak, but the Holy Ghost.

12 Now the brother shall betray the brother to death, and the father the son; and the children rise up against their parents, and shall cause them to be put to death.

13 And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that shall endure unto the end, the ame shall be saved.

Nothing for the Ultimate Consumer

Amid all this frenzied discussion over the prevailing depression in foreign moneys and foreign exchange rates, the ultimate consumer probably has no occasion to indulge in any expectation of sharing the benefits accruing to importers and others whose business is in direct touch with the foreign money markets. The man who buys his goods over the counter isn't going to share in the melon-cutting. The importers hasten to assure us that in many instances immense profits that would have accrued to themselves have been entirely offset by advances in prices on the other side of the Atlantic, and by the stiff trans-Atlantic freight rates now demanded, and the insurance rate which shippers are forced to pay.

Because of the low exchange rates, it has been possible for American importers to pay their bills ahead at discounts varying from 5 to 7 per cent. on goods bought in England to as much as 26 per cent. on goods purchased in Italy. A great many importers, it was said, had seized this opportunity. Although the value of the French franc was depressed 15 to 18 per cent., it was said, importers of French goods would benefit but little by the rate. The French manufacturers foresaw the situation and forestalled it in a great many cases by raising the prices of their commodities to a point where the depression in francs was exactly offset.

In the case of fancy groceries, cheese, macaroni, grapes, olive oil and similar products, imported largely from Italy, there is said to be a marked increase of profit by reason of the slump in foreign money, but the importers are declining to share it with the retailer, contending that but for the flurry an actual advance would have been necessary. The consumer who has been building up hopes of cheaper goods as a result of the depression in foreign money is clearly doomed to acute disappointment.

Dr. Thomas H. Norton, of the department of commerce, has announced the discovery of a process by which dye-stuff material can be manufactured from crude American products, and there will be the profound hope that it will prove practical. For many years America has depended almost entirely upon foreign lands—Germany in particular—for its dye materials, and the war conditions have tremendously crippled hosiery-making and kindred American industries which use vast quantities of dye material. It will be a happy result if American skill and American ingenuity can rise to the present emergency and place American manufacturers in a position where they will be independent of conditions abroad which strike a serious blow at industry in this country.

Some $340,000 worth of the $540,000 issue of bonds at Indianapolis to provide for flood prevention were purchased by private individuals in small amounts, and in order to close the matter up quickly the remaining bonds have just been sold in a lump to one of the financial concerns of the city. The experiment of offering bonds to the general public "over the counter" doubtless entails a lot of additional work for those having the sale in charge, but the opportunity to purchase these public securities is one which should not be denied the small investor. Once he understands that the securities are available in denominations which he can handle, the small investor is going to prove an important element in the floating of city, county and other governmental bond issues.

Police procedure against saloon men who sell liquor to men already in an intoxicated condition is another move in the right direction. These sales are as clearly violation of the liquor laws as is any other form of transgression of the statutes, but so seldom has the law been invoked that it has long amounted to practically a dead letter. The man with too much aboard already has seldom had difficulty in finding somebody willing to sell him still more, a fact which has always constituted an important count in the indictment against the liquor business. We trust the police will not content themselves with merely isolated cases in dealing with this particular evil. The crusade should be very general and very definite.

Jim Watson positively declines to be either muzzled or sidetracked at this stage of the proceedings. "I will be nominated and I will be elected," Mr. Watson is quoted as declaring in connection with his announcement that, rain or shine, he will be a candidate for the United States senate from Indiana on the republican ticket next year. Mr. Watson's pronouncement has a strangely familiar ring. He said something of almost identically the same sort in connection with the race for the governorship against Tom Marshall a few short years agone.

SUFFRAGETS GOING WEST FOR BIG MEETING SOON.

Mrs. O.H.P.Belmont

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, of New York, as general chairman of the great Women Voters' convention, which is to convene in San Francisco September 11, is a figure of interest to thousands of women at present.

Managing her own great wealth, minutely superintending not only her Madison Square home in New York, but also her summer homes at Great Neck and Marble House at Newport, Mrs. Belmont still finds time to be the moving spirit of the Political Equality Association of New York, of which she is president, and to serve actively on the executive committee of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, as well as to throw herself into personal work for women that is essentially human and helpful and separate from so-called philanthropic activity.

Few have forgotten Mrs. Belmont's spirited campaign for equal pay for men and women in her own organization. As personal and human is her work for girls in the night courts of New York.

Harriet M. Johnston-Wood

Miss Alice Paul, the fiery young leader of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, whose National Convention of Women Voters is about to assemble in San Francisco, has been called "the reincarnation of Susan B. Anthony," so single-minded and indomitable has she been in carrying on the abandoned work which the suffrage pioneer laid down.

Miss Paul's brief career is as austere and single in purpose as that of any of the old leaders. A Quaker girl—from one of the oldest and most distinguished of the New Jersey Quakers—this slight gray-eyed girl seemed in the early days the student type. She graduated from Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania, took a course in the New York School of Philanthropy, and but for a period of study in London might never have been drawn into the young-suffrage movement of this country.

Alice Paul

"Don't wait until leap year," says Mrs. Harriette M. Johnston-Wood. "Every woman should have the right to be the father of her own children. There is nothing unwomanly about proposing to a man. Plenty of women who have done it will tell you that."

Mrs. Johnston-Wood is one of the most brilliant women lawyers of this country and who in her New York practice has her husband for law partner.

Mrs. Johnston-Wood goes to San Francisco to hear the preliminary talks that will lead up to the National Woman Voters' Convention of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage. "Naturally, after practicing law ten years, writing and working in competition with men I am a suffragist, and want suffrage to come as quickly as possible."

COMMUNITY CIVICS.

Because many children do not enter high school, but must go from the grades to citizenship, it is very properly urged that civics be taught in the elementary grades of the public school. To supply the need of the child in the grades we are offered "community civics" which has come to be recognized the country over as the Indianapolis idea.

On this line the bureau of education of the department of the interior has put out a bulletin. In "community civics" emphasis is laid on the local community because it is the one with which the child-citizen must have most intimate relations. It is easy for the child to enter into active cooperation with his home community. It is under his observation, direct, and he comes in contact with its affairs. It is a part of full citizenship to understand what is going on; what processes are working in his own community. With this understanding the child-citizen more easily may arrive at a conception of the national community.

The good citizen habitually conducts himself with proper regard for the welfare of his own community, of the community in which he is a member, and is active and informed and intelligent in his co-operation with his fellow members, always with the community well-being in mind. This, in effect, is the definition of a good citizen as included in the bulletin of the bureau of education.

The new idea in civics teaching is based on the theory that the child should come to know the elements of community welfare for which government exists, as well as the mere machinery of that government. The manipulation of social machinery is detail, and the social ends for which the machinery exists is the important thing. Responsibility and right action ought to be instilled in the child-citizen through civics instruction. Otherwise it is sounding and meaningless.

DIGNITY AND AGE.

The worst thing about age is that it seems to call for dignity. At least dignity has been fixed to age in such a manner that where one wears gray at the top and has not dignity, he is more or less repulsive to those with whom he comes in contact.

Age is not by nature dignified; dignity is an artificial accomplishment, forced upon the race through so-called amenities. Age would like to romp and play on the ground like youth; age would kick up its heels and yell and whistle if it were not for dignity. So when a fellow is old enough to realize that he is expected to be dignified, and young enough to want to be a colt forever, it is pretty hard to get along and keep the face straight.

Not that one should not be serious at times. Indeed, one should be serious most of the time. People talk about always wearing a smile; it is wrong. The fellow who is eternally smiling, who is always light of speech and thought—he is quite as much of a bore as the fellow who is too serious. There is a happy medium, a smile when a smile is in order, a serious mien when seriousness is the order of the moment. But there is no time when age can unbend its dignity, save at the expense of seeming foolish to the audience. So age goes about its way in pain, anxious to break over the traces to frivolity once more, to play at childish games, to make mud pies once more, to be as natural as in youth. But such course of conduct is denied to age, and suffering ensues in many cases.

The prospects are now good that the Findlay, Fort Wayne and Western railroad will be built from Ottawa, Ohio, to Fort Wayne, a distance of fifty-seven miles. Work will be commenced next week on the section that will connect the road with the Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City road. Most of the grading was done between Ottawa and Fort Wayne by the American Midland company.

OPENING DAY JUST AS "BIG" AS ANY

Everything to Be Complete at Outset of the Ft. Wayne Fair.

Opening day will be as big as any other day at Fort Wayne's big fair for the afternoon of September 14 is to find every exhibit in place, every concession and attraction tent pitched and the splendid free attractions in full swing. The first afternoon will be given over to Fort Wayne drivers, with two special class races billed for the settlement for all time to come of the disputes among the various horse owners as to the speeds of their respective animals. The classification will be left to the Fort Wayne Amateur Driving club, as this is so ticklish a job that the Fair management wants to remain neutral, adopting nothing more belligerent than a watchful waiting policy. The chief interest in this day's racing card centers in Ebony King, the beautiful son of Atlantic King and the last of the famous Centlivre string. The horse now is owned by Charles Geary, having been bought by him from Charles L. Centlivre several weeks ago. Ebony King has a track mark of 2:10, but stepped a mile in Columbus, O., one time at 2:09½. He was withdrawn from the track and pensioned by Mr. Centlivre several years ago when the string that included the two Frank Bogash horses and scores of other famous animals was broken up by sales.

All hope of securing Art Smith for a day's engagement at the Fair is not abandoned yet, as the management has received a wire from the birdboy saying that he is dickering for dates in Detroit in the week of September 11-12 and if he secures this booking will endeavor to arrange for one day in Fort Wayne. P. T. Strieder was one of Smith's warmest champions during the parlous days when the boy was struggling for recognition as a flyer, and Smith has not forgotten the aid the local man gave him in securing bookings in this section of the country. There is a personal element in Smith's expressed desire to return for the fair, a feeling of friendship and gratitude that may result in the famous aviator's making the date if he can do it without too great a sacrifice. The earning days of an aviator are numbered each year and of course Smith is out to earn his merited reward as rapidly as possible, but the lad's system bubbles over with sentiment and this may sway his better judgment.

RETREAT OF 1812 IS AGAIN ENACTED

Burning Houses and Crops Make Scene of Terrifying Devastation Behind Czar's Troops.

Geneva, Switzerland, Wednesday, Sept. 1, Via Paris.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—The Lausanne Gazette publishes a letter from an Austrian officer fighting on the eastern front in which he says:

"The Russian retreat is a masterpiece of terrifying systematic devastation, which recalls the retreat of 1812. There is an immense sea of flames behind the retiring Russian armies, caused by the burning houses and crops. General Mischenko is followed by well organized detachments of Cossacks, whose duty it is to burn everything behind the army. They accomplish their task implicably.

"When the army tried to enter Krytow, on pursuit of the Russians, every street was aflame. They were unable to pass through this burning furnace and lost many precious hours in going around the town by indirect roads across fields.

"When the Austro-Hungarians arrived at Vladimir-Volynskyi they found the town burning and the town of Verba was blazing. Every village on the Volynskyi was in flames. The Austro-Hungarian troops had no shelter for days.

"The roads are indescribably cut up and obstructed. Convoys arrived a day and a half late. It would take fifty soldiers to draw one cart out of the mud hole. Thousands of men worked upon repairs on the railway from Sokol to Vladimir Volynskyi and if the road had not been repaired in time we would have met with disaster."

GROWING MORE VIOLENT.

Furious Artillery Engagements on the Western Battle Front.

"Yesterday saw artillery engagements of particular violence to the northeast and to the south of Arras; in the sectors of Rollincourt, Wailly and Brelencourt, as well as between the Oise and Aisne in the region of Quennivieres and near Nonvron.

"In the environs of Vauquers we exploded several mines which seriously damaged the works of the enemy.

LIMA MAN'S BODY IDENTIFIED ON F-4

Honolulu, Sept. 4.—Ten more bodies were found yesterday in the hull of the United States submarine F-4. They were crowded together in the engine room, when a hole was cut through the steel plates to effect an entrance. One body was identified as that of Ivan L. Mahan, machinist's mate, of Lima, O.

Members of the naval board of inquiry declined to discuss the question of whether the finding of so many bodies in the compartment indicated the nature of the accident which caused the vessel to sink in Honolulu bay, March 25, with 22 officers and men on board. It was suggested by some of those working on the submarine that an explosion elsewhere in the vessel caused the men to seek refuge in the engine room. So far 13 bodies have been taken from the hold of the submarine.

HARMAR SCHOOL NOT READY FOR OCCUPANCY

The new Harmar school building which has been in the course of construction this entire summer, will not be ready for occupancy according to a notification given out by Superintendent of City Schools Justin N. Study. On account of the wet weather the cement floors did not dry as quickly as was anticipated and this in turn delayed the laying of the ship linoleum which will be used as a flooring.

As a result the pupils of the Harmar school district will have to attend school at the old high school building as they did the latter part of last year's term. It may be only two or three weeks however, until teachers and scholars can move into the new place permanently.

THE BUGLE CALL

The bugle call is sounding.
Hark! Veterans, brave and true!
It's calling all the warriors
Who wore the coats of blue,
Who suffered many hardships,
Just for their country's sake;
Who fought and bled in battle
With many a pain and ache.

The bugle call you hear now
Is not the call, "to war!"
But a call of gladsome welcome
To comrades near and far.
It's calling them together
For a glad and happy day,
For a word of cheer and greeting
To help them on their way.

They'll meet again together,
Not on the battlefield.
Where fierce and bloody conflict
Their lives they could not shield.
But in happy glad reunion,
As they greet each valiant son.
The place of this joyous meeting
Is out at Robison.

So come and help these dear ones
When they meet on Labor day;
Give them a hearty welcome;
Some have not long to stay.
For some are old and feeble.
Their curtain of life may fall
Before another reunion.
So greet them one and all.

State Board Holds Them to Be Not Under the New Compensation Law.

The industrial commission of Indiana, having charge of the enforcement of the employes' compensation law that went into effect the first of this month, has solved a problem with which City Attorney Guy Colerick and the board of public safety were wrestling, and have done it with a ruling to the effect that members of the police and fire departments in municipalities are not employes but officers and therefore not within the operation of the employes' compensation law.

City Attorney Colerick has addressed a letter to the pension boards of the police department and the fire department, giving the gist of the ruling by the state industrial commission and explaining that under this ruling policemen or firemen sustaining injury can have no compensation under the new law, but must look to the pension funds of their respective departments for compensation just as has been done in such cases since those funds were established.

The board of safety had taken no steps to provide itself with protection of compensatory insurance, looking for a way either to escape the operation of the new law or to abolish the pension funds, because it did not want to be charged twice with liabilities for the same injuries. City Attorney Colerick took up the matter with the state industrial commission and has received the ruling here detailed. It would have cost the board of safety about $12,000 a year in premiums to carry compensation insurance covering the police and fire departments.

OSAGE SUBWAY BIDS GO OVER.

Board of Works Will Make No Decision Until Tuesday.

The board of works, feeling the need of more time to work out the advantages of the two bids submitted Thursday night for construction of the city's portion of the Osage street track elevation work at the Nickel Plate and Lake Shore railroads, has taken another postponement and will not award a contract until Tuesday morning. The matter had been put over from Thursday night until Saturday morning. The board hopes to be able to award a contract on one of these bids so that work may be got under way this fall. Bids were submitted by the Moellering Construction company and the Brooks Construction company. Both were in detail and time is required to work out their figures to a comparison.

Spectacled Athletes

Athletes who wear spectacles in action are few, but some do play their favorite games behind windows and rank among the top-notchers.

The rarest case is that of Lee Meadows, of the St. Louis Nationals. He is the only player in the major leagues who wears specs. He's one of the best young pitchers in the majors.

Watson Washburn, coupled with R. Norris Williams in one of the star tennis teams of the country, wears big, shell-rimmed "specs" as he pounces cat-like from one part of the court to the other. Karl Behr, the New Yorker who recently trimmed Maurice McLoughlin, also wears glasses while playing.

W. E. Phillips, of Chicago, one of the star trapshooters, wears two pairs of specs, one pair to remedy a defect in sight and a pair of colored glasses to shade his eyes from the sun. Phillips won the grand American handicap in 1912.

OUIMET PREPARES TO GIVE UP GULF CROWN

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—Francis Ouimet, champion, removed his crown this afternoon and prepared to hand it to John G. Anderson, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., or Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, sole survivors of the national amateur golf championship tournament which began at the Country club a week ago. East and west were lined up against each other in the final round of 36 holes for the cherished title.

Eastern experts picked Anderson to win, primarily because of his steadiness and consistent performances throughout the tournament. Westerners advanced the claim that Gardner, when playing at top speed—such as he showed when he toppled D. E. Sawyer with ease Thursday—could give Anderson a margin of one hole in 36 and still win. They admitted, however, that the possibilities of Gardner's game cover a much larger range than those of Anderson.

If Gardner should win today it will be the second time he has captured the honor.

PETE DESERVES HIS WREATH OF LAURELS

Bootblack Yearned for Higher Things—Now He's a Pug.

Pete Gugletta, an Italian boy, whose ambition a few years ago was to own a bootblack stand of his own in New Orleans, where he lived, is now bantamweight scrapper of note and the lad against whom Kid Williams will likely have to defend his title in a short time.

Gugletta was shining shoes in the barber shop of a New Orleans hotel when he got the idea of having a stand of his own. But he needed money with which to buy a stand. He decided to try the ring game.

For a starter he was matched with Eddie Coulon, who was also starting out, and the purse amounted to $5, winner take all. They boxed a draw, and did so well they were rematched. This time Gugletta won.

Then he placed himself under the managerial wing of Red Walsh, who had been handling boxers for some time. The first thing Walsh did was to change the lad's name from Pete Gugletta to Kid Herman, and as Kid Herman he has made quite a record, holding his own with all the scrappers of his class.

Herman did so well as a boxer he gave up his ambition to own a shine stand. His new ambition is to be bantamweight champion. If he wins his next bout with Nate Jackson, of Oklahoma, he will meet the winner of the Kid Williams-Kewpie Ertle fight.

SIMPLY A CASE OF FRENZIED FINANCE

(BY JACK MURPHY.)

The moneyed men of baseball have set up a squak that resounds from the Golden Gate to the Polo Grounds. They point the accusing finger in the general direction of the deer peepul, and say "Youse is to blame. Youse has lost interest and we has lost money."

They talk of baseball war and European war and weather and the movies in their frenzied efforts to explain the loss of interest in the professional game. But they don't get to the root of the thing.

They, the men with the money, are to blame. True, they are spending money, and they are working furiously to win games. But they are on the wrong track. They don't understand that bought pennants are far less interesting than pennants won.

In the good old days the scout scampered and scooted from sand lot to bush, and picked up the wonders of the hour. It was a case of baseball brains when a new player turned up to help a team climb. But those days are past. The fountain pen and check book succeed the scout, and the wealthiest teams buy whom they want from the weaker ones. It becomes a race of dollars and cents rather than of shrewd baseball judgment.

Take as an example. Early last winter Comiskey figured that Eddie Collins was worth fifty thousand dollars to his team. Connie Mack needed the fifty thousand. Eddie shifted teams. That was the start. Now look over the following list of big ball players who have been bought and sold in this new game of finance, since the last world's series, and then see whether there is a good reason the interest is dropping. Here they are:

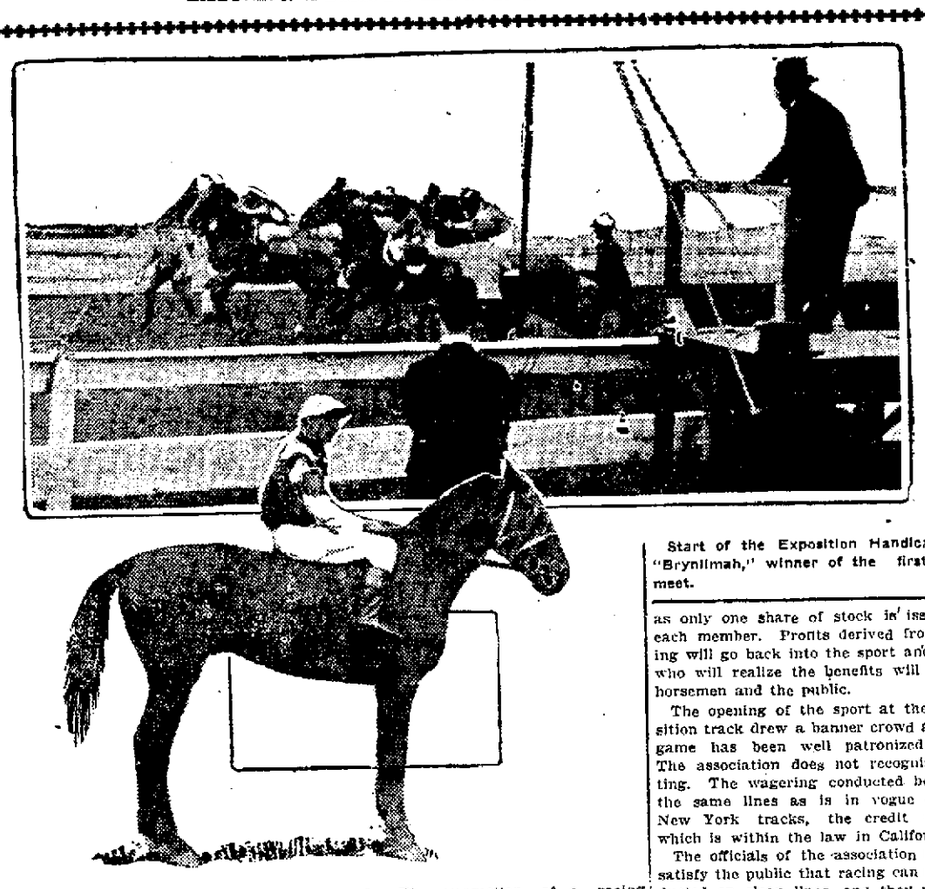
RACING STARTS AGAIN IN CALIFORNIA.



Start of the Exposition Handicap and "Brynilmah," winner of the first day's meet.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 4.—The comeback of racing in California is the most startling surprise the sport-loving folks of this community have experienced in many a day. The sport of kings is here again and every indication points to a revival of the game.

Racing of thoroughbreds in California has been dead in California for more than four years. Laws against betting and bookmakers caused the men who were running the game at that time to deem it unwise to race without the betting feature. In February, 1911, the gates of the Emeryville track were closed.

A bill to allow pari-mutual betting on racing came before the public at an election more than two years ago, but was defeated.

The chance to hold a race meeting came as a result of the Panama-Pacific International exposition, coming to San Francisco. The officials of the great exposition gave sports and athletics a prominent place on the varied programme arranged. The suggestion of a racing meeting between thoroughbreds was taken up, but to conduct a meeting of this kind it would require men who were familiar with the sport. The matter was approached to several influential men who are interested in racing and the thoroughbred industry and they saw the opportunity to wedge in.

The Golden Gate Thoroughbred Breeders' association was organized and in short time there were fifty of California's most influential citizens. The members of this organization composed men from every prominent walk of life and they associated themselves with practical horsemen who had gained reputations in the past for their honest methods of racing horses.

Charles W. Clark, the California millionaire and sportsman, was elected president and James C. Nealon, a veteran Californian, was named secretary.

There is no chance of any financial gain for any of the members of the association, as only one share of stock is issued to each member. Profits derived from racing will go back into the sport and those who will realize the benefits will be the horsemen and the public.

The opening of the sport at the exposition track drew a banner crowd and the game has been well patronized since. The association does not recognize betting. The wagering conducted being on the same lines as is in vogue on the New York tracks, the credit system, which is within the law in California.

The officials of the association hope to satisfy the public that racing can be conducted on clean lines, and they will endeavor to prove to the citizens of this country that the Golden Gate Thoroughbred Breeders' association is promoting racing for the purpose of improving the breeding industry of the state, as well as affording some good healthy outdoor amusement.

The body hopes to promoting racing next spring and the tentative plans call for a thirty days' meeting in this section and the officials are also hopeful of holding a meeting of the same duration in Los Angeles, making it worth while for the eastern horsemen to ship their charges to the coast. With Denver, Reno and California in the racing field the west would be a good racing field during the fall and winter.

The members of the breeders' association eventually hope to have a bill passed at the legislature which will permit pari-mutual form of betting that has made racing so popular in Kentucky and other places and also to have a racing commission appointed.

NEW CATCHER COUNTED ON TO FILL SHOES OF MEYERS

WENDELL.

Chief Meyers, for several years one of the leading catchers and hitters of the major leagues, is about to be let out by the Giants, who are in the process of reconstruction, and the catcher being groomed to take his place is Jim Wendell. McGraw has had the new man on the bench a good deal to give him a chance to study the McGraw style of play, but is now using him as an alternate with Red Dooin.

MLLE VADIA'S CORPS DE BALLET IN SEASON'S OPENING BILL AT THE NEW PALACE NEXT WEEK.

AT KEITH PALACE

KEITH VAUDEVILLE MONDAY.

New Palace to Open for the Winter Season Labor Day.

With a bill of brilliant new novelties and array of vaudeville attractions new to the minutest detail to Fort Wayne audiences, the New Palace, on Labor day afternoon, will make its 1915-1916 debut to Fort Wayne's vaudeville loving population. This second season of the New Palace's history will be marked by an even broader and grander policy than in the first year. Among the unusual surprises on the initial bill are Mlle. Mayron Vadie and her ravishingly beautiful corps de ballet, who are being presented by Hans S. Linne in a group of lyric classic dances. This act is reputed to be one of the most handsomely staged in vaudeville with an exquisite wardrobe accurate to the smallest detail for the several interpretive dances the young graces indulge themselves in. A comedy sketch with a swing and a go to it is the laugh evoker, "Suspicions of Hubby," in which Joseph Hart, late of the team of Hailen and Hart, is presenting Miss Eva Taylor and company. The sketch was written by Lawrence Grattan, who is appearing in support of Miss Taylor. "The King of Ireland" is the monaker given James B. Donavan, the versatile nick with the unfailing supply of Irish witticisms. Mr. Donavan, supported by Miss Marie Lee, will present his latest composite of fun, song and dance entitled, "Doing Well, Thank You." Fresh from the New York Palace the Derkin dog and monkey pantomime, "Dogville on a Busy Day," will interest and amuse Fort Wayne just as it did New York. Moore, Gardner and Rose, a trio of mellow voiced young men, with a fund of new gags and jests; Young and Cummings, the brilliant dancing and singing entertainers; the Brightons in a novelty rag picking act and the Keith pictorial review will complete this opening bill.

The seat reservations for the entire season now are being made at the New Palace box office.

WHAT HAPPENED TO MARY.

Delightful Comedy to Be Presented by Temple Players.

Opening Monday afternoon, the Temple Theater Stock Players will present the fascinating little comedy, "What Happened to Mary," an appealing little play, built from the famous "Mary stories written by Owen Davis for serial publication in a big periodical several years ago. It is an old fashioned love story dealing with a series of incidents in the life of an orphan girl who was left on a lonely island in Chesapeake bay by some men who thus thought to rob her of her patrimony. The girl's yearnings for a broader life than that afforded by the island and her refusal longer to live with her miserly old uncle and soporific aunt goes to New York where a series of adventures that finally bring her back home discouraged ensue. Just what did not happen to Mary through Providence has happened to scores of other unsophisticated girls ignorant of city life. The characters in the little comedy drama are human, strikingly so, and the motive is healthily untainted. Mr. Maurice Jenkins is back from his vacation and will appear in "What Happened to Mary" as Captain Joggifer, the old sea dog who gave Mary the rudiments of a crude education. It is the captain that aids Mary to escape from the island and get to New York.

The Temple Players will tonight present the drama of truth, Cosmo Hamilton's striking presentment of a strange social condition that has grown up among us entitled "The Blindness of Virtue."

AT THT EMPRESS

The regular season of the Empress theater next week with a dashing musical frivolity, "The Winning Widow With Her Winning Widows" as the opening number. With its winning and competent cast of characters it promises to be one of the best burlesque attractions ever seen in this city. The chorus is composed of a troupe of ladies whose beauty was the first characteristics that was considered before being chosen by the management.

The management was extremely careful in selecting every member of the company and the leading fun maker, the Winning Widows, and the oriental dancer were chosen from a score of people who were considered the cream productions of the burlesque stage.

Princes Ionia, the oriental dancer, who will present a new and original dance, is considered one of the best of her kind on the road today and has danced before many notables of the world. The perfect development of every muscle in her body is considered as marvelous by many authorities. She has gained a national reputation in a few short seasons.

Nothing more can be said of the music of this show than that it is composed of some of the newest and most catchy airs of the day, being long remembered after the troupe moves away.

As in former years the matinee begins at 2:30 and evening show at 8:15. Popular prices prevail.

BEATRICE DAKIN, "THE WINNING WIDOW"

Miss Dakin is "The Winning Widow" in the burlesque of that name, which opens the regular Empress season next week.

The Secret of a Good Figure

often lies in the brassiere. Hundreds of thousands of women wear the Bien-Jolie Brassiere for the reason that they regard it as necessary as a corset. It supports the bust and back and gives the figure the youthful outline fashion decrees.

BIEN JOLIE (BE-AN JO-LEE) BRASSIERES are the daintiest, most serviceable garments imaginable. Only the best of materials are used—for instance, "Waiolin", a flexible boning of great durability—absolutely rustless—permitting laundering without removal.

They come in all styles, and your local Dry Goods dealer will show them to you on request. If he does not carry them, he can easily get them for you by writing to us. Send for an illustrated booklet showing styles that are in high favor.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

At Orpheum Today in "Marrying Money." Robert Warwick, Monday.

Clara Kimball Young demonstrates her thorough eligibility to play roles of a widely divergent nature when she creates the delightful leading role in "Marrying Money," a captivating five-part comedy-drama of smart society life seen on the screen at the Orpheum theater today. Miss Young has the assistance of a wonderful cast, including the good-looking young film star, Chester Barnett, at present the most popular juvenile lead in pictures.

"Marrying Money" teems with alternate touches of high humor and intense drama of Mrs. Niles, a wealthy society dowager who wishes to marry her daughter, Mildred (Clara Kimball Young) to a pseudo-count, under the impression that the foreigner is the scion of a wealthy family. But the daughter inadvertently marries a young American boy. The mercenary mamma is on the verge of having the marriage annulled when she learns that the Yankee is due to fall heir to a large sum of Woodrow Wilson dollars, so she discreetly offers the parental blessing.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"ROMANCE OF ELAINE" ENDS.

Final Chapter at Jefferson With Mutual Masterpiece and Keystone Comedy.

The "I Told You So's" will have their inning today, for the final episode of the amazing serial-drama, "The Romance of Elaine" terminates in a blaze of glory and the avaricious followers of the fortunes of the blond-tressed Elaine will know ere eventide who the mysterious Mr. X is, where Craig Kennedy is, and the identity of the man who leads the fair heroine to the altar.

The additional film features of the day manifest themselves as a four-part Mutual Masterpiece, "The Girl From His Town," starring beautiful Marguerite Fischer and C. Elliott Griffen. This clever screen romance is adapted from a story which appeared recently in one of the big national magazines, written by Marie Van Vorst.

The last number is the usual double part Keystone comedy, starring a group of the inimitable Keystones. These comedies have made a distinctive name for themselves all over the world as the most highly developed types of a slapjack humor, and the fact that they are included in the programs of all the first class theaters is an indication of their superior worth.

MISSHAPED TOE FIXES IDENTITY

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—By a misshaped toe and a birthmark on her body, Mrs. G. E. Kostadt had established today her identity as Anna Mooney, who was kidnaped from her parents in this city thirty-one years ago, when she was five years old, kept by Chinese for several years and rescued by police from a trunk in which she was hidden.

After her rescue from the Chinese, Anna was adopted by a Portuguese family. Her foster-mother died when she was 14 years old and four years later Anna married Kostadt. James Mooney, her father, and others offered rewards aggregating $2,000 at the time of the child's disappearance. Mooney and his wife died several years ago, but four sisters and a brother are here to welcome their long-lost sister.

Labor Day at Robison Park

Sion S. Bass and Lawton Wayne Posts, the Ladies of the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps will be the special guests of Robison Park on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6th. There will be a grand parade of Veterans and their auxiliary organizations. The line-up, two abreast, will begin at 3:30 p. m. in front of the pavilion. Every veteran and every member of the Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. will carry an American flag. Headed by the Elks' band, the beloved national heroes will march to the theater, where the exercises will be held. Every old soldier in Allen county is especially invited on Veterans' Day, Monday, Sept. 6th, as this is the golden anniversary of peace within the union. The parade last year was a wonderful spectacle. The sight of two hundred and fifty old soldiers, each one carrying a flag and bowed down with the weight of years, brought cheers and tears from thousands of spectators. The flag never meant more than when carried by these old heroes of ours and we never fully realized before how much we loved the men of the sixties. Manager Williams has personally invited every old soldier of whom he has knowledge. Should any veteran have been omitted let him send his name and address to Manager Williams, Robison Park, at once.

ADMIT CASE AGAINST WOMAN IS WEAK ONE

Providence, R. I., Sept. 4.—The representatives of the prosecution and defense in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr, accused by three negroes of having hired them to murder her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, bent their energies today in seeking to strengthen their respective sides. The officials of the town of Barrington and the county of Bristol, in whose jurisdiction Dr. Mohr was shot, admitted today that so far their case against the woman was a weak one. They pointed out that something more than the confessions of the negroes was necessary for a conviction, for confessions tending to incriminate other persons have no standing in the courts of Rhode Island.

Barrington police officers were searching for two men, who it was understood, had heard a conversation between two motorcyclists on the night of the shooting. Two of the negroes who have admitted their complicity in the physician's death, rode to the scene of the crime on motorcycles. Arthur Cushing, attorney for Mrs. Mohr, continued his quest for a will of the doctor, previous searches having failed to produce anything accept a document which, Mr. Cushing stated, could not be probated. It is understood that in this document Dr. Mohr sought to deprive his wife of all interest in his estate.

Charles M. Mohr, of New York, one of two children of Dr. Mohr by a former marriage, said today he did not think there would be any disagreement in the Mohr family over the disposition of the estate in the absence of a will. He said he and his step-mother had virtually agreed upon a division of the property, which he estimated to be worth $400,000. He expected to receive $80,000 and his sister, Mrs. Ernest Marr, of Baltimore, a like amount. The rest of the estate, he said, would probably go to Mrs. Mohr and her two children.

OPEN A LONG FIGHT ON MARION SALOONS

Drys Expect Contest to Be Carried Up to the Supreme Court.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 4.—The "drys" filed a remonstrance yesterday afternoon to bar saloons from Center township, outside of the city of Marion. The township recently voted "wet" by 398. Marion is "dry." The remonstrance carries 2,872 names, 2,549 being necessary if the whole township is entitled to remonstrance. The applications for saloon licenses and the remonstrance will come before the county commissioners Tuesday or Wednesday.

A long legal fight is predicted, which will end in the supreme court. The "drys" contend that although only a portion of Center township voted, the township as a whole must remonstrate, because the Proctor law expressly provides that the Moore remonstrance law and the Nicholson law are neither repleted, modified nor amended. The township includes parts of the city of Marion. The "wets" assert the right to remonstrate belongs only to voters in the election. If the signers living in Marion are excluded the remonstrance is not sufficient. The "wets" declare the "drys" do not expect the remonstrance to stand, but hope to use it as a basis for a legal fight to delay the opening of the saloons within the two years. Center township includes the National Military home.

Upland, Ind., Sept. 4.—Miss Edith Peelle, a school teacher, is in a serious condition today the result of having been run down yesterday by an automobile driven by Dr. W. J. CHARLES M'CULLOCH.

Charles McCulloch, president of the Hamilton National bank, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary Friday, and was the recipient of a beautiful gold-headed cane, presented to him by employes of the bank. On the cane was inscribed the following words: "1840-1915, to Charles McCulloch, from the employes of the Hamilton National bank."

Mr. McCulloch is one of the oldest bankers in the state. His father, Hugh McCulloch, was the first comptroller of the currency of the United States, which was during the administration of President Lincoln.

Coroner at Gary Unable to Determine Slayers of German Pastor.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 4.—Further investigation into the murder of Rev. Edmund Kayser may be left entirely to the federal authorities, according to Coroner F. W. Smith, who today completed his examination of witnesses with the rehearing of Mrs. August Schultz, who, with her husband, was the first to discover the pastor's body by the roadside. Coroner Smith has come to the conclusion that the persons who wrote the threatening letters to the pastor are connected with the murder.

"It's no wup to the federal authorities to discover the slayers," said the coroner. "They have means at their disposal by which they can trace the writers of the threatening missives that would be useless for me to attempt single handed. I think when the writer is located more than half the battle is won in locating the murderers."

Chief of Police Pontus Heintz has not given up the search. He declared he had clews which might prove fruitful.

Federal authorities are still working in Gary with much secrecy. It was learned today that threatening letters had been received by private citizens who are lending their assistance in locating the murderers of the Rev. Mr. Kayser.

NORTH AMERICAN BUILDING

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 4.—Today's short market session was more or less perfunctory with dealings at low ebb. The turnover in the first hour barely exceeded 50,000 shares, with Colorado fuel the chief feature at a gain of 1¾ to 47¾. Coal shares and trunk lines were taken up later, Norfolk & Western, Western Maryland, C. & O., and Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke, together with other of that class scoring irregular advances. Real leaders like U. S. Steel, Union Pacific and Reading were comparatively dormant, though making general improvement. War shares were variable, moderate gains predominating. The closing was strong. Bonds were irregular.

The lightest trading of the week attended today's operations with few changes of importance. Leading railways were completely neglected. War shares moved sluggishly with one point gains each for Bethlehem Steel at 285, Crucible Steel at 83 and Goodrich at 62 with a decline of as much for Lackawanna Steel at 65½. U. S. Steel, American Car and Colorado Fuel rose minor fractions whie similar declines for Pressed Steel Car and American Can. London's market for Americans was extremely dull.

For Fort Wayne and Vicinity—Fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

For Indiana, Ohio and Lower Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

An area of low pressure covers the country from the Canadian northwest southward to Arizona, another low area lies to the south of Florida. In the interior districts to the east of the Rockies the pressure is high, with the crest to the north of the lake region. This distribution of pressure has given local showers in the central and northern Rocky mountain region, east gulf and south Atlantic states, and generally fair weather elsewhere.

Generally seasonal temperatures prevail this morning.

P. M'DONOUGH,

Veterans' Day at Robison Park

Labor Day at Robison Park will be Veterans' Day. The veterans of the civil war, the Woman's Relief corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. will be the special guests. These heroes of ours will march as in the days of old. Their weapons will not be those of war, however, but the flag for which they fought and bled. It will be an inspiring sight to see these Boys in Blue marching again. It will awaken our patriotism. It will cause our hearts to swell with pride. It will enlarge our appreciation of the wonderful heritage they have bestowed upon us. The veterans are our heroes. They fought for us. They sacrificed for us. They willingly gave up all that life holds most dear that Old Glory might live and continue to wave over an united people. They are growing old. Soon they shall have passed on into the Great Beyond. Labor Day shall be their day at Robison Park. We will stand with uncovered heads as they pass by. We will lift up our voices and cheer that they may know how much we appreciate them.

"They are camping near the sunset;
the shadows are growing long.
Just a step across the river, be brave—
my boys—be strong.
Each day the muffled drum and the silent funeral tread
Reminds us that a comrade is numbered with the dead."

"We'll wrap the flag around you boys,
a nation's love and pride.
Will memorize your sterling worth that
time nor death can hide.
In the city of the dead, we'll strew rare
flowers in May.
A nation's love will follow you when
Uncle Sam is old and gray."

The affair was in honor of Imojene's sixteenth birthday and Reba's twelfth birthday. The evening was spent in playing games on the lawn by the younger guests, while the older ones had their share of fun in the house. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Glick, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Zent and children, Howard and Margaret; Mr. and Mrs. Harve Robinett and Gusta, Ford Pauline and Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Grant Copper; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Glick and Hollis, Carl, Delmar and Eloise; Mrs. Willie Berry and son, Everette; Mr. and Mrs. Will Preisler and daughter, Emma; Joseph Putman; Goldie Zeller; Andrew Hatfield; Ellen Hatfield; Loren and Elva Cowan; Russell Taylor; Luella Berry; Imojene Robinette; Bessie and Esther Pequinot; Harry, Hattie and Irene Taylor; Florence and Ralph Shisleckie; Guy and Paul Putman; Melvin and Irene, Lloyd, and Russell Ferrel; Doris Butler; Winnie Jeffries; Paul Hayes; Lucile, George and Albert Flaugh; Paul Druely, Reba and Donald Fairchilds and Gertrude Robinette.

WEDDING CAUSED SURPRISE.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 4.—Causing general surprise Friday, came the announcement that Miss Louise Holbrock, daughter of Mrs. Sophia Holbrock, and Mr. Herman Oetting, of Allen county, were married Thursday evening. The bride has been for several years one of the popular and capable clerks of the Boston store and worked at the store yesterday without giving a hint to her friends of the nearness of her wedding. A very few, not more than four persons, however, including the couple, who were the attendants at the wedding, were informed in advance of the happy event. Mr. Oetting accompanied by his sister, Miss Lena Oetting, and Paul Trier, of Fort Wayne, came from his home and were joined here by Miss Holbrock and Miss Lettie Lang, who is the most intimate friend of the bride in this city, and the party went to Rev. Arthur Hintz, by whom the ceremony was performed.

INSANE MAN AT HOME.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4. Silas Herald, who escaped from Longcliff asylum a few days ago, hobbed up at the home of his brother, Cleveland Herald, which is also the home of his mother, in Noble county, on Wednesday of this week. It is probable that the fellow walked a considerable portion or all of the way. Sheriff Egolf was notified by relatives in Noble county of his arrival. Friday morning, and they asked that Silas should be permitted to stay with them as he seemed to be better. They reported that he was out mowing weeds with a scythe Friday morning and they would keep him if the authorities would permit. Sheriff Egolf informed them that he had no authority to make a ruling in such a case, and he immediately wrote to the Logansport authorities and asked them what they desired to do.

MONROE LADY IS DEAD.

Decatur, Ind., Sept. 4. After an illness of several months, that began with a stroke of paralysis, Mrs. Margaret L. Lobenstein, wife of L. F. Lobenstein, a well known resident of Monroe, passed away this morning at the family home. Mrs. Lobenstein, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Martin, was born in Ashland county, O., November 8, 1850. She was married to L. F. Lobenstein on December 4, 1871, and for 12 years the family had resided at Monroe. Mrs. Lobenstein is survived by the husband, four sons and one daughter. The sons are Lawrence L. Lobenstein, of Fort Wayne; Ephriam W. Lobenstein, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Alho Lobenstein, of Monroe, and Walter Lobenstein of Fort Wayne. The daughter is Miss Bertha Hendricks, of Monroe.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WAS WOODBURN MURDER SUSPECT

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 4. That there's food in whisky Mike Sullivan, ordinary tramp, firmly believes. Last night at 6 o'clock Sullivan was placed under arrest by Chief of Police Philip Baker and Desk Sergeant John Dillabaugh as he was lying along the traction line near Brebaugh's island west of Huntington. They found Mike asleep with an almost empty whisky jug serving as a pillow. On the way to the station the sunny Irishman related part of his stormy life history to the police. He declared that when Marshal Columbus Croy was murdered in Woodburn several years ago he was picked up as the first suspect, but that his alibi, showing that he was 500 miles away when the crime was committed, served to obtain his release. He declared he had not had a bite to eat since Monday noon, but the whisky served to take the place of food with him.

COLUMBIA CITY LADS ARRESTED.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4.—William E. Pence, Quay Rollins and Cecil E. Mowery, all of this city, were arrested in Warsaw for train riding. The young men boarded the train at Fort Wayne and soon after the fireman and the engineer became aware of their presence. As a consequence they sent word on ahead to Warsaw and when the train pulled in there the police were on the scene ready to give chase to the boys. They were riding on the bumpers and when the train stopped the police made a dash for the boys, but they eluded them and started to run. They were captured, however, after having run several blocks. Lieut. Straussser, of the Pennsylvania detective force, was on the scene and was determined to push the case.

BAD GRAIN ON THE MARKET.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 4.—John Brumbaugh, weighmaster at the Pennsylvania elevator, says wheat is coming in in all sorts of conditions, but the worst is that which was threshed during the rainy weather and thrown into bins and allowed to lay there without stirring. As a result it is musty, and while the berries are large and plump, the musty condition ruins it for flour and it can only be used for feed. Most of the wheat that has been threshed since the dry spell set in is in pretty good condition. Wheat and oats are both coming to market pretty freely now.

PIERCETON MAN SEEKS DIVORCE.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 4. Because he strenuously objected to his wife taking trips to other cities with other men, Raymond Ryan, pool room keeper at Pierceton, has filed suit in the circuit court for a divorce from Isabelle Ryan. As a complaint Ryan stated that his wife insisted in associating with Emma Apoll and her brother, Henry, after he had objected. Ryan claims that his wife, in company with these two persons, made numerous trips to towns in Indiana and Michigan and that he has entreated her to remain at home with him and her two children, Dorothy and Eugene.

DATE OF REUNION CHANGED.

Montpelier, Ind., Sept. 4.—President W. W. Adams has announced that the plans for the soldiers' county reunion have been changed somewhat from the ones made by the committee in its recent meeting and that the date has been changed from September 9 to September 15.

At that time it was decided to hold the reunion on September 9. However, it has been found since that the state fair will be in session at that time and perhaps the attendance would be decreased. Also the Thirty-fourth Indiana is planning to hold a reunion on the 9th and a number would want to attend from this county.

BIG FIRE LOSS NEAR WOODBURN.

Woodburn, Ind., Sept. 4. C. W. Bainbridge, who is a progressive farmer living three miles east of Woodburn, sustained a heavy loss by fire, when his large barn burned. Nine head of thoroughbred horses perished in the flames, forty tons of hay, a new silo which had only been completed a few weeks, together with many tools and other valuables. It is said that $10,000 will not cover the loss to Mr. Bainbridge. Spontaneous combustion was the cause of the fire, the explosion being heard a great distance away. Two thousand dollars insurance was carried on the barn.

LAGRANGE MAN PASSES ON.

Lagrange, Ind., Sept. 4.—Jacob Spearow passed away Friday at his home on Grant street. He was born October 15, 1811, in Tuscarawas county, Ohio. He was married to Mercelia Smith August 25, 1867, at Orland. To this union were born two children, Mrs. Hattie Spearow Cole, of Petoskey, Michigan, surviving. Forty-two years ago he united with the United Brethren church and remained a member of that church as long as it was an organization in Lagrange. Then he united with the Presbyterian church.

ANNEXATION PLAN KILLED.

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 4. The Garrett annexation case heard before Judge Bratton early in the present term came to an end Friday when a decision against the city of Garrett was handed down. Under the law their can be no appeal from this judgment. The decision which prevents the annexation of the territory north of Garrett means that Garrett will not be allowed another saloon. If the decision had been favorable to the city the population would have been increased to a number that would allow another thirst parlor. This case aroused considerable interest in Garrett.

WOMAN GETS HER CHILDREN.

Hartford City, Ind., Sept. 4. Mrs. Charles Wolverton, of this city, was allowed to keep her two small children after the board of children's guardians had concluded to take them away from her. The woman, it is alleged, has been neglecting the children, but when the members of the board went to her home to get the youngsters, she pleaded so hard and stated that they were soon going to Pikesville, O., to join her husband, that she was allowed to keep the children.

THE BANNER YIELD OF OATS.

North Manchester, Ind., Sept. 4. John Myers, residing four and one-half miles east of North Manchester, claims the banner oats yield of the season. Mr. Myers yesterday threshed 1,024 bushels of oats from an eleven-acre field, an average of ninety-three bushels to the acre. Mr. Myers said he endeavored to obtain 100 bushels to the acre. The oats was all cut before the steady downpour of rain started that proved so detrimental to the oats crop.

COURSE IS REARRANGED.

City Normal School Expects Large Enrollment This Term.

In order to give better opportunities for prospective teachers to meet the requirements of the state training board the city Normal school has rearranged its course of study. It is now possible for students to do the work required to secure a class "A" license to teach the first semester of the school year and a class "B" license the second semester. Opportunity is thus given to those who do not desire to teach in the city to secure the training necessary to teach elsewhere. The new arrangement also aids those who desire to continue their training elsewhere to secure full credit for the work done in Fort Wayne.

Those who are preparing to teach in the city must continue to take the full two years' work necessary for graduation. Another teacher has been added to the force and it is expected that the enrollment will be the largest in the history of the school.

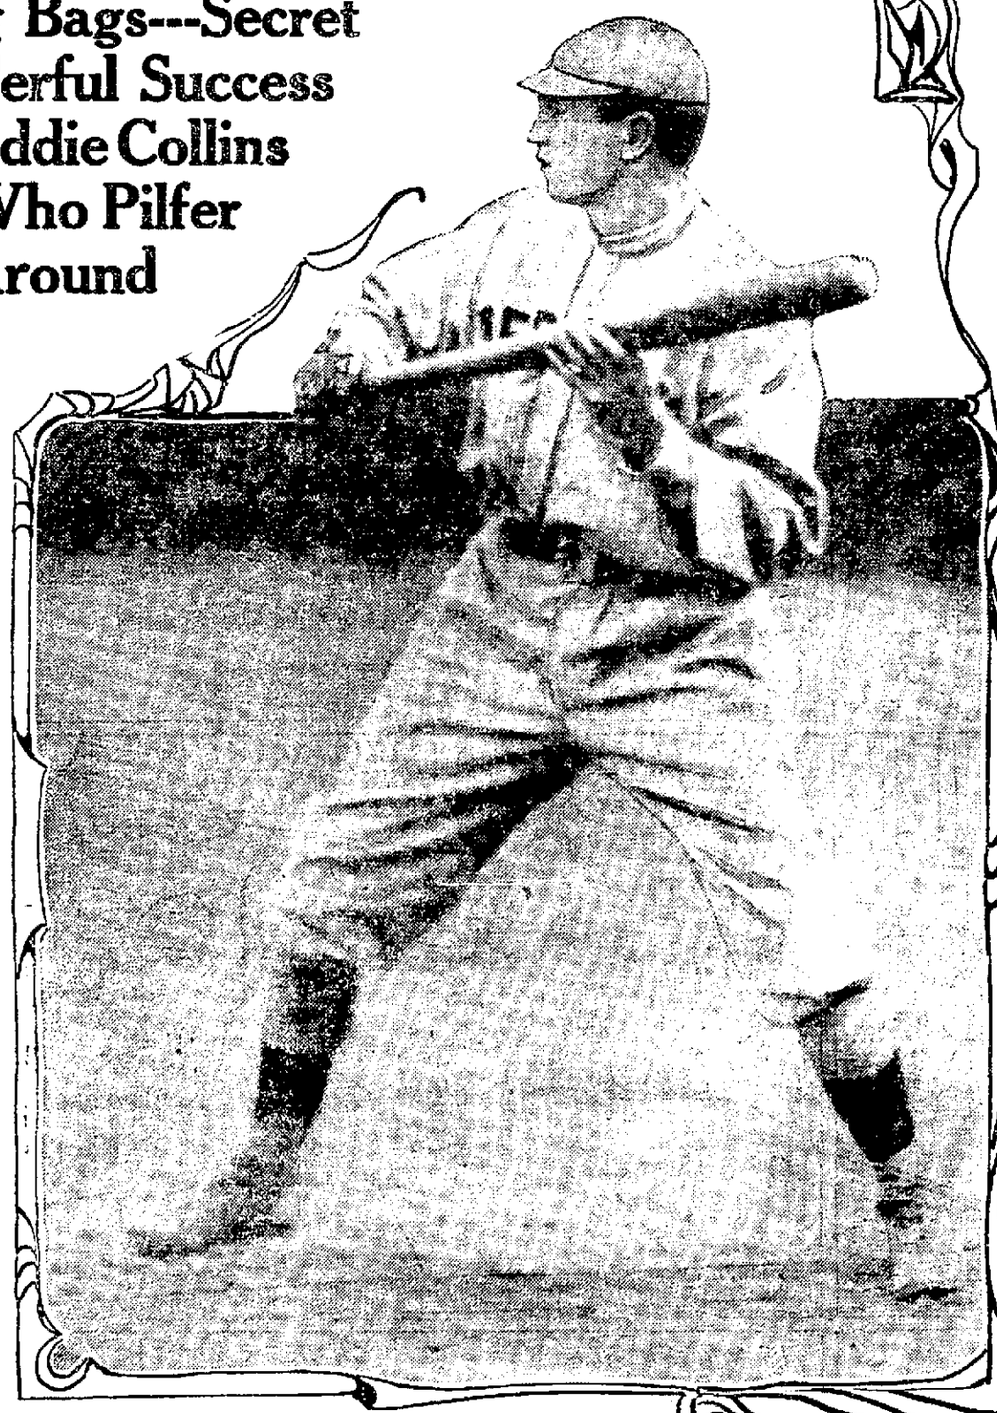
Winged Mercury On The Base Lines

Many Baseball Games Are Won by Stars Whose Specialty Is Stealing Bags---Secret of the Wonderful Success of Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins and Others Who Pilfer Their Way Around the Sacks



TRIS SPEAKER

BOB BESCHER

At the rate he has been running it is considered likely Tyrus Cobb will steal 100 bases this season, thereby smashing all modern records.—News Item.

To steal a base, aye there's the thing, in a tight game where one run is needed to tie the score or to win.

How many men can do it with any degree of consistency?

Given an adept catcher and a pitcher who holds his man to the bag and you can count on the fingers of your two hands the men in the major leagues who have better than a 50 per cent of stealing a base when such a baseball commodity may mean victory.

Base stealing is one of the finest of baseball arts and one that is most over-looked by the baseball public.

That public sees a pitcher whirl and throw the ball to the initial sack time and again with a man occupying that sack in a tight game during the latter innings. It becomes bored by the process.

"Oh, pitch the ball," howls vox populi.

Yet in this very throw to first base the pitcher is curtailing the lead of the base runner, or holding him to the bag, so if he steals his catcher may have a better chance of throwing the runner out.

The reader must understand that it is not until a base runner has reached second base that he is considered in "scoring position."

A single will not score a man from first. It takes a long single to so much as move the base runner to third. But from second a base runner going with the pitch easily can score upon a single, and it is for that reason that the pitcher, the catcher, the second baseman and the short-stop fight bitterly in a close game to keep a base runner from pilfering the keystone sack.

SOME BASE STEALERS.

With a stolen base apt to win the game there are no more dangerous base runners than Ty Cobb of Detroit, Eddie Collins of the White Sox, Tris Speaker of the Red Sox, George Burns of the Giants and Fritzie Maisel of the New York Yankees.

There are other great base runners, too, including Milan of Washington, Bescher of St. Louis and others who have stood out in the base running statistics.

But in the above-named men may be found all the qualities necessary to base stealing success and the different styles of the men is an interesting thing to study.

Cobb's cat-like lead, his wonderful "break" as the pitcher's arm moves and the tremendous vitality of his hooked slide—which he executes in three styles—perhaps make him the most vicious of base runners.

It is the ninth inning and the score is tied. There are two out and Cobb has reached first while Samuel Crawford, most wonderful of sluggers, lazily swings his bat in the box.

It is a mortal certainty Cobb is going to steal second. The opposing pitcher and catcher stiffen. Cobb leads generously off first and, turning, the pitcher snaps the ball to the first baseman.

But he doesn't catch Cobb!

The Georgia Peach has hooked back to first and is upon his feet smiling as the first baseman returns the ball to the pitcher. Again he leads and again the pitcher snaps the ball to first. But Cobb is back again and safely.

MAISEL

STICKING TO FIRST.

The pitcher really has little or no hope of catching Cobb off the base, but it is his intention to make this mercurial base runner stick as close to first as possible that when he does start the catcher will have a better chance to throw him out at second.

Twice the pitcher pitches to Crawford, each time hurriedly. Each is a ball known as a "pitch out." Were Cobb to steal on these pitches the catcher would have an equal chance of throwing him out. But Cobb doesn't. He is too crafty

The third ball the pitcher must get over and Cobb knows it. The twirler hugs the ball to his chest and with scant wind-up again hurls the ball plate-ward. With the slightest, almost imperceptible movement toward the batter, Cobb breaks for second like a flash.

The catcher has the ball and now it is a race between man and throw.

The catcher's throw spins forcefully and low toward second where the short-stop waits ready to catch it. Cobb is going like the wind and with a twisting slide of his body he hooks the bag with the toe of his left boot—which is farthest from the shortstop—and the infielder catching the ball makes a futile stab at the Peach.

Cobb has stolen second and now a single from Crawford's bat will win this very much desired game of baseball. For the sake of our narrative let us assume Crawford hits over second on a line for a single. Cobb scores "standing up" as ball writers say, meaning without effort.

The ball game is won!

Victory made possible by one stolen base!

IT IS SPEED —AFOOT.

Speed afoot is necessary to base running prowess and while all great base runners are fast men not all fast men are great base runners.

Shotton of the St. Louis Browns, Strunk of the Philadelphia Athletics and Robertson of the New York Giants are three of the fastest men in the world going to first base—faster than any great base runner the writer can think of—and yet no one of these three is more than a mediocre base runner.

The reason? They lack wholly that intuitive power which gives to the good base runner the "break." In short, instead of breaking toward second base with the pitch, as Cobb, Collins, Burns, et al., do, they break toward the bag after the pitch has been started and thus lose that valuable fraction of a second, which means the difference between 25 and 50 stolen bases a season.

None is cleverer than Eddie Collins in breaking for a bag. Collins is the most naively deceiving base runner in the big show today. Whereas most base runners take as long a lead as they can get Collins hangs near first base, thus befooling the pitcher into the idea that he (Collins) is not going to steal. Hence the pitcher takes longer in his unwarranted sense of security in making his pitch. As he begins the pitch Collins breaks like a flash for second and the longer time the pitcher has taken in his delivery gives Collins a bigger advantage than as though he took a long lead and were being "held on" by the pitcher.

OTHER PILFERERS.

Burns of New York is a fast man and a tricky slider. Tris Speaker of the Red Sox is no winged Mercury, but his wonderful "break" and his illusive slides rank him among the elite of base running.

Speaker evolved a new slide last season in which he slid completely past the bag behind it. Then turning on his side he clutched the bag from the nether side with his hand. This was new. The second baseman or shortstop with the ball at the bag ahead of Speaker more often than not found no one to touch. Speaker had slid behind the bag. As they lunged at him across the sack he grasped the far corner of the bag with his hand and was safe.

Milan of Washington and Maisel of the Yanks have had the distinction of leading the American league in base running. Each is a consummate base thief. They have speed, but more important by far they get the "breaks."

Base stealing is a beautiful art if it is unappreciated by many.

Ordinarily a base runner will lead his league if he steals 70 cushions a season which is less than one to two games. Cobb had stolen 62 bases by the first of August.

First Patient Leaves Fort Recovery Camp Entirely Cured of Tuberculosis

Fort Recovery camp, less than six months old, has discharged its first patient, cured. Miss Grace Aurand, who a year ago developed tuberculosis, this week left the institution thoroughly well and strong, with no trace of the disease, and in better physical condition than 95 per cent. of the women and girls one meets each day.

Pure air, rest, wholesome food—that's the whole story. There was no electric treatment, no thought holding, no medly of medicines. The simple life and rest did the work.

About a year ago Miss Aurand developed tuberculosis. Instead of taking to her bed and calling upon the saints and the patent medicine advertisers for help, she buckled down to the task of saving herself from the disease.

The Anti-Tuberculosis league came to her assistance, and within a very short time she was at the Rockville sanitarium. She remained at this, the state hospital, until the completion of the first group of little cottages at Fort Recovery camp, Allen county's new sanitarium, and then was brought here.

When she came here she still coughed, she still ran a temperature. But she settled down at her new home and lived the quiet life her attendants prescribed, and she rapidly gained in health and strength. Her temperature became normal and she lost even the slightest trace of a cough. Then regular tests were made to find symptoms of the disease and there were none. But rather than discharge her before they were positive that she was cured, the attendants kept her at the hospital till all danger of immediate re-occurence was past and this week she was discharged cured.

A Model Patient.

That a patient who lives according to the rules of the camp, who does her utmost to help the attendants in their work of saving her, has a much better opportunity than does the patient who is constantly discovering flaws, is proven in this case. Miss Aurand was a model patient. It was her constant cheerfulness and her willingness to abide by the camp regulations that had a great deal to do with her rapid and complete recovery.

Other Patients Recovering.

Of the dozen or so patients confined in the camp there are several who within a short time will be able to leave, fully cured. Some of them have gone to the hospital when they were in fairly well advanced stages of the disease, and the good nursing and good care taken of them has done so much that they are showing almost daily improvement. At least two of the occupants of the little cottages who a few months ago ran high temperatures and coughed constantly, now have normal temperatures at most times and have coughed little or none. It is hoped that at least several of them will be able to leave before the first of the year, and there are others who, should they continue to improve as rapidly as they are doing now, will be able to return to their homes before spring.

The methods employed at the camp are simplicity itself. Late rising and early bedgoing, and rest—rest—rest—that is the cure. The patients live naturally and are allowed to perform no work, are not allowed any physical exercise.

Each afternoon from 1 to 3 every member of the Fort Recovery barracks takes to his or her bed and most of them have trained themselves to sleep these two hours. Those who are able to sleep twelve hours a day are recovering the most rapidly, and it is an established fact that sleep is one of the fundamental principles in the successful treatment of tuberculosis.

Concerning Mother Dukeman.

The quartermaster at Fort Recovery is Mother Dukeman. She is the main gazabo in the house, and it is up to her to keep it in the order a hospital camp should be kept in. And what's more, she does it. A Herculean task is hers, that of caring for the inner man and inner woman three times a day, and the constant care of the farm house that serves as an administration building for the camp. She's just about as important a portion of Fort Recovery as the roof, and they could get along without one as easily as the other.

Mrs. Dukeman has been the housekeeper at the camp since the beginning, and has proved herself a blessing at the place. She has had previous experience in this line of work, and knows well what's to be done and how to do it. But as a mother to the youngsters she shines even brighter than her pots and kettles in the kitchen. A real mother is Mother Dukeman, with a heart as big as she is, and she sings to Baby Joe when it's his bedtime and she greets the weary wanderer on a hot afternoon with a hospitality that doesn't often grow north of Mason and Dixon's line.

The Camp Buildings.

Fort Recovery is located eight miles north of the city on the Huntertown road, or rather on a side road a quarter of a mile off the main highway. At the top of a little rise with a big barn behind and little old apple trees scattered over the lawn, the converted farm house that is an administration building is the center of the grouping of "shacks." It is a weather-beaten old house of the vintage of a quarter-century ago. But the interior is finished and furnished in modern hospital fashion.

With the little money they had the county commissioners and the Anti-Tuberculosis society have done real wonders here. Modern plumbing, everything that is necessary to make the camp wholly sanitary, is there. Electric lights are coming very quickly, and before winter closes down nothing more could be wished than is had in the camp house. That is, nothing more could be wished from so meager an expenditure.

The dozen little cottages scattered over the lawn are far too few to accommodate the scores of sufferers who are clambering for admission to the hospital. But those that are there are well built and well furnished, and squat in the sunlight in several rows. Each cottage is occupied, and as rapidly as new ones can be built there is a waiting list of new patients to move in.

Expert in Charge.

In charge of the work is Miss Lorna Duhm, a young woman who has made a study of the disease from its every angle, and who is an expert in this line of work. A trained nurse for a number of years before she went into tuberculosis work as a specialty, she is decidedly well qualified for the position she fills.

Miss Irene Byron, field secretary and visiting nurse for the local Anti-Tuberculosis league, visits the camp at appointed times and assists in the work there. Dr. E. A. Cruil, of the Tuberculosis league, and a score of other Fort Wayne physicians, are regular visitors at the camp, and hardly a day passes but what one doctor or another will drop in to see the patients and to look after the camp.

But, returning to the case of Miss Aurand, the first cure. She is typical of cases of tuberculosis, which can be cured and are cured in camps similar to Fort Recovery all over the country. Care and rest and air and good food—these are the cures for tuberculosis, the only cures. The case of Miss Aurand is not peculiar, it is merely a local example of what can be done by the proper application of correct methods.

Fort Wayne now can accommodate about a dozen tubercular patients at its new hospital. It should have an institution to shelter several hundred. Every moment the erection of the new hospital is postponed, counts a moment wasted in the saving of lives. The community should appreciate this fact, and business men and professional men, the citizen body as a whole should get behind the movement for a new, a larger hospital, and push the work to completion. No more worthy cause ever has come before the citizens of Fort Wayne, and with the movement well under way it behooves the thinking people of the community to get together and boost for a new building—a Fort Recovery that is large enough to accommodate all the sufferers from the disease. It's up to the people to save the lives that are theirs to save. Come on, let's get busy.

FACING DEFEAT, BUT APPRECIATES HONOR

Third Regiment Given a Place of Distinction at Indianapolis.

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 4.—"It is not often that an army is informed a week in advance of predestined defeat and the exact manner of its accomplishment," said Col. A. L. Kihlman, commanding the Third regiment of Indiana militia, today, "but such is the experience of the Third regiment, Indiana national guard, and Battery A, of Indianapolis, which have been designated by officers of the army to occupy the entrenched position in the great war spectacle at Indianapolis on Monday and meet the attack of the most complete and varied fighting force ever assembled in America, a force at least three times the numerical strength and having even more of a preponderance of strength by reason of the modern implements of warfare which they will include.

"Arrayed against this one lone regiment of infantry and one lone battery of artillery will be two regiments of infantry, Second and provisional regiments, two batteries of artillery (B, of Purdue university, and C, of the city of Lafayette), seven troops of cavalry, including Troop B, Fifth United States cavalry, troops of Ohio cavalry from Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland and Toledo, and the Black Horse troop from Culver military academy, a squadron of aeroplanes for scouting and dropping bombs, a squadron of armored cars, built by the Pathfinder Motor Car company, and armed with Gatling guns, a motorcycle corps, a company of bicycle scouts and an engineer battalion from Culver military academy who will construct bridges to cross streams, demolish villages as the attack advances and operate trench mortars and land mines to be fired by electricity.

"It is safe to say that even the large maneuvers of the regular army have never seen so complete a force as will attack the Third regiment next Monday, but its officers and men are cheerful and have not even made their wills.

"The schedule prepared by officers of the army provides for the opening of the battle by a scouting expedition of the aeroplane squadron to discover the exact position of the defending force. This will be followed by an artillery duel between eight modern field guns of the attacking force and the four guns with the Third regiment.

"The infantry of the attack will then advance until its skirmishers meet the outposts of the defenders and the entire line of the attack will move forward until the line of wire entanglements is passed and the first line of trenches is reached, the defenders falling back to their second line of trenches.

"The defenders, from their second line of trenches, will make a counter-attack with fixed bayonets, but will be overwhelmed by a flank attack of the seven troops of cavalry and the Pathfinder armored cars.

"The spectacle will conclude with the Star Spangled Banner played by 'The Great White Band,' a monster organization of 200 musicians from southern Indiana cities and the three regimental bands of twenty-eight men each, a most fitting finale to the most spectacular war production ever attempted in America.

"In the production of this spectacle will be used 336,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 30,000 rounds of Gatling gun ammunition, 300 rounds of artillery ammunition and 500 rounds of giant powder for the land mines and bridge and village destruction.

"Meanwhile the 'Third regiment' is serene, accepting as a compliment its selection to meet such a varied and overwhelming force and accepts its assignment gracefully.

CHARLES W. BELL HEADS THE ROSTER

Nickel Plate Vets Make Well Known Conductor President.

The ninth and the largest attended convention of the Nickel Plate Veteran Employes' association is in session in Cleveland today and will close tonight with a banquet at which will be over 300 plates. The exercises commenced at 10:30 o'clock this morning, soon after the arrival of the special trains carrying the veterans from distant points arrived. Routine matters were soon passed and the election was the last business of the session. In accordance with the rule the president and first vice president were named by acclamation, being the officers next in order who were pushed ahead. Charles W. Bell, a passenger conductor on the west end of the line, running between Bellevue and Chicago, succeeded General Manager A. W. Johnston as president, and W. P. Dittoe, who was formerly the second vice president, succeeded C. W. Bell as first vice president. The office of second vice president, secretary-treasurer, assistant secretary-treasurer and historian were elected by ballot, there being two or more candidates for each position. The result of this ballot could not be learned in time for today's paper.

CHARLES W. BELL.

Some of the veterans from this city went to Cleveland last night, in order to attend to some business which had to be handled before the regular meetings. Among these were Engineer Robert John, who is a member of the executive board; General Agent S. K. Blair, Supts. W. F. Watterson and H. N. Williams and Superintendent of Bridges and Buildings James Rogers. Other Fort Wayne people who are attending the convention went to Cleveland in two special cars, which were parked here and opened to receive them at 9 o'clock last night and attached to the special train carrying the Chicago delegation, which ran as the second section of train No. 6, reaching Cleveland at 9:30 o'clock this morning. In this party were E. Allison, freight agent; E. W. Doelling, inspector; John Faudree, Peter Eggiman, chief clerk to Mr. Allison; William Link, freight house foreman; George Quidor and J. W. Harber, engineers, Chicago division; E. E. Cripe, conductor; Timothy Hennesy and Henry Carberry, retired watchmen; Robert John, retired freight engineer; F. H. Telley, Chicago division engineer; Dennis McCarthy, retired engineer; LeRoy Hartzler, dispatcher; George Stiver, chief clerk to Superintendent of Bridges and Buildings James Rogers; J. S. Lee, engineer Fort Wayne division; C. F. Merritt, engineer Fort Wayne division; Joseph Brancht, retired engineer; A. R. Urbahns, conductor; W. H. McClaren and David Case; W. W. Hill, F. F. Weakley, Hobart; T. F. Rancevaur, Warsaw; E. E. Ensley, operator, South Whitley; Joseph Smith and J. F. Newby, Claypool; Joseph Hale, of Fostoria, and E. E. Cripe, of Continental.

REMEMBERED W. M. WARDROP.

Western Division Employes Make Two Nice Presents.

When W. M. Wardrop, former superintendent of the Western division of the Pennsylvania, reached the committee room in the Baker street passenger station at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, in response to a message, he found a half-hundred of the employes of the line awaiting his coming to present him with tokens of love and esteem. One present was a magnificent pair of gold mounted field glasses and the other was an artistically executed sheep skin memorial, 18x20 inches, and encased in a handsome frame. M. O. Ginty, conductor on the Pennsylvania Broadway limited, was the spokesman for the men who presented the gifts. This memorial had a picture of the new station, with Master Ed Wardrop, the little son of the superintendent, in uniform representing the stationmaster. The gifts were from the Western division employes and the sheepskin memorial bore the following signatures of men who represented different departments: Stationmaster Ed Brownsburger; Passenger Conductors M. O. Ginty, Joseph P. Morgan and John E. Walsh; Station Agents W. W. Crooks, of Lima, and J. H. Loomes, of Warsaw; Passenger Engineer Clarence E. Misner and Passenger Brakeman H. M. Covert. Mr. Wardrop was completely surprised, but he managed to express his thanks and appreciation of the tokens of esteem. He will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by the division officials at the Hotel Anthony tonight. Mr. Wardrop arrived from New Castle on train No. 25 this morning and spent the early part of the day at the railway offices with his former associates.

THIRTY YEARS OLD.

S. F. Bowser & Company Has Anniversary September 5.

Thirty years ago Sunday, September 5, S. F. Bowser sold an oil pump outfit to J. D. Gumpper, who then conducted a grocery business at the corner of Calhoun and Brackenridge streets. That was the first Bowser oil tank and pump outfit disposed of by the inventor and maker and that date has since been considered the birthday of the big concern, whose factory products are now found in every civilized country in the world. In commemoration of the birth of S. F. Bowser & Company, the printing department has gotten out an anniversary issue of the Bowser Boomer, which would be a credit to any publishing house. The second page contains a portrait of S. F. Bowser and a brief sketch of his life. Other pages have illustrations of the plant and interior views of the factory; pictures of the officers, a picture of the first self-measuring oil tank, made in 1885, and also a picture of the last measuring outfit now so generally used. The latter pages of the Boomer are devoted to an account of the annual birthday outing at Winona, given by Mr. Bowser to his employes, with many illustrations of the scenes on the grounds and the people who took part in them. The Bowser Boomer is edited by George A. Townsend.

HAD TO DIVIDE THE TRAIN.

Nickel Plate Splits No. 1 at This Point.

Because of heavy travel and additional cars, No. 1, on the Nickel Plate, was an hour late when it pulled into the Fort Wayne station. At this point the train was "split," that portion carrying passengers for Chicago and points west of that city, being sent out ahead with instructions to make no stops to pick up or set off passengers. The second section is handling the local business between Fort Wayne and Chicago. All passenger trains out of Chicago tonight and tomorrow will have extra equipment on account of Sunday travel. No. 6, the eastbound night train, will carry two extra coaches filled with German Alliance people from Hammond, who are coming here to attend the meetings, and also two extra coaches loaded with Italian reservists on route to Italy to take a hand in the war. On Nos. 4 and 6 tonight there will be assistant conductors to help handle the passengers.

Wabash Traveling Auditor Succumbs to Paralysis.

The news of the death at St. Louis yesterday of F. W. Henschen, traveling auditor of the Wabash, was a shock to the men at the depot and offices in Fort Wayne, where the deceased was so well known. Two weeks ago Mr. Henschen was stricken with paralysis in the passenger station at St. Louis, where he had gone to take a train for Fort Wayne. He never regained consciousness, it is said, and the attending physician could offer no hope from the start, and death came yesterday afternoon. Mr. Henschen was about fifty years old and unmarried. He had been connected with the auditing department of the Wabash many years.

REDUCING CREW LISTS.

G. R. & I. Takes Two Crews Out of Service.

The dropping out of service of the Pond Lily next Tuesday and the falling off of freight traffic is the cause for a reduction of the crew list on the G. R. & I. Two freight crews, Engineer W. H. Ferguson and Fireman H. A. Thompson and Engineer W. E. Thomas and Fireman F. E. Stewart, have been set back to the extra list and some other changes have been made. Engineers C. W. Yeakley, J. Barnes aand C. G. Grout have been reduced from freight engineers to passenger firemen and the following freight firemen have been furloughed: F. J. Murphy, J. F. Aherns, W. F. Wample, J. M. Averill and M. T. Landstoffer.

CAR REPAIRMEN BUSY.

Demand for Grain Cars Keeps Them on the Hustle.

It is keeping the car repairmen at the east car shops busy at present to overhaul the grain cars as rapidly as they are being sent through the shops. The instructions are to "rush grain car repairs" and as soon as one car is finished it is sent west to be ready to be loaded with grain. The movement eastward is not very heavy, however, but the prospects are good for a heavy movement next week and thereafter.

While en route to Fort Wayne on Nickel Plate train No. 3, yesterday afternoon, Martin Tinsman, representative of the G. E. Bursley company, left in the wash room of a passenger coach a wallet containing about $3,000 in cash and papers. He missed the wallet after he reached the store and at once concluded that he had left it on the train. He lost no time in getting in touch with the conductor and was soon informed that the purse had been found in the rack over the washstand. It was returned to Mr. Tinsman on train No. 4 last evening. Two thousand and eight hundred dollars worth of notes were in the purse, but $123.50 in cash, which had been there, was missing. Some one had robbed the purse of cash and laid it in the rack. Nickel Plate detectives are investigating the matter.

HANDLING VAUDEVILLE PEOPLE.

Occupying a special Pullman sleeper and employing a special baggage car, a party of twenty vaudeville artists will arrive in the city Monday morning at 10:40 o'clock over the Lake Shore from Grand Rapids, Mich. The performances comprise several acts on the New Palace's opening bill and the people are making the trip to Fort Wayne from Grand Rapids over the Lake Shore connecting with the local branch at Jackson, Mich. Thirty pieces of baggage are carried by these twenty people.

Klein, who has occupied a minor position at the works for some time.

HARRY STARKE, HIS BOYS AND PROCEEDS OF DAY'S HUNT AT WANATAH.

Squirrels are more plentiful in northern Indiana at present than at any of the ten or twelve previous years and the hunters who go in search of them are usually successful. A few days ago Harry F. Starke and Edward Feaser, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, shot fifteen of these little animals, all fox squirrels, in a woods near Wanatah, Ind. The illustration represents Mr. Starke with his gun in hand, his two children, Walter and Paul Starke, and the dead squirrels hanging against the wall of the barn above the heads of the children. The scene is the back yard at Mr. Starke's home, 1223 Spy Run avenue, and the kodak picture of it was taken the morning following the hunting expedition.

REED'S COWS BRING HIM INTO TROUBLE

Neighbors Complain That He Violates Law and He Pays Fine.

James T. Reed, who has had frequent trouble with his neighbors in the region of State boulevard and Parnell avenue, was arraigned in the city court Saturday morning on an affidavit charging him with violating the city ordinances that relate to the pasturing of cows on the streets and commons. Half a dozen neighbors testified that Reed's cows were a nuisance and that it had been continued more or less for years. They also said that Reed was an ugly man and abused them with shocking language when they remonstrated with him. Lieut. Harry Grimme, of the police, swort that when officers had been sent out to notify Reed that he must cease his infractions of the ordinances Reed blandly told them that the city could "mind its own business" and he would attend to his. Reed took the stand and admitted most of the testimony of his neighbors, but said there would be no further trouble about his cows. Judge Kerr warned there had better not be, and assessed a fine of $5 and costs, which with witness fees set him back $20.

Wife Says He Drew a Gun.

Alonzo Basy, a colored man employed in a down town department store as elevator engineer, and residing at 1404 Hanna street, was in the city court on a peace warrant sworn out by his wife, Missouri Basy. Mrs. Basy said that Friday, following trouble of several days' duration, her husband thrust a pistol in her face and theatened her life. She says in her affidavit and she stated on the stand that she fears he will "kill and murder her." Basy made a considerable speech in his own defense, at the end of which he was put under bond of $200 to keep the peace.

Cambray Case Goes Over.

Pair of Birds Held by Fines.

George Doyle, alias McDonald, alias Funk, an ex-convict once sent up from here for burglary, and all-round crook, and his pal, Ben Goody, who were arrested one day last week after they had sold 100 assorted pocket knives to Ben Franklin, a Calhoun street dealer, for $5, were arraigned on loitering charges, found guilty and fined $25 and costs each. They went to jail. Detective Sergeants Walter Immel and Joseph Brennan testified to the circumstances of the arrest and to the conflicting stories told by the men. Doyle developed a shocking lapse of memory as to his whereabouts before coming to Fort Wayne. The police believe that the cutlery was stolen from a Wabash freight car some weeks ago and are investigating. The men said they purchased the plunder of a man in Muncie.

Other City Court Cases.

Michael Kelly, a drunk, who would not keep off the streets and was arrested by Officer Paul, drew eleven days.

Godfrey Gurick, an aged Swiss blacksmith from Berne, Ind., was picked up Friday night very drunk, and locked in a cell for safe-keeping. He had money enough left to get back home and was allowed to start.

Laura Jackson, a colored woman who figured some time ago as a witness in a celebrated neighborhood quarrel on the south side, was arraigned on a drunk charge, pleaded guilty and said she just didn't have a word to say. "Was drunk, joudge, your honore, and that's all there is to it." She drew $1 and costs.

Arthur McKenna, a drunk, and Fred Luce, a lolterer, who was picked up with him several days ago, were allowed to go. Their conduct and belongings aroused suspicion, but investigation by the police gave them a clearance. They asked for permission to look for work in Fort Wayne.

John Logan, claiming Chicago as his home, was charged with drunkenness and continued until next Tuesday to enable the police to investigate his possession of a silver cigarette case the man declared he had possessed for a year, but which is so new it shows no signs of use.

KNIVES ARE IDENTIFIED.

Twenty-one pocketknives, most of them of fine quality, were found Friday by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel in an empty boxcar on a Nickel Plate railway siding, near the Wayne oil tank works. At headquarters the cutlery was identified by H. E. Adams, a traveling salesman of 115 East Pontiac street, as part of the contents of his sample case stolen from the Nickel Plate depot August 17. The knives were wrapped in newspapers when found by Detective Immel.

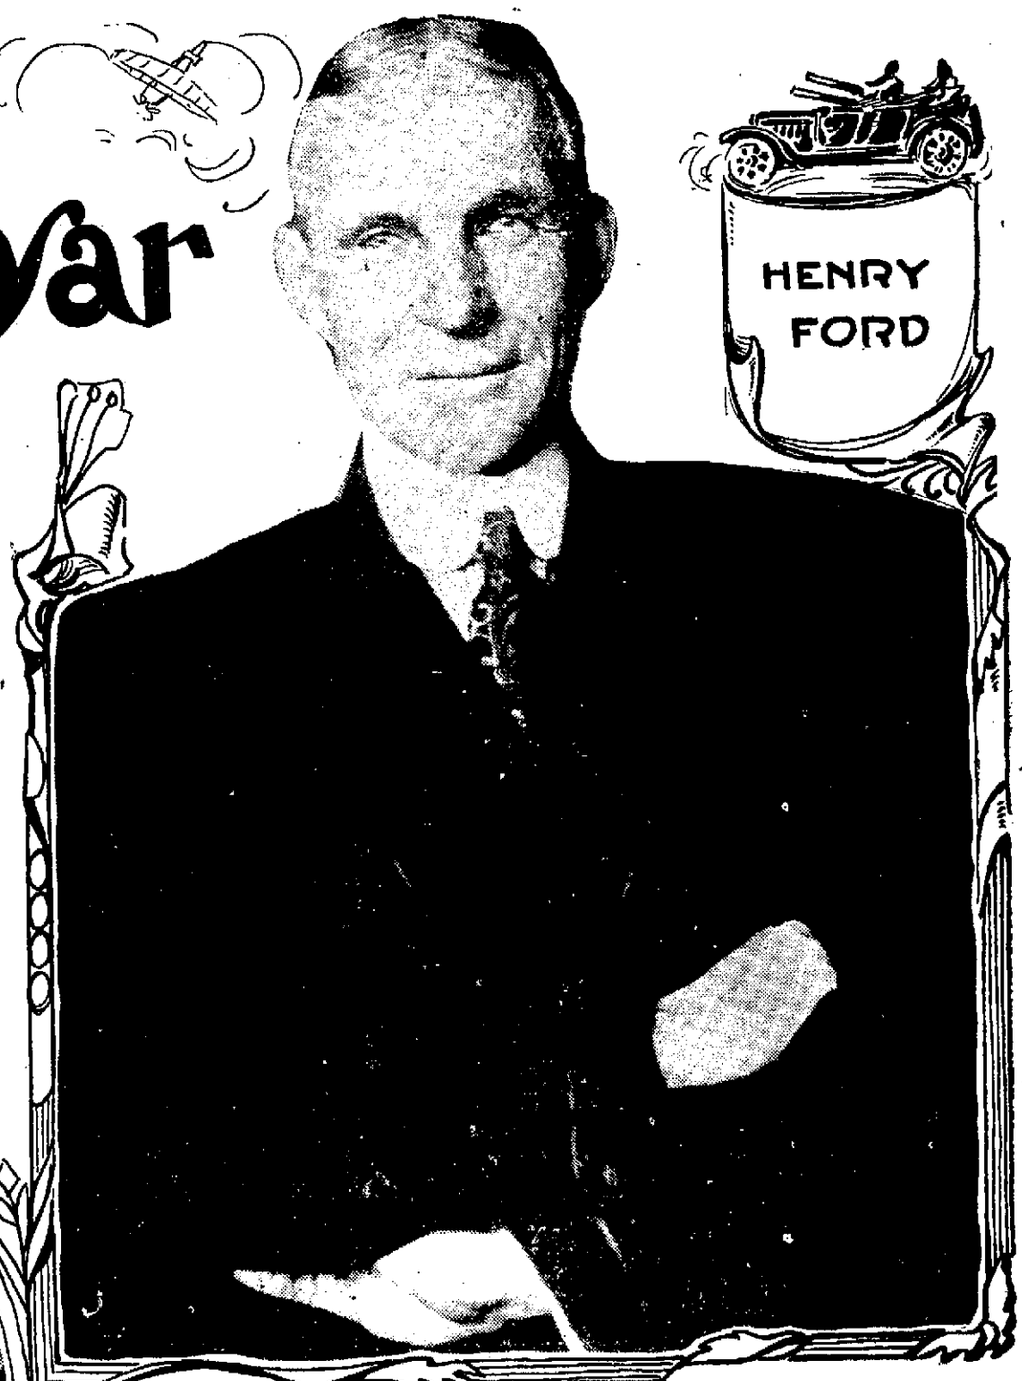
What Of Uncle Sam's Present War Preparedness?

The Situation Is Not So Bad As Some Jingoes Would Have Us Think—When Our Military and Naval Efficiency Is Itemized It Is Found to Be Above the Average—Militia and Volunteers Form the Great Bulk of Our Available Armies



JOSEPHUS DANIELS

THOMAS A. EDISON

CAPT. WILLIAM S. BENSON.

Is the United States prepared for defense?

When the battle summons comes will we be ready to answer it or would we find ourselves lacking in needed arms and ammunition, troops, coast and naval defense?

While jingoes through the country are howling that we are not prepared, the government at Washington is saying nothing, but President Wilson and his staff are confident that should the time come American daring and patriotism will drive back with the terrible blows dealt by our forefathers any foe that dares put his foot on the land of the free.

President Wilson believes that with the means we have at our command—be they meagre as some say they are, or be they nearly sufficient as the government is confident they are, the United States will march forth in the greatest body of fighters the world has ever known and by its very daring will drive back the invaders, even should they outnumber us five to one.

"The United States is not lacking in brave men," says Major-General Hugh L. Scott, "and with men with such patriotic feeling behind them as our troops would display, I would have no doubt as to the outcome of our defense. An army fighting through patriotic motives is ten times as good as one composed of soldiers who fight either through conscription or through other forms of compulsion.

FAITH IN VOLUNTEERS.

"When the United States army, with its aids, the state militia bodies, have to march forth to battle you will find them prepared to do or die. When the 'Star Spangled Banner' rings through the land as a call to arms you will find more volunteers than we could possibly use in years flocking to the colors," continued this veteran Indian fighter —a general who is part of the real backbone of the United States army.

That the United States is being slowly prepared for any conflict that may arise, is shown by present activities in Washington. The President plans a reserve army of 500,000 men beside our regular army. This will include the state militias and men who have seen service and now are on the retired list. The President quietly has called for plans of defense from Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of War Garrison. These plans now are being made in an extensive manner.

Here in Washington it is argued that with such great men as Wilson, Dewey, Scott, Fletcher and others at the head of our national defense, the United States is not going to allow itself to remain somnolent when danger threatens. It is said that those who howl unpreparedness do not know our actual resources or what secret preparations are being made.

The fact that the government permits our ammunition and other factories to manufacture war supplies at full capacity is taken as significant. These factories are employing thousands of men night and day. How simple would it be in an emergency to require the entire output of these factories for the United States army or navy. Here in the United States at present are being manufactured more cartridges, shrapnel and other shells than in remainder of the world combined. The United States has allowed a number of its ordnance officers to leave the service to assume positions with ammunition companies. Is this not significant, and does it not show that the nation has by this one act alone solved a great problem?

Edison, Orville Wright, Henry Ford and other inventors have been called to service by Secretary Josephus Daniels. The greatest inventors the world has known are now assembling to the possible defense of their country.

WOULD SPRING SURPRISE.

Edison has said that in case the United States were invaded he could invent something that would make warfare even more terrible than it is now. Edison is not a dreamer. He sees the need of a certain thing say the defense of our land—and he closets himself alone until that thing is invented. With such men as Edison now called to the colors it cannot be doubted but that the United States will find itself prepared for any emergency.

But there are simpler heroes to which the jingoes and the alarmists of the country should be introduced —the men who would bear the actual brunt of resisting an invasion.

There is first Rear Admiral William S. Benson, a trained sea fighter, who would direct the orders of the navy. Of course, his plans would have to be sanctioned by Josephus Daniels and the War College, but this would be but a formality, for he knows more about sea fighting than any other man in the United States and the country may feel safe in the belief that Admiral Benson would do the right thing. He is a fighter and his real task is to find the enemy's fleet and sink it and he knows how to do it.

Back of Admiral Benson would be a number of old sea veterans, including Admiral George Dewey and all of them have seen service and know how to fight when the enemy's guns are roaring.

Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, who at Vera Cruz showed himself a competent naval officer and a real fighter, is in charge of the Atlantic fleet—the proudest arm of the navy and the one that may have to bear the brunt of the defense, should we be attacked by one of the European powers. All of our dreadnaughts—eight—are under his command, beside a complement of warships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines. And incidentally on these battleships are the world's greatest gunners. No foe could survive their deadly aim. Before any enemy warship could find the range these men would have directed a shell to a vital spot and would soon end the career of the foe's vessel.

It is in such things as these that Washington feels secure. What good are enemy battleships if American gunners can pick them off when they are a mile away and with a few well directed shots, send them to the bottom.

In the Pacific ocean we are defended by Admiral Thomas B. Howard. His fleet consisted only of armored cruisers and would be ineffectual against dreadnaughts. The United States feels, however, that it has a natural protection against invasion from the west.

IN THE PACIFIC.

It has yet another fleet—the Asiatic—which would deal a blow from the rear that would make an enemy tremble should it set out for purposes of invading our western coast. Beside the fleet on the Pacific the United States has eight submarines there and coast forts that are declared impregnable. Certainly, an enemy would find itself as hard put in attempting to invade our west coast as the allies are in attempting to storm the Dardanelles, those natural barriers that give Turkey its only defense from invasion from the west. Our coast defenses are entirely ample on the Atlantic coast also and were our great guns there given the proper range by an aeroplane they would be able to shell the enemy fleet before it came in view, experts say.

In army defense, Major General Hugh L. Scott, who puts down Indian uprisings by going personally to the belligerents and compelling them to surrender without even a shot being fired, will have the entire say. He is a man who believes in the efficacy of our soldiers. He considers a good fighting American as equal to several of the foe. Scott holds the United States Army in the same regard he represents it to the ignorant Indians. He feels confident it can wipe an enemy from the face of the earth.

The army staff has three brigadier generals, four colonels, six lieutenant colonels, twelve majors and twelve captains, with General Scott at their head. He makes a decision and they sanction it. They might formulate plans at odds with his but he has the power to countermand them.

Captain A. W. Grant is in charge of our submarine service and with the inventions being perfected now in this line and with new boats being built, his branch of our defense would play an important part, for Inventor Lake now is perfecting submarines that will be better than those employed by Germany. Incidentally, he is the inventor of the type of boats now employed by the Imperial German government.

Brigadier General Albert L. Mills has charge of calling out and training the state militia for service as well as of recruiting and training raw troops. The National Guards of the various states have shown more activity, better training and discipline than ever before. Army officers have been sent to supervise their work and have pronounced a number of regiments actually fit for service at the front. The National Guard is felt to be one of the strongest supports of the United States army.

The task of supplying ammunition to the troops would be left to Brigadier General William Crozier. The United States has 634 field guns in the service and 226 being made. Crozier now is in charge of our own factory at Watertown, knows how to manage his men and will soon supply the army with needed guns.

Our United States engineers are considered the most efficient in the world. They are in charge of Brigadier Daniel C. Kingman, chief of engineers. They number 249 officers and are the pick of West Point. It would be their duty to design trenches, bridges, railroads, repairs, transportation of big guns and a hundred and one details that are of the greatest importance in moving an army into the field.

Major General James B. Aleshire is in charge of the quartermaster department. He supplies the soldiers with clothing and food and spends about $10,000,000 a year on groceries and meats. He has 30,000 horses in his care.

Nor must we forget Surgeon General William C. Gorgas, the conqueror of disease in the canal zone. A great deal depends on an army's health. Soldiers are liable to carelessness. The first bad water drunk causes typhoid and an epedemic of this disease may wipe out a whole corps of troops. Dr. Gorgas and his aids are right at the front, designing camps from a viewpoint of sanitation, seeing that the laws of sanitation are observed and fighting the first disease germ that manifests itself.

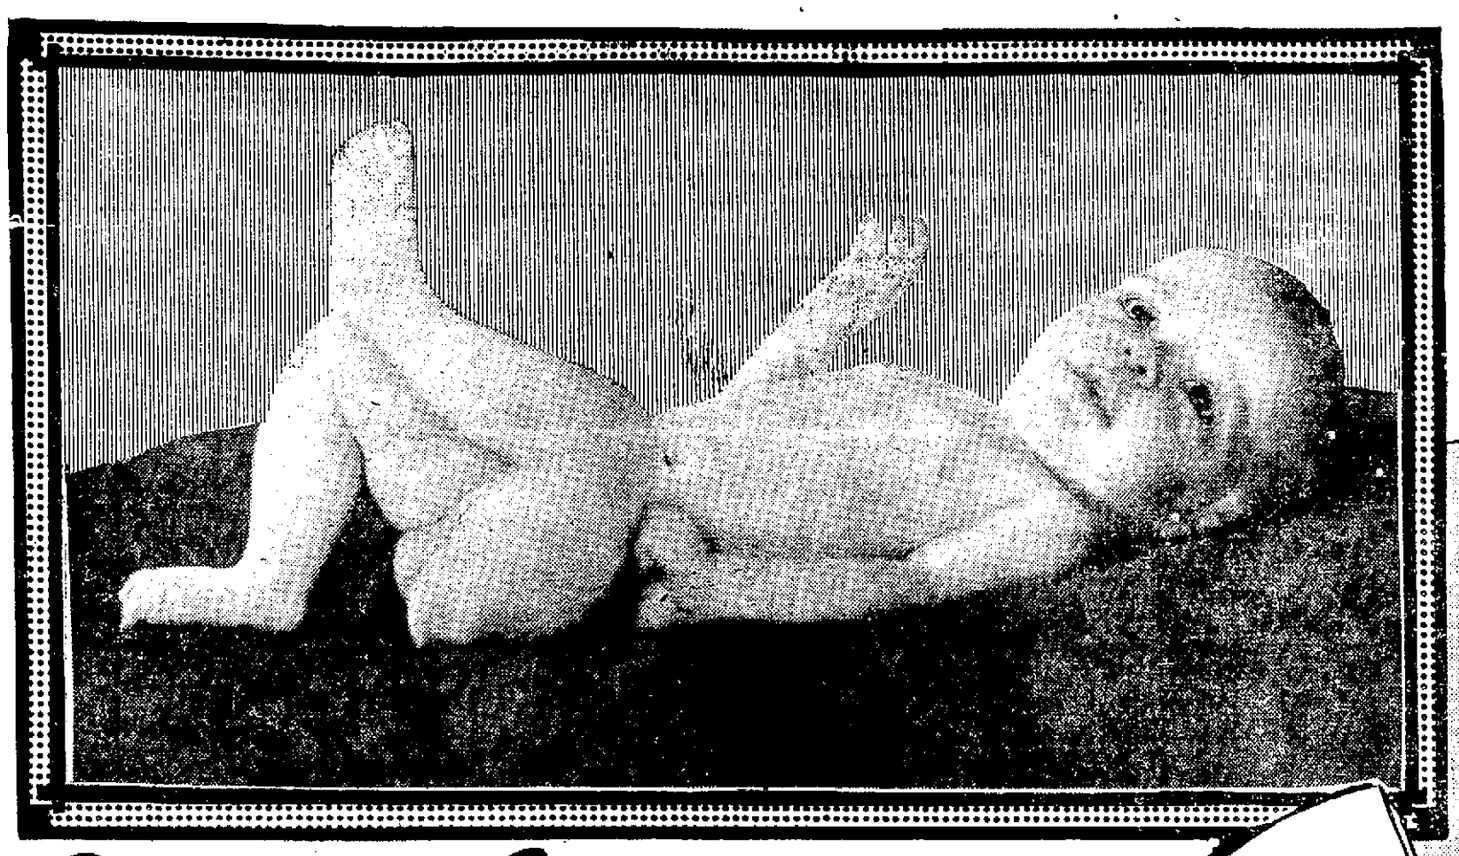
Two real defenders of the country that must not be forgotten are Major General Frederick Funston and Major General Leonard Wood.

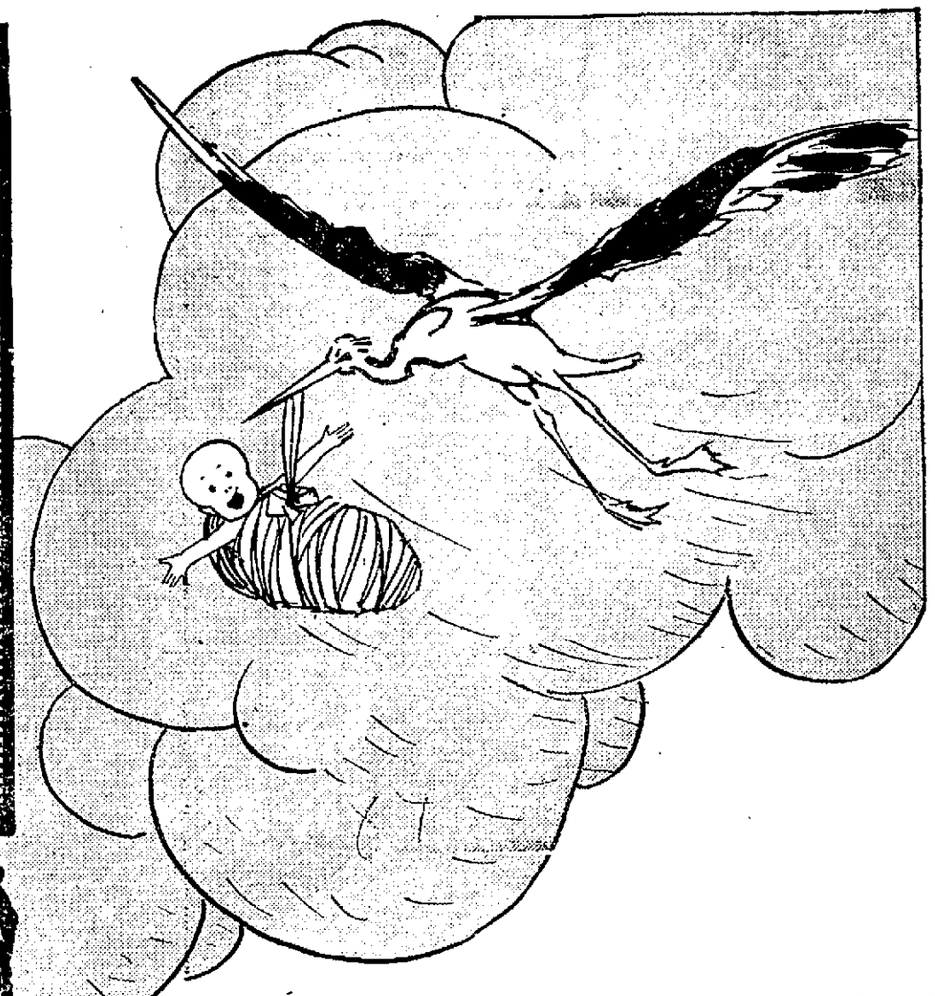
General Funston has 11,000 men under his command in the department of the South, including Texas, through which hostiles might seek to come from Mexico. He is a veteran and knows how to handle troops.

General Wood commands the eastern division and has but 6,600 men under his command, although he is training new troops daily.

So look at the array—Benson, Dewey, Fletcher, Howard, Cowles, Scott, Mills, Crozier, Aleshire, Gorgas, Funston and Wood.

Then ask: Is the United States prepared?





SETTING the ALARM CLOCK in STORKLAND

AN "ALARM CLOCK" WHICH SHORTENS TWILIGHT SLEEP.

The latest discovery in the art of being born is that you may choose your own birthday. In the Wesley Memorial Hospital of Chicago children have chosen their own birthdays for more than a year. A hundred children and more have taken advantage of the opportunity.

Any day within two weeks of the limit of time set by nature may be selected. The mother gets a card from the doctor telling her to be at the hospital on such and such a day within the two weeks' limit. She goes there at night.

In the morning the assistant of the head obstetrician, who is Dr. C. B. Reed, "starts the hands of the alarm clock." This he does with the aid of a Vorhees bag, an invention of Dr. Vorhees of Cornell University, who, like Dr. Reed, permits his patients' offspring to select their own birthdays.

At noon Dr. Reed comes, and within four hours at the most the baby arrives. The greatest advantage claimed for the process is that it is a saving of strength to both child and mother. Decreasing the hours of pain removes the strongest criticism against twilight sleep, which was that it prolonged suffering. Twilight sleep is always given to the mother of the child who chooses to select his own birthday.

Rock-a-bye baby on the stork's bill,
When you retired you set the alarm,
When the alarm clock calls you to rise,
To us you'll hasten, won't you, Bright Eyes?

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Mrs. Bumpus, and again, "Well, I never!"

The yellow telegraph slip the boy just brought fluttered gayly off her lap and down the walk, borne by vagrant breezes, while Mrs. Bumpus rocked violently back and forth in a wicker chair on the porch of the Bumpus summer cottage at Staylate Lake.

"Well, I never!"

What she meant was that she had never in her life heard of such a thing, of course, and probably you haven't, either.

Heard of what? you say—that a comfortable, cheery, happy as the day is long clubwoman of 49, going on 50, and mother of six, should have a grandson named John Bumpus, Jr., after his grandfather, and born on the 25th of July, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Wesley Hospital in Chicago.

Or that a fond grandmamma and grandpapa should be immediately notified of the arrival of said image of his grandfather in a telegram signed "Adele and Billy"?

I see I must begin at the beginning, which was Mrs. Bumpus long-distancing daughter-in-law Adele in the city on Friday, reminding her that she and son Billy were expected to spend the week end with the Bumpus elders at Staylate Lake.

"I can't come. I'm so sorry," Mrs. Bumpus made out Adele as saying. "The stork is coming on the 25th and the doctor—"

"What are you saying, Adele?" Mrs. Bumpus broke in. "The 31st, you mean—at the very earliest, you know. Come right along. Have no anxiety."

"I wish I could, mother," Adele's voice sounded a hundred miles away. "but, you see, doctor has a paper to read at the medical convention in Omaha next week, and from there he is going to the fair, and he would rather—"

What the doctor would rather do trailed off in a burr and a lot of clucks.

Mrs. Bumpus heard no more and dismissed what she had heard from her mind. "Such a rigmarole!" she said, and blamed bad telephone service. "Silly of Adele to get nervous about leaving home this far ahead. All brides are alike—poor dears. You can't tell them anything."

Well she knew how far the hopes of brides often are from the realizations of motherhood—how many an anxious day, week, even month must be thrown in as extra calculation before expected juniors put in appearance.

She laughed and went about her household duties. "Adele will know a thing or two about waiting before she gets through bringing a family into the world."

Of a sudden, and due to the arrival of the mischievous yellow slip which was that very moment flirting with a rosebush, Mrs. Bumpus, mother of six, found herself, experience of fifty years and all, in the backwash of human advance. She sat there in the late afternoon sunshine, recalling a succession of conversations, as like as beads upon a string, to which she had attached no importance at the time.

Now they made a chain of mysterious significance.

There was Jessie Davis. She got married a few weeks before Billy and Adele. Her baby came in June. Kate Alloway's baby was born in April. Mary Stover's Jackie was born in May.

These girls were Adele's chums, and every one of them had told Adele's mother-in-law not only approximately but precisely the date upon which their babies were to come. Now, as she thought back, she realized that every kiddie had arrived on schedule time.

"Well, I never!" declared Mrs. Bumpus.

Purpose and not chance had ruled the event.

There is a new science that might be called "Choose your own birthday."

It is practiced in Chicago in a certain hospital and in one hospital in New York and nowhere else in the wide world, that folks know of.

Kiddies have to be reasonable in picking their own birthdays, as in all things, to be sure. Suppose old Mr. Stork figures on making a small boy a valentine he can't go and decide to be a Christmas card.

By no means.

If he will sit down in Storkville with the almanac in his lap and run his finger along the dates within two weeks before the time old Mr. Stork says he just must clear out of Storkville he can go on a day of his own choosing. For this old world of wars, wage difficulties and welfare work he can pick any patron saint he wants within a two weeks' limit, to make him strong enough to stand the gaff of living.

For example, say he is due in February, at the 25th at the latest. He can come on the 22d, if he choose, a little George Washington. Or if his mind does not run to cherry trees and declarations of independence there is the 12th. He may take that and have the great emancipator for his model. We aim only to please.

Of course the new science does not depend on what Mrs. Jones thinks about little Johnnie's prospective natal day. Not a bit of it. Little Johnnie comes when Mr. Stork reports his measures are just right to fit him to face this cold world and put on his first little flannel undershirt and didy.

Old Mr. Stork always reports that little Johnnie is ready for shipment at least a week or two before the time set by the calendar of his fond mamma and papa. Then it is a mere matter of arranging the day and date when Mrs. Jones will find it convenient to call at Such and Such a hospital and meet Mr. Stork to receive a particularly precious bundle addressed to her.

It isn't the everyday arrangement in all families, as yet this receiving a card like the dentist gives you, for an appointment, telling you to be at such and such a hospital on Monday, say, or if Wednesday will suit you better we'll call it Wednesday, and meet your new little son or daughter.

Oh, no. There are only two such hospitals in the United States at this moment which Mr. Stork makes on schedule time. As we have told you, one is in New York and one in Chicago.

Dr. Charles B. Reed, the head of Wesley Hospital, is intimately in touch with the doctor in New York who makes the stork stand around, roll over and jump through a hoop, because he uses the apparatus invented by him.

This New York doctor is James D. Vorhees. He is associate professor of—now, this is a great big name, though I might call it storkology—they call it obstetrics, at Cornell University, whose medical school is in New York City, and he hasn't met the stork except by appointment made by himself for over a year, and yet in that time he has received him 100 times.

Dr. Reed, who is one of Chicago's leading obstetricians, whose practice is among the wealthy, has systematized the stork to the extent of having him make his calls of afternoons.

For a year or more he has never had a night case or received the consignments of the stork except by such arrangements as one might make with dentists or dressmaker. In that time he has allowed a hundred or more babies to choose their own birthdays—within limits.

Asked to explain in his own way, Dr. Reed said: "Nature is careless about the conservation of the individual. All she cares about is the race. So long as plenty of babies keep coming she doesn't care if a mother here or there perishes or suffers more than is needful.

"In setting birthdays ourselves we help nature. Our process is not against nature, but with nature. It is not premature forced delivery, but delivery on schedule time. Every day's delay in the coming of a child that is ready to be born increases the sufferings of the mother. The child gains all the time in size.

"Aided by measurements given by Ahlfeld, a well-known German obstetrician, we determine exactly or as nearly as is needful, the time of maturity of the unborn child. We find that a child is ripe for birth any time within a week or two weeks before delivery in the course of nature. Indeed, nature has been known to delay a week or two or three beyond the time delivery should have occurred.

"We start the hand of the clock, that is all. Nature does the rest."

Another physician of note calls Dr. Reed's procedure at the Wesley Hospital "prudent prolepsis—a policy of intelligent action instead of watchful waiting."

After it has been determined that the case is one for such procedure and the approximate time has been set, a time and an hour is set when conditions are in the highest degree favorable, and things having been made ready with the care usual in surgical operations, the mother's natural pains are induced. The long tedious hours of the first stage of parturition are shortened materially.

"This is the important part of the Wesley Hospital method," he explains. "The advantage is that the mother is spared exhaustion and the baby is protected from strain. Twilight sleep is added as soon as possible and the sensation of pain abolished."

"What are the definite gains?" asks the medical profession in general, incredulous that helping nature actively in the matter of birthdays instead of passively is going to do good in the long run.

"Reduction of the total period of labor is the greatest gain. The baby is not endangered by prolonged labor," says Dr. Reed. "The fatigue of the mother is lessened, and therefore the danger of infection is diminished.

"Moreover, the case is under control at every minute. The patient is actively guided and protected instead of being left helpless in her martyrdom."

Setting birthdays by schedule came about in trying to correct one of the worst evils of twilight sleep, which is part of the Wesley Hospital procedure. That evil was the prolongation of labor. In studying to do away with this disadvantage of longer labor in twilight sleep this plan to shorten the first stage of labor was perfected.

By using the Ahlfeld system of measurments to determine the readiness of the child for birth, and aided by an appliance called the "Vorhees bag," which has long been used by the profession to induce labor pains in any stage of gestation when need arises, they reduce the sum total of hours spent in labor, first and second stages combined, to the time often spent in the older method in the first stage.

EDDYTORIAL.

Most everybody in Bingville who has a apple orchard is at present engaged in the prociss of making cider. In fackt, cider making is one of the chief industries of Bingville about this time every year, considering as the apple crop in this neck of woods this fall is very profuse, as we might say, cider promises to be very profuse also.

Anybody who has any sense knows that when cider is first made it's most generally sweet, but that if give the proper treatment it will in time become so hard, intoxicatin and inebriatin, so that it contains what is called considerable "kick." The people of this vicinity, including our best citizens, don't care nothin about cider until it gets hard, and it is this state of affairs which suggests the subject for this red hot eddytorial.

There is a few in this town who call themselves the "better element," who look upon hard cider as a curse to humanity, but they are sadly in the minority, and what they say don't appear to carry much weight. The Rev. Sam'l Moore, our beloved pastor, has in times past started several crusades against the manufacture and traffic of hard cider in this vicinity, but all his crusades kind of died in the shell as you might say.

In our eddytorial opinion, hard cider is all right so long as a person don't drink to excess. A glass of hard cider on a hot day in hayin' time won't hurt anybody, whereas six or seven glasses of hard cider on an empty stummick in hayin' time will make most any person act foolish and ridicklus. As long as you don't abuse hard cider it won't abuse you, but when a person tries to drink a whole barl of it at one settin' like Bill Hepburn, our artistic blacksmith, for instance, or Hank Dewberry, our most dilatory citizens, he don't get over it fer a week, and even has traces of a headake after that.

Most people in this town boasts and brags that they can take hard cider or let it alone. There is Deacon Bradbury, for instants—the deacon says he can take it or let it alone, but everybody knows that as long as he has a drop of cider in his cellar he never lets it alone for more than a few hours at a time, and this is not meant to be any reflecshion on the deacon, either, being as he is one of the staunchest pillers of the Bingville church.

We wish to call attenshion to a advertisement in another column of the Bugle where Side Petersby has started up his cider mill and is prepared to make cider in large or small quantities.

In conclushion we desire to state that while we try to be temperate in all things, hard cider has never done us any pertickler injury that we can reckoleckt, and if some of our deadbeat subscribers who owes us any where from $15 to $20 on back subscripshions desires to liquidate a porshion of their indebtedness we will cheerfully accept a barl or two of hard cider and give them credit for same.

Things has begin to look like Fall onct more.

It looks as if this would be a earlier Fall than last Fall.

The seasons, however, is something over which we have little control, if any—they come and go in spite of us.

If you want a live, up-to-date newspaper, subscribe for the Bugle, and keep in touch with current events and the outside world but pay fer it in advance.

Bad Eggs

We had occashion to purchase a dozen eggs at Hen Weathersby's store tother day and was considerable disgusted to find 9 out of 12 too aged and infirm for table use.

This is the worst dozen of eggs we ever bought offen Hen Weathersby—heretofore we never have found more than half of them bad. We desire to say that if Hen Weathersby thinks he can conduct an up-to-date business emporium by selling eggs wich when opened will drive you out of house and home, he is mistaken. We like fresh eggs as well as anybody, but no person with any sense would open any one of them nine bad eggs we got from Hen unless they was out somewhere in a ten-aker field.

Hank Out of Work

Hank Dewherry informs us that he never seen times so hard as they have been for him this summer. Hank says he aint had a job of work since last May, and that if any person in Bingville or vicinity desires any wood chopped for winter use, he would be glad to earn a dollar in order to keep his soul and body together as you might say.

Them who knows Hank as well as we do knows that when hot weather comes and pershirashion begins, there aint no danger of him ever losin his eyesight lookin for work. If you want any wood chopped and aint in a hurry for it, see Hank.

Gid Changed His Mind

Gid Smalley called at this office as mad as a wet hen last week and desired to know why he didn't receive his Bugle the week before?

We told Gid that one reason why he didn't receive it was because it had been discontinued, owing to the fact that he ain't paid a cent on his subscripshion since he first subscribed 11 years ago. Gid got pretty hot when we told him this and told us we could swet for our money. We told Gid we had swet 11 years for it, night-swets and day-swets, and now that we proposed that he should do some swetting himself, being as we was going to put this matter in the hands of Amos Hillyer, our lawyer, and send him to jail if necessary.

Gid kind of cooled off when we said this and hauled out his wallet and paid us half of what he owed us like a gentleman, after which he invited ourself and wife to eat dinner with hisself and wife next Sunday, which we shall do with great pleasure.

If we thought this course would work as well with other people as it does with Gid, we would stop the papers of about half of our subscribers immejit.

Lige Went to Sleep

Lige Green went to sleep at church service last Sunday morning and snored so loud that Rev. Sam'l Moore, our beluvved pastor, had to holler at the top of his lungs to make hisself heard.

Finally, the Rev. Moore asked Deacon Bradbury if he would request him not to snore so loud, which the deacon done, and Lige got mad and clapped on his hat and left the church in disgust. Lige says unless he can worship at church according to the dictates of his own conscience, he will be doggoned if he don't take his name offen the church roll.

Cy Is Packing Apples

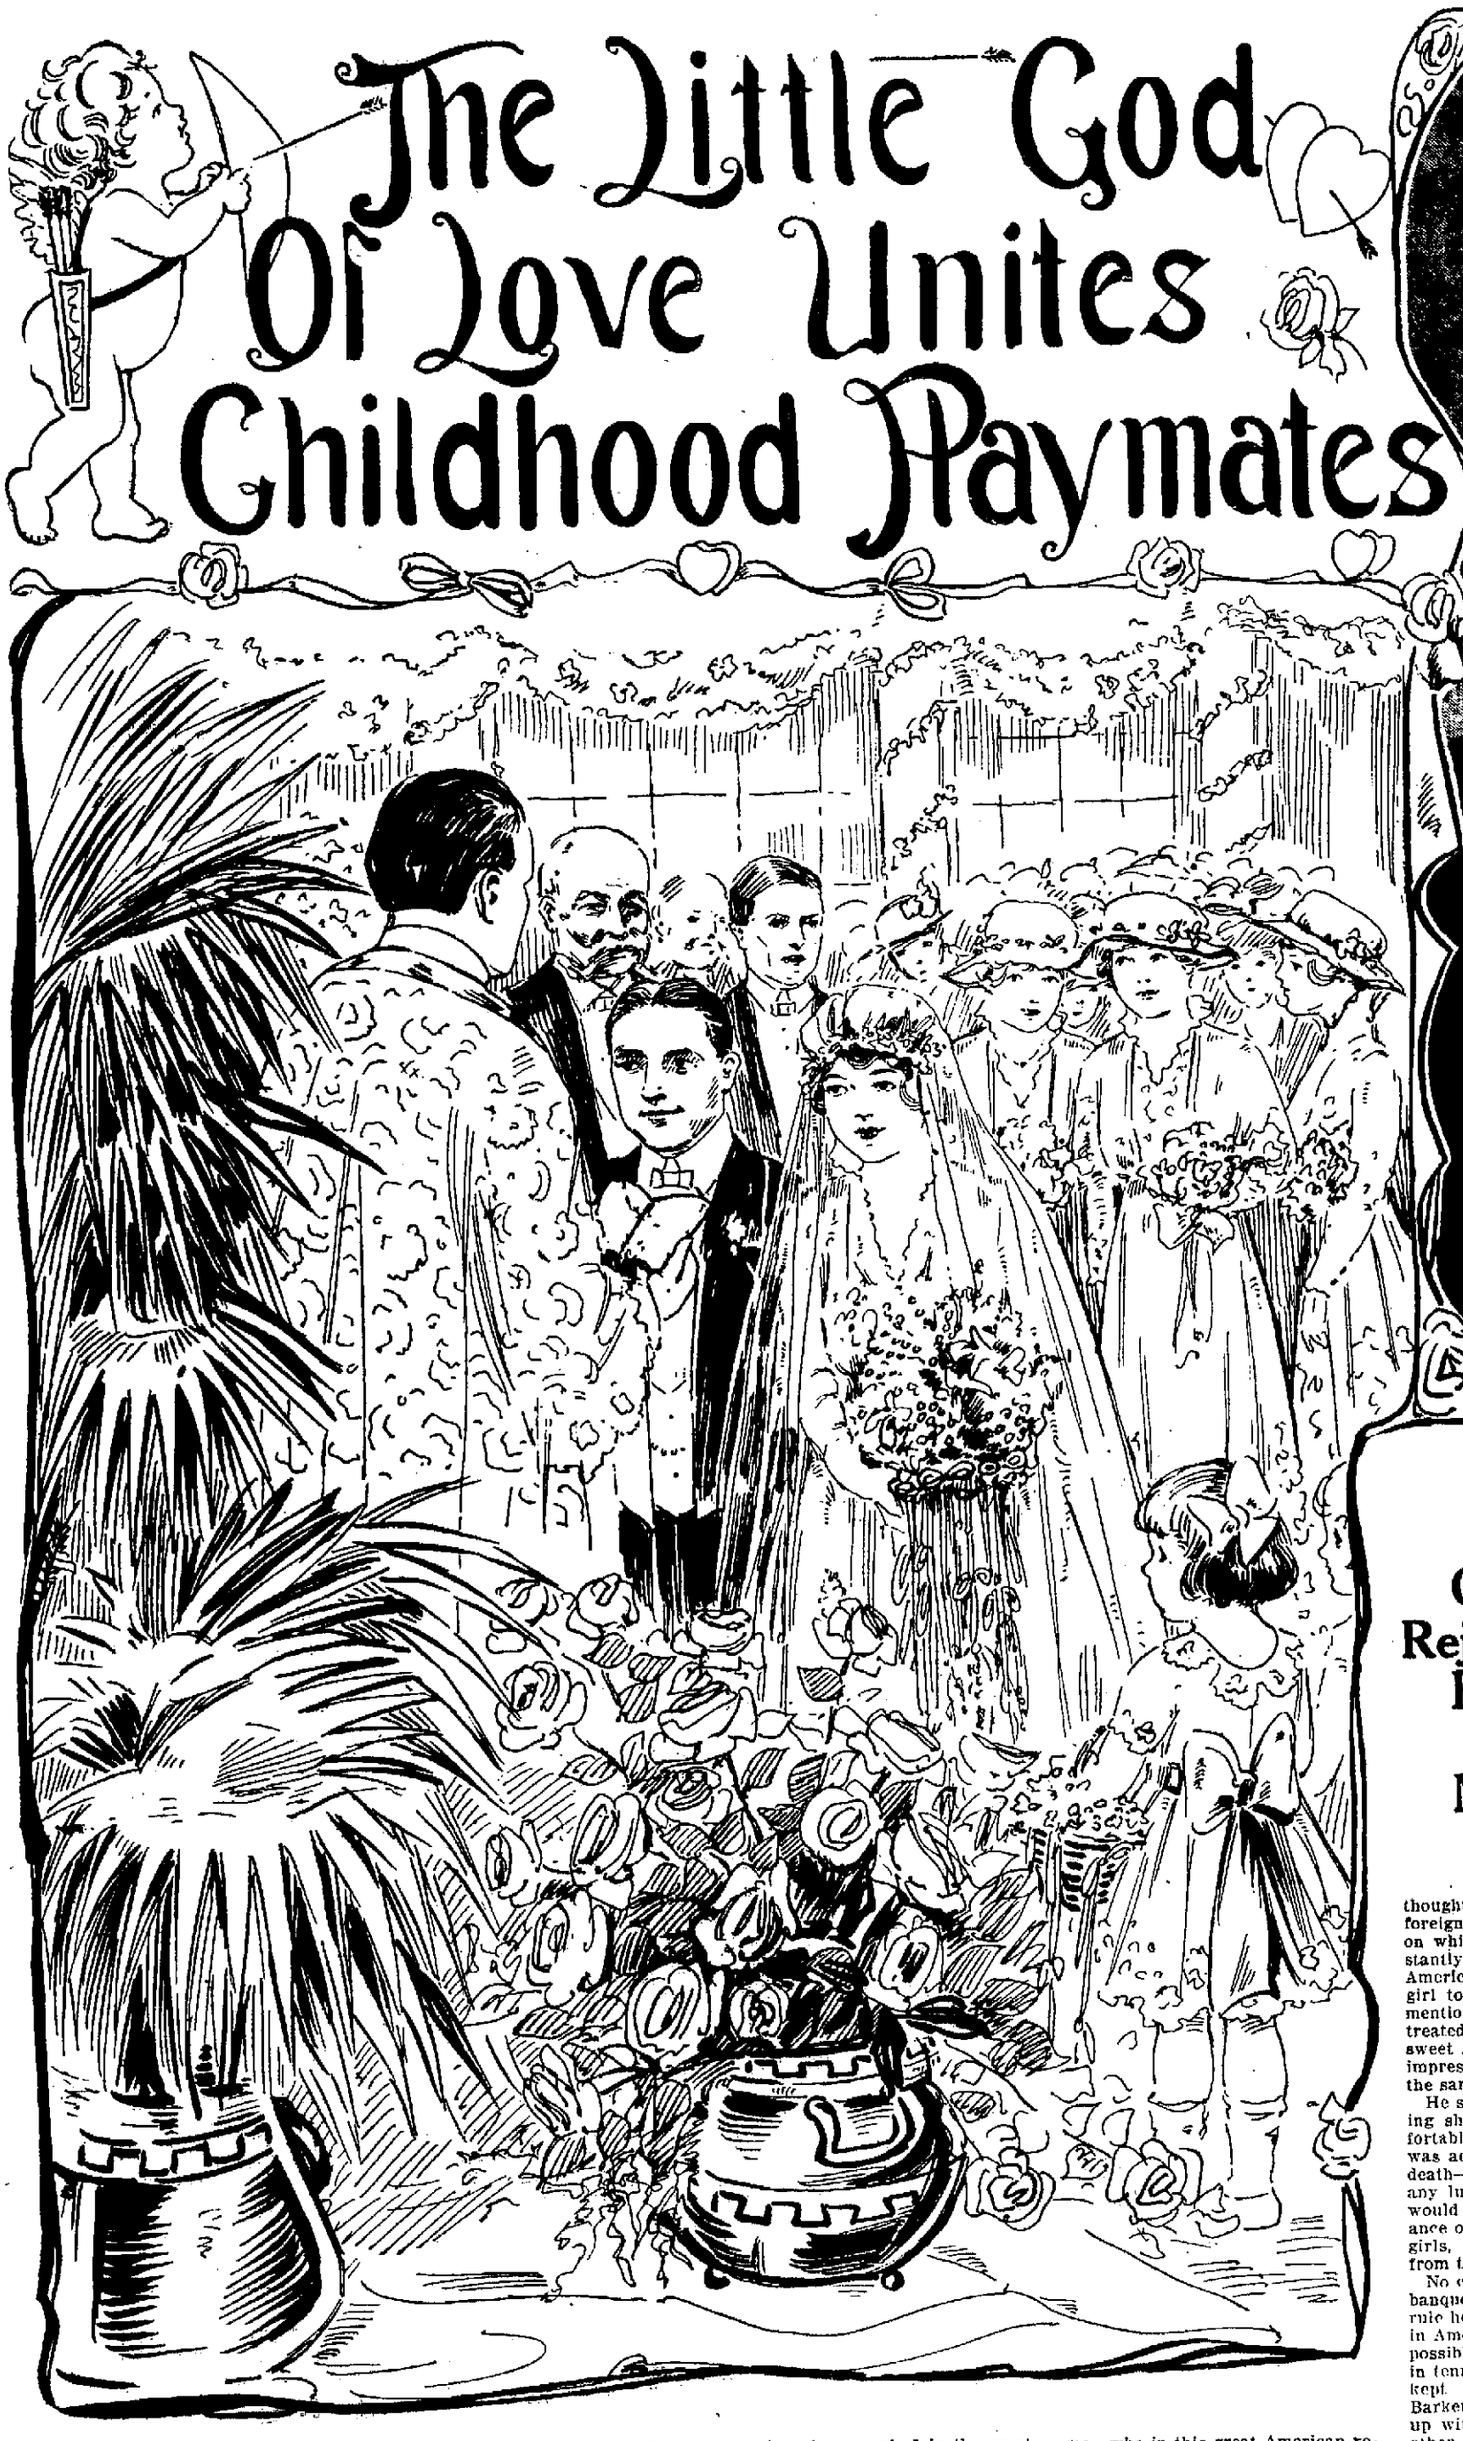
The Little God Of Love Unites Childhood Playmates



JAMES B. FORGAN

Catherine Barker, $30,000,000 Heiress, Rejects European Nobles' Offers and Marries For Love—Her Example May Have Far-Reaching Effect Upon International Marriages Contracted For the Exchange Of Fortunes and Empty Titles

The recent marriage of Miss Catherine Barker, America's richest girl having a fortune of $30,000,000 and an income of several million a year, to Howard Spaulding, Jr., an American youth, reveals her as a real daughter of the U. S. A., and if her example be followed the surviving nobles of Europe, after the war is over, will have small chance in America.

When the girl inherited her wealth at 14, James B. Forgan, president of a Chicago bank, saw to it that she was raised with the greatest simplicity and taught that cardinal principal of the United States —"Be Democratic." He destroyed all love letters sent her by the fortune hunters of Europe who would exchange their moth-eaten titles for her wealth.

The youth she married, although of wealthy parents, went to work in an humble position in the great mills left her by her father and "made good."

It is believed that the foxy banker recognized the value of the youth and brought them together.

Any way the wedding was a democratic one, there wasn't a person present bearing a title, and the bride wore nothing in her simple costume that was not of the U. S. A.

The world is watching with great interest the honeymoon of America's greatest heiress and a democratic young American, and finding therein a hopeful sign that when the European war is over there will be no further exchange of American dollars for European titles, to any great extent.

Students of fashionable society and plain sociology, contend that Catherine Barker's example will be followed. They also maintain that the nobles of Europe will have been killed off to such a degree that the survivors will be able easily to find all the women of fortune they could wish to choose from in their own countries.

True, the fortunes of these young women may be greatly reduced through the drain of war, but the landed estates they possess may still be an inducement, and a certain sense of patriotism may keep the surviving foreign hunters from invading the American field.

America's richest girl, worth a cool $30,000,000, and possessing an income of a million or two each year for her pin-money, became the bride of an American boy. And to further prove that romance is not dead, the American boy worked in the great factory of which the girl is the principal stockholder and from which she derives her income. When he left college he decided to start out for himself and work himself up in the world. So as he worked himself to the top in the business world so he worked his way into the affections of the girl and they were married on the last day of July.

NOT A CHAMBERS' NOVEL.

No, this is not the plot of a Robert Chambers' society novel. It is the story of the romance and wedding of Miss Catherine Barker, the riches single woman in the United States, and Howard Spaulding, Jr., at her summer cottage at Harbor Point, Mich. They now are on their honeymoon.

Miss Barker, now 19, became heir to $30,000,000 at the death of her father when she was but 14 years old. The news of her fortune was heralded practically through the world and as one might imagine love letters came from all climes and many of them bore the coat of arms of royalty with the cool offer of an exchange of a crown for real American dollars.

But just then came on the scene a man who in this great American romance really makes the facts in the case worthy of picture dramatization. The man is James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank of Chicago. Her father fortunately had appointed the banker guardian over her fortune until she should become of age.

Now James B. Forgan is essentially an American. He made his money by hard work, starting in at the bottom. So he despised any one whose only claim to existence was that his father or mother had left him a mortgaged estate and doubtful title abroad.

A BILL NYE IDEA.

As Bill Nye would express it: Banker Forgan thought no more of a king or queen than he did of an ace or a two spot. So when letters came pouring in for the girl with the $30,000,000 he did not think it necessary to have her annoyed with such missals or to even mention the matter to her. Burning love letters composed by some of the most aspiring and most indebted dukes, earls and princes of Europe were mailed but never reached the girl's hands.

Banker James B. Forgan saw to it that the girl never was annoyed by thoughts of love—especially that foreign love that burns like a candle on which fuel must be poured constantly, in this case the fuel being American dollars. He trained the girl to utter simplicity. He never mentioned her wealth to her. He treated her as if she were any other sweet American girl and constantly impressed on her that she was just the same as other girls.

He saw that she had all the clothing she desired, an auto and comfortable home—things to which she was accustomed before her father's death—but if she ever mentioned any luxury, the purchase of which would have given her the appearance of being above other American girls, he evidently dissuaded her from the idea.

No costly dinners, no champagne banquets, no elaborate balls was the rule he set down for the richest girl in America. She was given the best possible education, was encouraged in tennis and golf, all luxuries were kept from her. As a result Miss Barker, now Mrs. Spaulding, grew up with democratic simplicity. If other girls mentioned her wealth to her she showed her scorn by her silence. Never did she propose anything that might be too expensive for the other girls to bear their share. No one could call her a "snob" or say that her money had influenced her character for the banker had kept riches far from her thoughts by encouraging her in athletic and other sports and in picking for her the right companions.

HER SIMPLE TRAINING.

Nor was Miss Barker inclined to think of wealth or place herself above the other girls. In school she was a devoted scholar and always obedient to the rules of her teachers. Never did she introduce an innovation or plan a party that might be of unbearable expense to the other girls. If there was fudge to be made she was ready to contribute her mite to the purchase of the ingredients, but in her whole career at the finishing school she never was called upon to spend more than $5 at a time. Her dress was of the simplest and in accord with patterns, cost and material of that of the other girls. The subject of wealth always was avoided and by advice of the banker the teachers showed Miss Barker no more attention than the other girls and all in all she was taught that Democratic spirit that has made America's richest girl at the same time one of its most representative ones.

So when school was finished and she went forth into the whirl of society to make her debut, she was altogether one of the sweetest and most considerate daughters of Uncle Sam in the country despite her enormous wealth.

When the debut was made Banker Forgan saw to it that it was without too great ostentation and flashy expense.

Then came on the scene Howard Spaulding, Jr. He is the son of a wealthy jeweler and was studying at Yale at the time Miss Barker was in school. His father determined that the boy would be reared with the idea of making his own way in the world and Howard followed his father's train of thought exactly. He was one of the "bunch" in college and kept to his studies, spending no more money than other young men and in no way given the impression that a wealthy father in Chicago was paying his expenses.

HE GOES TO WORK.

When he was graduated he decided to make his own way in the world. He thereupon went to Michigan City, Ind., and went to work in a humble position at the Barker & Haskell car works, practically all of the stock in which firm is owned by Miss Barker.

Whether she met the young worker in the factory and their romance began there or whether they met in a social way has not been disclosed by her friends.

Certainly it is charming and altogether within the right of the romanticist that she met her future husband while he was engaged in factory work. How probable, indeed, would it be for the young lady to be touring the factory and see the handsome young man, his face besmeared with grease and his athletic figure hidden beneath overalls and jumper. She might have asked the foreman who he was and learned that he was a Yale graduate learning the business "from the bottom up."

Perhaps, however, it was Banker Forgan, the girl's guardian, who brought about the meeting for be it remembered that Banker Forgan was as much an admirer of American brain and brawn as he was a detester of royalty that would wed for gold. It is possible that his attention, while managing the girl's affairs, was attracted to this brave young man who struck out in the world for himself, preferring an humble job in a factory to being a burden upon his parents.

Whatever may be the romance of the two, it culminated in a simple ceremony at her cottage at Harbor Point, Mich.

A lack of ostentation was the chief feature at the wedding. Miss Barker's beautiful summer home at the Michigan society resort is known simply as "Cottage No. 12." The invitations were simply to this numbered cottage, Miss Barker having refrained from giving the place any name that might attract attention to it.

A PATRIOTIC GIRL.

The simplicity was carried out in the bride's gown. It was of white chiffon, embroidered in pearls and silver and was far less costly than those worn by many less wealthy than Miss Barker. The court train was of chiffon from the shoulders, bound in white satin, embroidered in pears, and with a deep edging of satin, heavily embroidered in pearls and silver with clusters of orange blossoms. The veil was of tulle, bound orange blossoms and finished with a small bow of silver in the back. Her only jewels were a strand of pearls and a diamond bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom.

Those at the wedding marked the simplicity yet the beauty and good taste of the bride's costume. No foreign jewels adorned this daughter of the U. S. A. No costly gems from Cleopatra's tomb, no silks from the far east were in evidence. Everything she wore was made right here at home and smacked of simplicity.

Thus was the richest girl in the United States married and thus as from the time of her inheritance at 14 did she prove that she is a real daughter of the U. S. A., for royalty didn't even have a look-in at her wedding and the foxy banker long ago cast in the waste-basket the letters of the fortune hunters of Europe. May her example be followed!
